NEW YORK, WEDNESDAY, APRIL 3, 1918.

STATEMENT OF THE OWNERSHIP, MANAGEMENT, CIRCULATION, ETC., REQUIRED BY THE ACT OF CONGRESS OF AUGUST 24, 1912, OF

The New York Times

Published daily at New York, N. Y., for April 1, 1918.

State of New York, County of New York, ss.: Before me, a Registered Notary Public in and for the State and county aforesaid, personally appeared Adolph S. Ochs, who, having been duly sworn according to law, deposes and says that he is the Publisher of The New York Times and that the following is, to the best of his knowledge and belief, a true statement of the ownership, management, and circulation of the aforesaid publication for the date shown in the above caption, required by the Act of August 24, 1912, embodied in Section 443, Postal Laws and Regulations, printed on the reverse of this form, to wit:

1. That the names and addresses of the publisher, editor, managing editor, and business managers are:
Publisher—Adolph S. Ochs, The Times, Times Sq., New York City.
Editor—Charles R. Miller, The Times, Times Sq., New York City.
Managing Editor—C. V. Van Anda, The Times, Times Sq., New York City.
Executive Manager—George McAneny, The Times, Times Sq., New York City.
Business Manager—Louis Wiley, The Times, Times Sq., New York City.
Treasurer—Charles H. Grasty, The Times, Times Sq., New York City.

2. That the owners are:
Owner—The New York Times Company.
Stockholders holding 1 per cent. or more of total amount of stock:
Adolph S. Ochs, majority stockholder, The Times, New York City; Charles R. Miller, The Times, New York City; Elisabeth Luther Cary, The Times, New York City; C. V. Van Anda, The Times, New York City; Louis Wiley, The Times, New York City; Estate of John Norris, The Times, New York City; Walter S. Sullivan, 154 E. 74th St., New York City; John G. Agar, New Rochelle, N. Y.; Annie M. McClymonds, Morris Plains, N. J.

3. That the known bondholders, mortgagees, and other security holders owning or holding 1 per cent. or more of total amount of bonds, mortgages, or other securities are:
New York Trust Company, New York City, Trustee for The New York Times Co. Sinking Fund.

4. That the two paragraphs next above, giving the names of the owners, stockholders, and security holders, if any, contain not only the list of stockholders and security holders as they appear upon the books of the company, but also, in cases where the stockholder or security holder appears upon the books of the company as Trustee or in any other fiduciary relation, the name of the person or corporation for whom such Trustee is acting, is given; also that the said two paragraphs contain statements embracing affiant's full knowledge and belief as to the circumstances and conditions under which stockholders and security holders who do not appear upon the books of the company as Trustees, hold stock and securities in a capacity other than that of a bona fide owner; and this affiant has no reason to believe that any other person, association, or corporation has any interest direct or indirect in the said stock, bonds, or other securities than as so stated by him.

5. That the average number of copies of each issue of this publication sold or distributed, through the mails or otherwise, to paid subscribers during the six months preceding the date shown above is 352,784.

ADOLPH S. OCHS, Publisher.

Sworn to and subscribed before me this 1st day of April, 1918.
[Seal.] Geo. Elmer Livingston, Notary Public, Bronx Co., No. 44; registered Bronx County, No. 232; New York County, No. 172; New York Register's No. 10,142. Commission expires March 30th, 1920.

LAGGING AIRPLANE PRODUCTION.

In its review of what the Aircraft Production Board has not accomplished in the nine months of its existence the Aeronautical Society of America says that as soon as the Germans learned that performance was falling far behind promise and that a species of paralysis had fastened upon the airplane industry in the United States they took over 400 woodworking factories and set to work furiously to build enough planes to win the mastery of the air on the western front before the ambitious American program could be realized.

The German output was recently 700 airplanes a day, and it is doubtless increasing. According to the Aeronautical Society, less than 5 per cent. of the facilities of this country are enlisted in airplane production, and the society contends that the wooden and metal parts of from 25,000 to 30,000 machines could have been fabricated in six months. As to the Liberty motors to put into the planes, it asserts that the output should now be 1,000 a day, the estimate being based upon the production of 12,000 automobile engines a day by the motor car factories. Unfortunately, the Liberty motor has not been the dazzling triumph that Secretary BAKER proclaimed it when he said, in the Official Bulletin of Sept. 30, that "in "power, speed, serviceability, and "minimum weight the new engine invites comparison with the best that "the European war has produced." In the six months that have elapsed the Liberty engine has not lived up to the reputation given it by the optimistic Secretary of War; true, it has undergone tinkering enough to be perfect; yet the experts vote it not fast enough for a fighting plane and too heavy for a reconnoissance machine. Its future is debatable.

Today, as Senator LODGE said in the Senate on March 26, "we have not a fighting plane in France"—that is to say, an American-built fighting plane. Mr. LODGE declares that "we have "spent $840,000,000 for airplanes in "the last year." Perhaps it would be nearer the mark to say that that vast sum has been available for airplane purposes, including the training of aviators. The appropriation made last June was $640,000,000, to launch and execute our great program. With this sum a powerful naval fleet could be built; how powerful may be judged from the fact that our forty battleships, including the giant California, of 32,000 tons, not yet in commission, must have cost, guns, turrets, and all equipment, much less than the appropriation provided by Congress in June, 1917, to build airplanes to win the war on the western front. The contract price for the hull and machinery of the dreadnought California was $7,800,000. A published table of the cost of our forty battleships, exclusive of armament and equipment, makes the total $253,619,770, but the full figure for the later vessels, the dreadnoughts, is not given. The difference between $640,000,000, the appropriation for airplanes, and $253,619,770 is $386,380,230. No methodical calculation is, therefore, needed to convince anybody that what the Government was to spend on airplanes would complete and equip a great fleet of battleships.

How the appropriation and increments have been spent or are being laid out has not been divulged, but what the country does know is that the American army in France has not got an air fleet adequate to its needs. What a mockery it is to put it in that way! To make the best of a bad case Senator HITCHCOCK says that "we are not behind time in the de- "livery of training airplanes, of which "we have about 2,000"; also that American combat machines are really being made, and the curve of production will begin to rise this month. No responsible official promises more than twoscore in July. "Our aviators across the water," admits Mr. HITCHCOCK, "are not now flying in combat "planes because France is not able "to deliver any of them." To say, as the Senator does, that we are only ninety days behind in production seems misleading; it certainly assumes a prodigious output at what is called the "peak" of production, of which there is not the slightest evidence at present.

The Aeronautical Society's indictment is called a protest to the American people. What can they do about the lame performance of the Aircraft Production Board, which has imperilled the fortunes of the Allies in the field? The American people can at least insist upon having the truth, upon tearing away the veil of secrecy that has concealed the inefficiency of the responsible authorities; the American people can demand that all our facilities be pressed into service; even if the Government has to take them over, and that the execution of a rational program be speeded under the supervision of a man of the type of EDWARD STETTINIUS; finally, they can ask for an accounting.

THE QUEBEC RIOTS.

Incandescent as are Nationalist politics, separatist passion, and inherited ancient and carefully stimulated recent prejudices in many parts of the Province of Quebec, lovers of the old town of Quebec will be glad to believe that the anti-conscriptionist riots that have been going on there for some days were hatched from the outside. Strange faces have abounded. Outsiders have been foremost and loudest in the demonstrations. In the "heaving" of bricks and shooting of revolvers from housetops and alleyways, the random sniping, the chance hand of sympathetic ruffianism as well as of organized emeute may be detected. In its insults, assaults, and batterings, long patiently borne by the soldiers, the crowd was the mean bully that such crowds are.

Almost amusing, high-comic, indeed, were this a time of peace and ordinary broken heads, is the Nationalist chief, Mr. ARMAND LAVERGNE, who took, or tried to take, charge of Quebec, sought to become the master of the situation, and in a beautiful imaginative moment insisted that Sir ROBERT BORDEN's Government bad set him at the helm of things. Among those fogs and snowdrifts one seems to see a sun-baked Provençal statesman, some worthy colleague of Tartarin of Tarascon.

It is not for the United States, at least it is not for New York, remembering 1863, to look with too frosty a face of superiority upon this fight in Quebec against the Military Service act. It is well that the violence of disloyalty should show itself, if at all, in these critical hours. The contrast speaks for itself. It is easy to rage against the rioters, against men false to France, to Great Britain, to democracy, men without a country, who shirk their duty, range themselves with the enemies of civilization. From such blind, misguided men and their sinister misguiders it is good to turn to the main preservers of order in Quebec, the French-Canadian conscripts, largely green recruits, who have been as calm as veterans, good natured as well as brave, never losing their heads. Men to be proud of, they are enough to justify conscription; they honor and exalt the French-Canadian name and race. They help to redeem the follies and the crimes of selfish teachers and leaders of a gallant people. We see in those raw levies the heroic stuff which Mr. PHILIP GIBBS painted for us in yesterday's TIMES, the epic of a machine-gun detachment "organ- "ized in the early days of the war by "a French-Canadian officer," of late down on the south of the line:

> These Canadians have fought running fights with the German artillery, have engaged German cavalry and smashed them, have checked enemy columns crossing ridges and pouring onward, have scattered large bodies of men surrounding British troops, and in ten days of crowded life have destroyed many German storm troops and helped to hold up the tide of their advance.

French Canadian, British Canadian, American Canadian—let us be grateful to all the brave soldiers fighting for us, and not bother too much about a pack of scurvy malingerers and rioters.

PERSUASION.

It must pain all admirers of suasion and persuasion to hear from Albany that prohibition is "dead this year," because over the week-end effort to defect Senators WICKS of Oneida, NEWTON of Livingston, and ARGETSINGER of Monroe from the Wet ranks failed.

Perhaps the conversion of Senator ARGETSINGER cannot be expected so long as the Republican Sage of Rochester, Mr. GEORGE W. ALDRIDGE, sits among the scoffers, but surely Mr. WICKS and Mr. NEWTON could have been pierced by the arrows of conviction if they had been properly attacked. By what methods is even a hardened Wet to be turned from the error of his ways? By speaking gently to the erring, by tranquil reasoning, by tender appeal. The latest number of The American Issue, organ of the Anti-Saloon League, contains an article by the State Superintendent of that institution, an article which is a model of the winning gentleness that softens and converts. Thus:

> The almost criminal political idiocy of Senator ELON R. BROWN, the legislative exponent of the Barnes-Brown-Booze bunch, assisted by his me-too lieutenant, Speaker SWEET, who has been hypnotized by the buzzing of the Gubernatorial bee.

If Senator NEWTON, Senator WICKS, yes, even Senator ARGETSINGER and Mr. ALDRIDGE, had been sprinkled with honey dew and molasses like this, they couldn't have resisted, and prohibition at Albany would have had a kinder fate.

CORPORATE CARE FOR INDUSTRIAL WELFARE.

The Standard Oil Company of New Jersey has joined those private corporations which are setting an example of regard for the welfare of their workers. It has used group insurance as a means of giving them old age and service pensions, and sick benefits. As the announcement is accompanied by an increase of wages, there can be no suggestion that the benefits are inspired by a wish to make benevolence a cover for economy. The workers get their benefits free and clear at the cost of the corporation. Within the last thirty months it has practically doubled the payments to common labor and has increased the wages of other classes by 79 per cent. The increase just announced adds three millions to the company's costs, a considerable sum, which would be largely increased if other Standard subsidiaries should be led by experience to see the benefits to them of liberality to their help.

There is reason and fitness in such action by our private corporations. They are prospering greatly. A table published yesterday by THE TIMES shows that their profits are so large that their excess taxes range up to 46 per cent. of net income. When excess profit taxes average 15 per cent. on common stock there is an indication of liberal profits, of which no better use could be made than by division which shall attach the workers to the enterprise in these days of shifting labor. Beyond this business reason there are many cases which justify belief that captains of industry are genuinely desirous of sharing their prosperity with those who helped them to it, thus candidly forestalling a demand for "social justice" which could not be so easily controlled. A division of profits differs from a division of property. Property can be divided but once. Profits can be divided so long as they continue. Division of profits, therefore, is in a way an insurance of profits by promoting a disposition to allow or to increase what would be destroyed if the property were turned over to those not interested in its preservation.

Mr. SCHWAB had a vision the other day of a "social renaissance," in which the "workman without property will dominate the world." In that case the world will be as propertyless as Russia under Bolshevist rule, and as unhappy as Russia, which has learned that poverty and idleness are the result of the abolition of property. A man who inherits land enough to support him must labor for his living. A mechanic who gives his children an art or trade gives them the equivalent of a landed inheritance, which is worthless without labor. A worker who capitalizes his wages finds himself a man of property, and he can manage his wages better than he could property. Just as the brain needs hands, so hands need brain power. Wages buy property management for the wage-earners as truly as they buy muscle power for the employers. The manual worker who could not build up an enterprise can have for himself an undivided share in one so long as he is the faithful worker of a loyal employer, such as are becoming numerous in these later days.

The benefits given in Germany by Government are given here by both Government and private corporations. So far as they are a duty of society they may be given by Government well enough, but it is plain that the connection is less direct than when they are given by the industry in which the profits are made. Government lacks the means to "make" taxes; it takes them, and the waste in distribution is both great and unjust. There is fitness in distributions in the oil trade, or steel trade, or any other trade, in proportion both to the need of the worker and his contribution to the assets from which the relief proceeds. There is no need of explanation why this work is done by private corporations rather than by public. Our railways and public utilities lack the resources from which to make such payments. Taxes which are light for profit-earning corporations are burdensome to concerns with deficits. The interest of passengers and shippers has been so much thought of that there was not left enough for justice to the wage-earners who serve them. Now the result is seen—the taxpayers are to be called upon to make good the wage fund, and the process is less welcome than the voluntary action of prosperous corporations.

It is borrowing trouble to ask what will happen when profits and wages and relief funds cease rising together. Will workers be as loyal on the decline as employers have been on the rise? The answer is not certainly in the negative. Once the workers come to see the solidarity of interest between themselves and those who fill the pay envelopes there will dawn a perception of the interest of the worker in the permanence as well as the prosperity of the source of their wages.

PUNISHMENT FOR THE DISLOYAL.

Tardily but with serious minds the national lawmakers are repairing the astonishing defects in the Federal statutes relating to seditious and disloyal utterances. Treason, as was shown by the result of the trial of the editors of a German-language newspaper published in Philadelphia, can be established only when an "overt act" has been committed. For that crime the punishment of death may be inflicted. Disloyalty manifested in speech is equally offensive and scarcely less dangerous, but the penalties imposed by existing law are grotesquely inadequate.

The bill unanimously reported by the Senate Judiciary Committee yesterday, after it had adopted Senator POINDEXTER's amendment, prescribes penalties severe enough to be really deterrent. Under its provisions, whoever, in the presence or hearing of others utters disloyal, threatening, violent, abusive, or seditious language about the Government, the Constitution, the President, the flag, or the uniform of the army and navy of the United States, or any words calculated to bring the Government or its institutions into contempt or disrepute, or calculated to incite resistance to Federal authority or to hamper the efforts of the Government in the prosecution of the war, may be punished by imprisonment of twenty years and a fine of $10,000. The Poindexter amendment further provides that "whoever shall by word or act sup- "port or favor the cause of the Ger- "man Empire or its allies in the pres- "ent war or by word or act oppose "the cause of the United States there- "in," shall be subject to the same penalties.

These are punishments proportionate to the magnitude of the crime. Although it is becoming more prudent, less open, disloyalty is still rife, and manifestations of joy over recent German successes, toasts to the Kaiser, to HINDENBURG, and expressions of the hope that the German arms may yet triumph, are reported almost daily. These offenders are not our pacifists; they are now becomingly quiet, doubtless because of the moral conviction that when so flagrantly criminal and abominable a disturber of the peace as the German Empire has defied the force of civilization, discussion of peace and theories of peace must be deferred until he is overthrown and chained for a thousand years. The toasts to the Kaiser of which we hear nowadays are offered in the German language, and in places of German resort by Germans, actually alien enemies or other Germans whom birth or naturalization has not yet made American. These offenses are going to be made too dangerous to be persisted in. While we are at war with Germany utterances in support of the enemy or expressions of the hope that he may triumph cannot be tolerated. The bill reported by the Senate Committee, we hope, will be speedily enacted, and its provisions rigorously enforced. It may be expected further that, putting aside all soft squeamishness about inflicting the death penalty, Congress will duly provide that criminal acts designed to impede our preparations for war, acts which destroy property and endanger human life, like the blowing up of munition factories or warehouses or attempts to destroy ships, shall be punished by death.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Political Bars Let Down. By the action taken on Monday, the New York Woman Suffrage Party placed both its leaders and its members as individuals exactly right with respect to the political groups into which the other voters of the United States have been and will be divided. By formal resolution, that is, they rescinded the rule hitherto forbidding affiliation by the women with any of the old parties and making such affiliation, when done, equivalent to resignation from the Woman Suffrage Party.

This action does, indeed, throw an amusing light on the protests which these same leaders have always made when anybody scolded them for not doing what they have now done, and charged them with endeavoring to draw, or rather to keep drawn, a sex line in politics. That, however, is a matter of no particular importance now, and it can soon be forgotten in appreciation of the fact that the Great Renunciation has been made, or, at any rate, the first long and essential step toward it taken. In the good time to come—we must all hope that it will be a good time—the Woman's Party will disappear in the general electorate where all enfranchised citizens belong, and the perils and inconveniences and antagonisms inevitably involved in the possession of political power by women, as such, will go with it.

That the complete disappearance of the Woman's Party is not to be immediate need excite no disquietude. Its survival is admittedly temporary. The leaders of that party think that they still have one legitimate task to perform—the pushing to enactment of the Anthony amendment to the Constitution—and to act on that belief is their right, whatever one may think as to its wisdom. By uniting as individuals with the old parties they will soon find full opportunity for the utilization of their energies and the display of their intelligence. They may be sure of a welcome from the several "machines"—a welcome which, whether entirely sincere or not, will be cordial in expression, and some of them are likely to find that they have gained influence, not lost it.

A Single Class Excluded. In the general exultation over the new joys and profits and economies that have come to the nation as a result of the absurdly simple—and absurdly belated—action of setting the clocks ahead an hour for the Summer months, time should be taken for giving deserved commiseration to the one fraction of the population that loses by the change. People of the sort called night workers—those whose daily tasks begin somewhere in the neighborhood of 6 P. M. and continue until two or three hours after midnight—will have to be truly public-spirited not to dwell rather lugubriously in their minds on the fact that they have not gained, but lost, a daylight hour, and the very hour, too, that was about the most precious to them of all the twenty-four.

They will get, after the clocks have been set back in the Fall, no compensating advantage over the rest of us. It will simply be the ending of their present grievance. To that, if they want to be ill-tempered, they will say "Thank you for nothing!" for it will only put them back on a level, as regards sunlighted leisure time, with the neighbors whose good fortune in Summer they have not shared.

But of course the night workers will not be ill-tempered; they will be generous and kind, realizing that even though they do not share directly in the new privilege, they do so indirectly through the benefiting gained by the country as a whole. And, after all, though the night-working class includes not a few thousands of both men and women, taking this large country over, relatively they are but few. They are not the objects of a special spite, and everybody is, or will be when they think of it, sincerely sorry for the ill-luck that deprives them, through no fault of theirs, of participation in the common blessing. And perhaps, after all, their luck is not so bad. The men in the trenches and on the firing line, according to all accounts, find that hardship in a good cause has satisfactions higher than any other, and that way lies joy for these other seeming stepchildren of Fortune.

Legislative Wisdom Illustrated. A correspondent of The Houston (Texas) Post complains bitterly to that paper because the State Legislature has passed a law prohibiting the carrying of pistols by peace officers whose salaries are less than $40 a month. Up here in the North, in spite of all we have read about the new Texas, it is hard for us to realize that revolvers of the long, blue sort are not the common, every day and every night wear of all male Texans not in either of their infancies. Texas dry, and Texas unarmed, and Texas that doesn't touch a card, somehow doesn't seem to be Texas at all. The Post's correspondent, however, apparently complains, not because the pistol-carrying privilege has been still further restricted, but because the Legislature drew among peace officers a line the position of which he cannot understand.

The Post itself confesses a like incomprehension, but it does what it can to lighten the mystery by hazarding the suggestion that the legislators may have feared that a pistol in the hands of a man getting less than $40 a month would make a highwayman or a train robber out of him.

The theory is a plausible one. A man with that wage, these days, out of Texas as well as in it, would have to do something to increase his earnings, and if he did have a pistol his thoughts might naturally turn to some such avocation as the two mentioned. One does what he can and uses the tools he has, and in none of the tamer walks of life is a pistol of much utility.

Everything considered, the Texas Legislature seems to have known what it was about when it passed that law. Legislatures do, now and then, rarely as they get the credit for it.

"Germany's Honor."

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In a cable dispatch from The Hague printed in your issue of this morning, the following words are quoted from a recent editorial in the Vossische Zeitung: "Germany's honor and existence are at stake."

Inasmuch as, since the beginning of the war, Germany, in every conceivable relation of life—public and private, diplomatic, military, civil, and social—has notoriously flouted and trampled under foot the very name and thought of honor, I should like to propose that henceforward, throughout the entire English-speaking world, until the conclusion of a righteous peace, even the outward sound and semblance of the word "honor" be suppressed wherever occurring in relation with the word "German," and that for it be substituted the formula, "h—r," (to be pronounced "h-blank-r,") as an unmistakable token that the sacred word "honor" is not to be sullied by being so much as mentioned in connection with the German name—not even by denying that such a thing as German "h-blank-r" exists at present in the world.

HIGH FRENCH MORALE.

Praise for the Spirit of the Soldiers and the Women.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I inclose a copy of a letter just received from my father, President William H. Crawford of Allegheny College, who has been with the Y. M. C. A. in France since December.

[Inclosure.]
March 1918.

Dear ——: * * * On Sunday I think I saw at least 10,000 French soldiers. The thing that pleases me most is their spirit. Many of them are tired and wish the war was over, but they have no thought of giving up. They look well and have their toes in the ground. Their physical fitness is far beyond what I expected. This is true of both officers and men. Yesterday I stood alongside a lot of them who had been only ten minutes out of the trenches. * * *

My hat is off nearly all the time, in thought at least, to the women of France for what they are doing. I saw so many of them in the fields yesterday. They ought to have a secure place among the world's heroines. Don't be feeling, though, that France is being bled white. She is not. France is heroically determined, if not triumphant. There seems absolute confidence in this region that the line will hold. I think I have seen a thousand miles of trenches in the last ten days and as much barbed wire entanglement. The Germans have nothing on us as to gas. It is commonly reported here that they want to give up the whole gas business.

A Decision on Amendment Votes.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In your issue of March 31 A. C. Shepard submits a plan for testing before the Supreme Court the validity of the present submission by Congress of the prohibition amendment, and argues that my previous letter, showing that several of the existing amendments received less than a two-thirds vote of the members of the respective houses, proved only the "legislative interpretation" of the constitutional requirement as to size of vote in the two houses. I believe that most persons would agree with Mr. Shepard's statement that "no interpretation by Congress of the meaning of terms used in the Constitution is binding on the United States Supreme Court." On the other hand, in the absence of an explicit constitutional requirement of two-thirds of the members of the respective houses, it seems certain that the Supreme Court would be, though not technically bound, yet actually influenced, by the previous interpretations and practices of Congress with respect to amendments which have been a part of our Constitution for so many years. The method suggested by Mr. Shepard for securing a Supreme Court decision sustaining his contention on the point seems hopeless. The purpose of my previous letter was to suggest that it is futile for opponents of prohibition to contest its adoption by any such cumbersome procedures. If there are not stronger and more practical objections to national prohibition, the proposal for such an amendment would in any event soon receive the vote in the houses required by Mr. Shepard's interpretation.

Attention for Sick Soldiers.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I read "Doctors and the Line," by "A Line Officer," in Saturday's issue. There is one statement he makes which should not be allowed to stand unchallenged. He states that a soldier in need of medical attention must wait for the hour set for the treatment of such cases. This is not true. I am sure this officer did not intend to misstate, but his assertion is both misleading and harmful. A soldier taken sick will get attention day or night if he asks for it and his noncommissioned officer or officers attend to duty. The assertion that he must wait for sick call is absurd. The Medical Corps may have its shortcomings, but one hopeful fact remains, that line officers who have had actual experience on the firing line do not "knock" it.

A DOCTOR.

Cambridge, Md., April 1, 1918.

A Coalition Government.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

We want results. Democrats and Republicans in Congress as a whole are not working together on vital war problems. Bad blood is being stirred, ugly passions unloosed when there should be perfect teamwork. Should we have a coalition Government? Is party government best at this time? Should President Wilson take the initiative? Why not see General Wood at the White House? Why not consult with Senator Chamberlain rather than drift into an ugly row? What would Lincoln have done? What the people want is to win this war for righteousness and lasting peace. The people care little who gets the glory, or the offices, or who insists on having his own way.

"Faithful Albion."

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I cannot refrain from expressing gratification, which I am sure must be shared by all Englishmen (and women) in this and European countries as well, for the tribute paid to my country in this time of dire trial in the beautiful and stately poem by Hermen Montagu Donner, entitled, "Faithful Albion," in this morning's TIMES. In its simple yet dignified lines there is the deep emotional strain which forms—and must form—the true basis of every great poem. It will, I am sure, hearten every English bosom, as it has mine, to bear the anxious strain of these days of harrowing suspense, and I am truly grateful to the author of the poem as well as to you for printing it.

A Day of Grace.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It is said that while the light burns the sinner may return. So as an appropriate celebration of April 6 let it be understood that those who have not been as loyal to the United States as they should have been receive a chance to redeem themselves, provided they have not been too much the other way. Of course this doesn't include spies or the twelve traitor Congressmen.

IMMUNE.

Now Spring has come, and over you young April
Shakes out its silver rain of garnered tears;
All perfumes and all flowers shall remind you
Of this one Spring through all the pilgrim years;
But I shall slumber deep, nor feel the rain,
Nor thrill to know that lilies bloom again.

When roses lift their petals to the sunlight
You'll feel my kisses, warm and ruddy wine;
The little airs at evenfall and dawning
Shall whisper in the voice that once was mine;
But I beneath the grass shall lie so deep
I shall not hear them, in my quiet sleep.

When snows have come, upon the wings of Winter,
And all your room is full of mellow light,
Ah, then you'll feel my arms again enfold you,
And sigh for me, so lonely in the night!
But in my tranquil rest beneath the snow
I shall not know, dear heart, I shall not know.

JEANNE OLDFIELD POTTER.

ROOSEVELT TALKS FOR LOAN

Bond Workers Make Trip to Hear Him at Sagamore Hill.

Special to The New York Times.

OYSTER BAY, L. I., April 2.—Col. Theodore Roosevelt this afternoon addressed 250 persons connected with the Liberty Loan Committee of the New York District.

"I appeal to our people to back you to the limit of their power," said Colonel Roosevelt. "This is the people's war, it is America's war. If we do not win now, fighting abroad beside our Allies, then sooner or later our sons and grandsons will have to fight here at home without allies for their wives and their little sons.

"Germany has become a menace to the whole world. She is the most dangerous enemy of liberty now existing. She has shown herself utterly ruthless, treacherous, and brutal. The American who is not now heart and soul against her and heart and soul in favor of fighting this war until it is crowned with the peace of overwhelming victory is a traitor to this country and a traitor to mankind. He is unfit to be a free man, for his soul is a soul of a slave.

"If a person living in this country is not an American let him get out. If he is a neutral let him go to some neutral country. They are not wanted here. Men who are conscientious objectors are not wanted either. If a man's conscience tells him not to go to war he is a fool and a traitor. He ought to look at his conscience and investigate it.

"If an objector of this kind doesn't want to kill some one else, I suggest that he be given a spade and go out and dig the trenches for the fighting man. Or perhaps he could be put on a mine sweeper; there he would be in no danger of killing any one, but there is a likelihood of his being killed. This sort of man ought not be allowed to vote in this country."

After his address, the men and women crowded to the porch, where the Colonel shook hands with all. One of the first was John F. Hildebrand, President of the Shults Baking Co. and Chairman of the Baking Division of the Loan Committee. "I am a German by birth," Mr. Hildebrand said, "I came to this country fifty-five years ago and I am now a proud American citizen. My whole heart and soul is with America."

"I can imagine just what a man in your position has had to contend with," the Colonel replied. "German-American alliances here have got to be dispensed with. We are proud of men like you. I know hundreds and if I had been placed with the army and had been able to go to France there would have been several officers of German parentage on my staff. They are made, like you, of the right stuff."

Among those who were in the party were Major William Tutherley, Charles Scribner, Pemberton Berman, Guy Emerson, Grosvenor Farwell, Edgar M. Engel, Lionel F. Straus, James Warren Lane, Fred Sterry, Arthur and Russell J. Perrine.

PASS EXCESS PROFITS BILL.

Measure to Keep Down Prices of Necessaries Now Goes to Governor.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 2.—After an extended debate the Assembly passed the Wagner Excess Profits bill this afternoon by a vote of 80 to 45. The measure authorizes the State Food Commission to enact rules fixing the difference between purchase and selling prices of necessaries to prevent excessive profits. Provision is made against conflict with Federal regulations. The bill now goes to the Governor.

Senator Murphy's wire-tapping bill, which found its way to Governor Whitman last year only to be vetoed, again goes to the Governor, after being passed by the lower house today by an 87 to 26 vote. The bill makes it a misdemeanor to tap telephone wires without the consent of one of the parties to the conversation, except by written order of a Supreme Court Justice.

Assemblyman Meyer's Corrupt Practices bill, requiring campaign statements to be filed not later than five days before primary or election, was defeated by 102 to 11 votes.

The Senate Finance Committee this afternoon adopted a resolution calling for adjournment of the Legislature at noon Saturday, April 13.

ART NOTES.

F. Lynn Jenkins is showing portraits and other sculpture at the Reinhardt Galleries. The artist fuses very successfully the qualities of permanent character and momentary likeness in his portraiture. The marble bust of Mrs. William H. Nichols is a fine reading of an interesting personality in which neither graciousness nor dignity is ignored. The bronze bust of William H. Nichols is compact and energetic in modeling; the charming marble portrait of little Gloria Gould ripples with the sensitive undulations of contour and promises of development characteristic of the childish type and very difficult to render; the sketch portrait of "Miss M. M." in colored plaster is vivacious and light.

The symbolic subjects, "Peace in Exile," "Enigma," &c., make a less positive impression. They show the influence of the antique, and one misses in their generalized forms the sense of that unremitting reference to nature upon which all satisfactory generalization must be based.

Old English Costumes.

At the Knoedler Galleries is an exhibition of water-color drawings of old English costumes by Purcell Jones, who has done interesting work for His Majesty's Theatre and the Ambassador's Theatre in London. Here are Lady Diana Manners and H. P. Irving, Lady Moira Osburne and Miss Evelyn Gordon and Miss Viola Tree as they appeared in "The Italian Masque"; English gothic costumes for Henry VI., Dukes and Duchesses, exquisites, courtesans, Ambassadors, and mummers of the James I. period and a group of Second Empire costumes. The artist has put good flesh and blood into these wooden corsets and heavy satins, the types fit the clothes, and the color is emphatic and full. It is a thoroughly rewarding and stimulating little exhibition in art of a kind that reaches and appeals to a large public. We are just now getting to the point of recognizing that a ballet costume may be as much a masterpiece of art as a painting or a statue, or the dance in which it plays its part. The field of art is not broadening, for it always was as wide as the world, but the field of intelligent appreciation of art in multitudinous forms of expression is attaining very satisfactory proportions.

Cuban Pictures by Randall Davey.

At the Montross Gallery are paintings by Randall Davey made during his recent visit to Cuba. Mr. Davey has taken immense pleasure in the negro type as he has found it on this agreeable island, and his portraits are marked by close research into the character of his subject. Most of the negress heads are of the coffee-brown complexion prevailing among the colored people in Cuba, and have also the typical expression of profound melancholy and gentleness. One little black boy, however, is blacker than any ace of spades, and the blue lights on his shining skin are like the high lights on burnished steel.

The color in the paintings has a tropical intensity, but the artist's palette has risen to a higher scale of values than he formerly used. He puts blue, yellow, and pink together with considerable daring, but justifies the combination by the delicacy and precision of his transitions. Above all, his present work shows the freshness of enthusiasm. Not a worn moment is recorded. It is all young and vigorous and wholesome and on the way to a fuller achievement. The exhibition lasts until April 13.

$100,000,000 POOL PLANNED FOR LOAN

Liberty Committee Wants to Aid Buyers of Small Bonds.

CALLS FOR JOINT ACTION

Heads of All City Banks and Trust Companies Are Asked to Co-operate in Scheme.

The Liberty Loan Committee announced yesterday the preliminary steps of an important program for facilitating subscriptions to bonds of the third loan in small denomination through joint action by the national and State banks and trust companies throughout the city. It is proposed that the banks join in a $100,000,000 pool to carry bonds for subscribers to $50 and $100 pieces, and put into operation a new method for collecting the installment payments. The plan will permit persons who subscribe for bonds at one bank to make their payments at any other bank which joins the arrangement. In the preceding loans it was found that the partial payment plan in many cases imposed a hardship on workers and others who started their payments at one bank and afterward removed to another part of the city.

Benjamin Strong, Chairman of the Liberty Loan Committee, sent a letter yesterday to the President of every commercial banking institution, suggesting the formation of the money pool and describing the system for collecting payments. The proposal provides for the issue of coupon books to subscribers on the partial payment plan. When the books are presented at a bank, together with a payment on a bond, a coupon and its stub will be stamped by the bank. The coupon will then be sent with the money to a bureau representing all the participating banks, where the clerical work will be done. The Federal Reserve Bank engages to look after the bookkeeping details without expense either to the bond subscribers or the banks. The plan was devised by Arthur M. Anderson and associates in the Distribution Committee.

Chairman Strong sent a letter to the savings banks outlining the plan and asking their co-operation, but without asking their participation in the pool. It is proposed that the buyer of a $50 bond pay down $2 when he obtains a coupon book, while a $100 bond buyer will pay $4. There are forty-eight coupons at $2 each in the $100 book and forty-eight at $1 each in the $50 book. If any payment remains overdue for two weeks a notice will go to the subscriber, and if within a week thereafter the payment is not made, the purchaser will be deemed in default. The bond may then be sold at the market price, and after fifty weeks from the date of the agreement the purchaser, on surrender of the book with all unpaid coupons, will receive the proceeds of the sale of the bond less expenses and the amount of the unpaid coupons. The first coupon will be due the week of May 13. Selling agencies in all parts of the city will be instructed in the way of handling the coupons, so that subscribers will not have to go to a bank interested in the pool nor to a savings bank if an agency is more convenient.

The Liberty Loan campaign gathered speed yesterday. More than 1,000 prominent actors, actresses, and managers gathered at the Palace Theatre yesterday to hear Thomas W. Lamont of J. P. Morgan & Co. speak on the loan, and to complete their organization for the sale of bonds. Mr. Lamont said the members of the theatrical profession in England were sacrificing much in order to do their part in carrying the war. Daniel Frohman spoke as President of the Actors' Fund, and Colonel J. S. Dennis of the British Recruiting Mission, and Colonel Moses Greenwood also discussed the task of floating the loan. E. F. Albee, Chairman of the Theatrical Allied Interests Liberty Loan Committee, told the audience that the activity exerted for the flotation of the loan in every theatre would be directed by the local management.

The Liberty Loan Committee announced yesterday that an organization had been formed to help distribute the loan. This latest auxiliary to the bond-selling army is the Liberty Loan Legion. Through it at least 250,000 additional workers will be added to the force in the Federal Reserve District. Any person who obtains subscriptions for the third loan will be eligible for membership in the legion, and special recruiting work will be made among the subscribers to the first two loans.

The silk industry and associated interests completed an organization for forwarding the loan at a luncheon held at the Hotel Vanderbilt. Under the direction of William Skinner of William Skinner & Sons, fifty prominent men of the industry pledged themselves to exert every influence in distributing bonds, and began the movement by pledging among themselves subscriptions amounting to more than $3,000,000.

Jacob H. Schiff told the east side yesterday that every lover of democracy and human liberty must support the third Liberty Loan in order to protect the United States against German autocracy. Benjamin Strong, Chairman of the Liberty Loan Committee; A. B. Leach, and others addressed the meeting. The 200 auditors were the guests of Bernard K. Marcus, one of Mr. Leach's chief assistants, at a luncheon at the Bank of the United States, 77 Delancey Street.

"The United States," said Mr. Schiff, "has gone into this war for the things that have ever been dearest to the Jew—human liberty and democracy. The ambitions of Germany threaten a loss of these precious things to us. But Germany cannot win this war. Even if she defeats the Allies, the United States will fight on alone until doomsday if necessary until freedom and democracy are assured to this land and to the whole world."

PRIORITY FOR WAR MATERIAL

New Board Will Seek to Eliminate Department Competition.

WASHINGTON, April 2.—Creation of a Requirements Division, which will establish priority of delivery in raw and manufactured war materials, was announced today by the War Industries Board. The division will eliminate competition among Government departments in obtaining supplies.

A price-fixing program closely allied with priorities arrangement, soon to be put into effect, contemplates the organization of committees to pass on prices, consisting of members of the War Industries Board who are directly charged with the study of raw materials and manufactured products, a labor representative, the Chairman of the Federal Trade Commission, the Chairman of the Tariff Commission, and the Fuel Administrator.

The new priorities agency will be headed by Alexander Legge. Other members are Judge E. B. Parker, priorities; George N. Peek, finished products; J. L. Replogle, steel; Director Gifford, Council of National Defense; Colonel George H. Estes, War Department; Rear Admiral Peoples, Navy Department; F. A. Brown of the Emergency Fleet Corporation, Shipping Board; C. Powell, Railroad Administration; H. Noyes, Fuel Administration; C. Merrill, Food Administration, and J. A. Carr, Allied Purchases Commission.

The representative for the Red Cross has not yet been selected.

LAGGING AIRPLANE PRODUCTION.

In its review of what the Aircraft Production Board has not accomplished in the nine months of its existence the Aeronautical Society of America says that as soon as the Germans learned that performance was falling far behind promise and that a species of paralysis had fastened upon the airplane industry in the United States they took over 400 woodworking factories and set to work furiously to build enough planes to win the mastery of the air on the western front before the ambitious American program could be realized.

The German output was recently 700 airplanes a day, and it is doubtless increasing. According to the Aeronautical Society, less than 5 per cent. of the facilities of this country are enlisted in airplane production, and the society contends that the wooden and metal parts of from 25,000 to 30,000 machines could have been fabricated in six months. As to the Liberty motors to put into the planes, it asserts that the output should now be 1,000 a day, the estimate being based upon the production of 12,000 automobile engines a day by the motor car factories. Unfortunately, the Liberty motor has not been the dazzling triumph that Secretary BAKER proclaimed it when he said, in the Official Bulletin of Sept. 30, that "in "power, speed, serviceability, and "minimum weight the new engine in-"vites comparison with the best that "the European war has produced." In the six months that have elapsed the Liberty engine has not lived up to the reputation given it by the optimistic Secretary of War; true, it has undergone tinkering enough to be perfect; yet the experts vote it not fast enough for a fighting plane and too heavy for a reconnoissance machine. Its future is debatable.

Today, as Senator LODGE said in the Senate on March 26, "we have not a fighting plane in France"—that is to say, an American-built fighting plane. Mr. LODGE declares that "we have "spent $840,000,000 for airplanes in "the last year." Perhaps it would be nearer the mark to say that that vast sum has been available for airplane purposes, including the training of aviators. The appropriation made last June was $640,000,000, to launch and execute our great program. With this sum a powerful naval fleet could be built; how powerful may be judged from the fact that our forty battleships, including the giant California, of 32,000 tons, not yet in commission, must have cost, guns, turrets, and all equipment, much less than the appropriation provided by Congress in June, 1917, to build airplanes to win the war on the western front. The contract price for the hull and machinery of the dreadnought California was $7,800,000. A published table of the cost of our forty battleships, exclusive of armament and equipment, makes the total $253,619,770, but the full figure for the later vessels, the dreadnoughts, is not given. The difference between $640,000,000, the appropriation for airplanes, and $253,619,770 is $386,380,230. No methodical calculation is, therefore, needed to convince anybody that what the Government was to spend on airplanes would complete and equip a great fleet of battleships.

How the appropriation and increments have been spent or are being laid out has not been divulged, but what the country does know is that the American army in France has not got an air fleet adequate to its needs. What a mockery it is to put it in that way! To make the best of a bad case Senator HITCHCOCK says that "we are not behind time in the de-"livery of training airplanes, of which "we have about 2,000"; also that American combat machines are really being made, and the curve of production will begin to rise this month. No responsible official promises more than twoscore in July. "Our aviators across the water," admits Mr. HITCHCOCK, "are not now flying in combat "planes because France is not able "to deliver any of them." To say, as the Senator does, that we are only ninety days behind in production seems misleading; it certainly assumes a prodigious output at what is called the "peak" of production, of which there is not the slightest evidence at present.

The Aeronautical Society's indictment is called a protest to the American people. What can they do about the lame performance of the Aircraft Production Board, which has imperiled the fortunes of the Allies in the field? The American people can at least insist upon having the truth, upon tearing away the veil of secrecy that has concealed the inefficiency of the responsible authorities; the American people can demand that all our facilities be pressed into service, even if the Government has to take them over, and that the execution of a rational program be speeded under the supervision of a man of the type of EDWARD STETTINIUS; finally, they can ask for an accounting.

THE QUEBEC RIOTS.

Incandescent as are Nationalist politics, separatist passion, and inherited ancient and carefully stimulated recent prejudices in many parts of the Province of Quebec, lovers of the old town of Quebec will be glad to believe that the anti-conscriptionist riots that have been going on there for some days were hatched from the outside. Strange faces have abounded. Outsiders have been foremost and loudest in the demonstrations. In the "heaving" of bricks and shooting of revolvers from housetops and alleyways, the random sniping, the chance hand of sympathetic ruffianism as well as of organized emeute may be detected. In its insults, assaults, and batterings, long patiently borne by the soldiers, the crowd was the mean bully that such crowds are.

Almost amusing, high-comic, indeed, were this a time of peace and ordinary broken heads, is the Nationalist chief, Mr. ARMAND LAVERGNE, who took, or tried to take, charge of Quebec, sought to become the master of the situation, and in a beautiful imaginative moment insisted that Sir ROBERT BORDEN's Government had set him at the helm of things. Among those fogs and snowdrifts one seems to see a sun-baked Provençal statesman, some worthy colleague of Tartarin of Tarascon.

It is not for the United States, at least it is not for New York, remembering 1863, to look with too frosty a face of superiority upon this fight in Quebec against the Military Service act. It is well that the violence of disloyalty should show itself, if at all, in these critical hours. The contrast speaks for itself. It is easy to rage against the rioters, against men false to France, to Great Britain, to democracy, men without a country, who shirk their duty, range themselves with the enemies of civilization. From such blind, misguided men and their sinister misguiders it is good to turn to the main preservers of order in Quebec, the French-Canadian conscripts, largely green recruits, who have been as calm as veterans, good natured as well as brave, never losing their heads. Men to be proud of, they are enough to justify conscription; they honor and exalt the French-Canadian name and race. They help to redeem the follies and the crimes of selfish teachers and leaders of a gallant people. We see in those raw levies the heroic stuff which Mr. PHILIP GIBBS painted for us in yesterday's TIMES, the epic of a machine-gun detachment "organ-"ized in the early days of the war by "a French-Canadian officer," of late down on the south of the line:

> These Canadians have fought running fights with the German artillery, have engaged German cavalry and smashed them, have checked enemy columns crossing ridges and pouring onward, have scattered large bodies of men surrounding British troops, and in ten days of crowded life have destroyed many German storm troops and helped to hold up the tide of their advance.

French Canadian, British Canadian, American Canadian—let us be grateful to all the brave soldiers fighting for us, and not bother too much about a pack of scurvy malingerers and rioters.

PERSUASION.

It must pain all admirers of suasion and persuasion to bear from Albany that prohibition is "dead this year," because over the week-end effort to defect Senators WICKS of Oneida, NEWTON of Livingston, and ARGETSINGER of Monroe from the Wet ranks failed.

Perhaps the conversion of Senator ARGETSINGER cannot be expected so long as the Republican Sage of Rochester, Mr. GEORGE W. ALDRIDGE, sits among the scoffers, but surely Mr. WICKS and Mr. NEWTON could have been pierced by the arrows of conviction if they had been properly attacked. By what methods is even a hardened Wet to be turned from the error of his ways? By speaking gently to the erring, by tranquil reasoning, by tender appeal. The latest number of The American Issue, organ of the Anti-Saloon League, contains an article by the State Superintendent of that institution, an article which is a model of the winning gentleness that softens and converts. Thus:

> The almost criminal political idiocy of Senator ELON R. BROWN, the legislative exponent of the Barnes-Brown-Booze bunch, assisted by his me-too lieutenant, Speaker SWEET, who has been hypnotized by the buzzing of the Gubernatorial bee.

If Senator NEWTON, Senator WICKS, yes, even Senator ARGETSINGER and Mr. ALDRIDGE, had been sprinkled with honey dew and molasses like this, they couldn't have resisted, and prohibition at Albany would have had a kinder fate.

CORPORATE CARE FOR INDUSTRIAL WELFARE.

The Standard Oil Company of New Jersey has joined those private corporations which are setting an example of regard for the welfare of their workers. It has used group insurance as a means of giving them old age and service pensions, and sick benefits. As the announcement is accompanied by an increase of wages, there can be no suggestion that the benefits are inspired by a wish to make benevolence a cover for economy. The workers get their benefits free and clear at the cost of the corporation. Within the last thirty months it has practically doubled the payments to common labor and has increased the wages of other classes by 79 per cent. The increase just announced adds three millions to the company's costs, a considerable sum, which would be largely increased if other Standard subsidiaries should be led by experience to see the benefits to them of liberality to their help.

There is reason and fitness in such action by our private corporations. They are prospering greatly. A table published yesterday by THE TIMES shows that their profits are so large that their excess taxes range up to 46 per cent. of net income. When excess profit taxes average 15 per cent. on common stock there is an indication of liberal profits, of which no better use could be made than by division which shall attach the workers to the enterprise in these days of shifting labor. Beyond this business reason there are many cases which justify belief that captains of industry are genuinely desirous of sharing their prosperity with those who helped them to it, thus candidly forestalling a demand for "social justice" which could not be so easily controlled. A division of profits differs from a division of property. Property can be divided but once. Profits can be divided so long as they continue. Division of profits, therefore, is in a way an insurance of profits by promoting a disposition to allow or to increase what would be destroyed if the property were turned over to those not interested in its preservation.

Mr. SCHWAB had a vision the other day of a "social renaissance," in which the "workman without property will dominate the world." In that case the world will be as propertyless as Russia under Bolshevist rule, and as unhappy as Russia, which has learned that poverty and idleness are the result of the abolition of property. A man who inherits land enough to support him must labor for his living. A mechanic who gives his children an art or trade gives them the equivalent of a landed inheritance, which is worthless without labor. A worker who capitalizes his wages finds himself a man of property, and he can manage his wages better than he could property. Just as the brain needs hands, so hands need brain power. Wages buy property management for the wage-earners as truly as they buy muscle power for the employers. The manual worker who could not build up an enterprise can have for himself an undivided share in one so long as he is the faithful worker of a loyal employer, such as are becoming numerous in these later days.

The benefits given in Germany by Government are given here by both Government and private corporations. So far as they are a duty of society they may be given by Government well enough, but it is plain that the connection is less direct than when they are given by the industry in which the profits are made. Government lacks the means to "make" taxes; it takes them, and the waste in distribution is both great and unjust. There is fitness in distributions in the oil trade, or steel trade, or any other trade, in proportion both to the need of the worker and his contribution to the assets from which the relief proceeds. There is no need of explanation why this work is done by private corporations rather than by public. Our railways and public utilities lack the resources from which to make such payments. Taxes which are light for profit-earning corporations are burdensome to concerns with deficits. The interest of passengers and shippers has been so much thought of that there was not left enough for justice to the wage-earners who serve them. Now the result is seen—the taxpayers are to be called upon to make good the wage fund, and the process is less welcome than the voluntary action of prosperous corporations.

It is borrowing trouble to ask what will happen when profits and wages and relief funds cease rising together. Will workers be as loyal on the decline as employers have been on the rise? The answer is not certainly in the negative. Once the workers come to see the solidarity of interest between themselves and those who fill the pay envelopes there will dawn a perception of the interest of the worker in the permanence as well as the prosperity of the source of their wages.

PUNISHMENT FOR THE DISLOYAL.

Tardily but with serious minds the national lawmakers are repairing the astonishing defects in the Federal statutes relating to seditious and disloyal utterances. Treason, as was shown by the result of the trial of the editors of a German-language newspaper published in Philadelphia, can be established only when an "overt act" has been committed. For that crime the punishment of death may be inflicted. Disloyalty manifested in speech is equally offensive and scarcely less dangerous, but the penalties imposed by existing law are grotesquely inadequate.

The bill unanimously reported by the Senate Judiciary Committee yesterday, after it had adopted Senator POINDEXTER's amendment, prescribes penalties severe enough to be really deterrent. Under its provisions, whoever in the presence or hearing of others utters disloyal, threatening, violent, abusive, or seditious language about the Government, the Constitution, the President, the flag, or the uniform of the army and navy of the United States, or any words calculated to bring the Government or its institutions into contempt or disrepute, or calculated to incite resistance to Federal authority or to hamper the efforts of the Government in the prosecution of the war, may be punished by imprisonment of twenty years and a fine of $10,000. The Poindexter amendment further provides that "whoever shall by word or act sup-"port or favor the cause of the Ger-"man Empire or its allies in the pres-"ent war or by word or act oppose "the cause of the United States there-"in," shall be subject to the same penalties.

These are punishments proportionate to the magnitude of the crime. Although it is becoming more prudent, less open, disloyalty is still rife, and manifestations of joy over recent German successes, toasts to the Kaiser, to HINDENBURG, and expressions of the hope that the German arms may yet triumph, are reported almost daily. These offenders are not our pacifists; they are now becomingly quiet, doubtless because of the moral conviction that when so flagrantly criminal and abominable a disturber of the peace as the German Empire has defied the force of civilization, discussion of peace and theories of peace must be deferred until he is overthrown and chained for a thousand years. The toasts to the Kaiser of which we hear nowadays are offered in the German language, and in places of German resort by Germans, actually alien enemies or other Germans whom birth or naturalization has not yet made American. These offenses are going to be made too dangerous to be persisted in. While we are at war with Germany utterances in support of the enemy or expressions of the hope that he may triumph cannot be tolerated. The bill reported by the Senate Committee, we hope, will be speedily enacted, and its provisions rigorously enforced. It may be expected further that, putting aside all soft squeamishness about inflicting the death penalty, Congress will duly provide that criminal acts designed to impede our preparations for war, acts which destroy property and endanger human life, like the blowing up of munition factories or warehouses or attempts to destroy ships, shall be punished by death.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Political Bars Let Down. By the action taken on Monday, the New York Woman Suffrage Party placed both its leaders and its members as individuals exactly right with respect to the political groups into which the other voters of the United States have been and will be divided. By formal resolution, that is, they rescinded the rule hitherto forbidding affiliation by the women with any of the old parties and making such affiliation, when done, equivalent to resignation from the Woman Suffrage Party.

This action does, indeed, throw an amusing light on the protests which these same leaders have always made when anybody scolded them for not doing what they have now done, and charged them with endeavoring to draw, or rather to keep drawn, a sex line in politics. That, however, is a matter of no particular importance now, and it can soon be forgotten in appreciation of the fact that the Great Renunciation has been made, or, at any rate, the first long and essential step toward it taken. In the good time to come—we must all hope that it will be a good time—the Woman's Party will disappear in the general electorate where all enfranchised citizens belong, and the perils and inconveniences and antagonisms inevitably involved in the possession of political power by women, as such, will go with it.

That the complete disappearance of the Woman's Party is not to be immediate need excite no disquietude. Its survival is admittedly temporary. The leaders of that party think that they still have one legitimate task to perform—the pushing to enactment of the Anthony amendment to the Constitution—and to act on that belief is their right, whatever one may think as to its wisdom. By uniting as individuals with the old parties they will soon find full opportunity for the utilization of their energies and the display of their intelligence. They may be sure of a welcome from the several "machines"—a welcome which, whether entirely sincere or not, will be cordial in expression, and some of them are likely to find that they have gained influence, not lost it.

A Single Class Excluded. In the general exultation over the new joys and profits and economies that have come to the nation as a result of the absurdly simple—and absurdly belated—action of setting the clocks ahead an hour for the Summer months, time should be taken for giving deserved commiseration to the one fraction of the population that loses by the change. People of the sort called night workers—those whose daily tasks begin somewhere in the neighborhood of 6 P. M. and continue until two or three hours after midnight—will have to be truly public-spirited not to dwell rather lugubriously in their minds on the fact that they have not gained, but lost, a daylight hour, and the very hour, too, that was about the most precious to them of all the twenty-four.

They will get, after the clocks have been set back in the Fall, no compensating advantage over the rest of us. It will simply be the ending of their present grievance. To that, if they went to be ill-tempered, they will say "Thank you for nothing!" for it will only put them back on a level, as regards sunlighted leisure time, with the neighbors whose good fortune in Summer they have not shared.

But of course the night workers will not be ill-tempered; they will be generous and kind, realizing that even though they do not share directly in the new privilege, they do so indirectly through the benefiting gained by the country as a whole. And, after all, though the night-working class includes not a few thousands of both men and women, taking this large country over, relatively they are but few. They are not the objects of a special spite, and everybody is, or will be when they think of it, sincerely sorry for the ill-luck that deprives them, through no fault of theirs, of participation in the common blessing.

And perhaps, after all, their luck is not so bad. The men in the trenches and on the firing line, according to all accounts, find that hardship in a good cause has satisfactions higher than any other, and that way lies joy for these other seeming stepchildren of Fortune.

Legislative Wisdom Illustrated. A correspondent of The Houston (Texas) Post complains bitterly to that paper because the State Legislature has passed a law prohibiting the carrying of pistols by peace officers whose salaries are less than $40 a month. Up here in the North, in spite of all we have read about the new Texas, it is hard for us to realize that revolvers of the long, blue sort are not the common, every day and every night wear of all male Texans not in either of their infancies. Texas dry, and Texas unarmed, and Texas that doesn't touch a card, somehow doesn't seem to be Texas at all. The Post's correspondent, however, apparently complains, not because the pistol-carrying privilege has been still further restricted, but because the Legislature drew among peace officers a line the position of which he cannot understand.

The Post itself confesses a like incomprehension, but it does what it can to lighten the mystery by hazarding the suggestion that the legislators may have feared that a pistol in the hands of a man getting less than $40 a month would make a highwayman or a train robber out of him.

The theory is a plausible one. A man with that wage, these days, out of Texas as well as in it, would have to do something to increase his earnings, and if he did have a pistol his thoughts might naturally turn to some such avocation as the two mentioned. One does what he can and uses the tools he has, and in none of the tamer walks of life is a pistol of much utility.

Everything considered, the Texas Legislature seems to have known what it was about when it passed that law. Legislatures do, now and then, rarely as they get the credit for it.

"Germany's Honor."

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In a cable dispatch from The Hague printed in your issue of this morning, the following words are quoted from a recent editorial in the Vossische Zeitung: "Germany's honor and existence are at stake."

Inasmuch as, since the beginning of the war, Germany, in every conceivable relation of life—public and private, diplomatic, military, civil, and social—has notoriously flouted and trampled under foot the very name and thought of honor, I should like to propose that henceforward, throughout the entire English-speaking world, until the conclusion of a righteous peace, even the outward sound and semblance of the word "honor" be suppressed wherever occurring in relation with the word "German," and that for it be substituted the formula, "h—r," (to be pronounced "h-blank-r,") as an unmistakable token that the sacred word "honor" is not to be sullied by being so much as mentioned in connection with the German name—not even by denying that such a thing as German "h-blank-r" exists at present in the world.

HIGH FRENCH MORALE.

Praise for the Spirit of the Soldiers and the Women.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I inclose a copy of a letter just received from my father, President William H. Crawford of Allegheny College, who has been with the Y. M. C. A. in France since December.

[Inclosure.]
Somewhere in France,
March 8, 1918.

Dear ——:

* * * On Sunday I think I saw at least 10,000 French soldiers. The thing that pleases me most is their spirit. Many of them are tired and wish the war was over, but they have no thought of giving up. They look well and have their toes in the ground. Their physical fitness is far beyond what I expected. This is true of both officers and men. Yesterday I stood alongside a lot of them who had been only ten minutes out of the trenches. * * *

My hat is off nearly all the time, in thought at least, to the women of France for what they are doing. I saw so many of them in the fields yesterday. They ought to have a secure place among the world's heroines. Don't be feeling, though, that France is being bled white. She is not. France is heroically determined, if not triumphant. There seems absolute confidence in this region that the line will hold. I think I have seen a thousand miles of trenches in the last ten days and as much barbed wire entanglements. The Germans have nothing on us as to gas. It is commonly reported here that they want to give up the whole gas business.

A Decision on Amendment Votes.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In your issue of March 31 A. H. Shepard submits a plan for testing before the Supreme Court the validity of the recent submission by Congress of the prohibition amendment, and argues that my previous letter, showing that several of the existing amendments received less than a two-thirds vote of the members of the respective houses, proved only the "legislative interpretation" of the constitutional requirement as to size of vote in the two houses. I believe that most persons would agree with Mr. Shepard's statement that "no interpretation by Congress of the meaning of terms used in the Constitution is binding on the United States Supreme Court." On the other hand, in the absence of an explicit constitutional requirement of two-thirds of the members of the respective houses, it seems certain that the Supreme Court would be, though not technically bound, yet actually influenced, by the previous interpretations and practices of Congress with respect to amendments which have been a part of our Constitution for so many years. The method suggested by Mr. Shepard for securing a Supreme Court decision sustaining his contention on the point seems hopeless. The purpose of my previous letter was to suggest that it is futile for opponents of prohibition to contest its adoption by any such cumbersome procedure. If there are not stronger and more practical objections to national prohibition, the proposal for such an amendment would in any event soon receive the vote in the houses required by Mr. Shepard's interpretation.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I read "Doctors and the Line," by "A Line Officer," in Saturday's issue. There is one statement he makes which should not be allowed to stand unchallenged. He states that a soldier in need of medical attention must wait for the hour set for the treatment of such cases. This is not true. I am sure this officer did not intend to misstate, but his assertion is both misleading and harmful. A soldier taken sick will get attention day or night if he asks for it and his noncommissioned officer or officers attend to duty. The assertion that he must wait for sick call is absurd. The Medical Corps may have its shortcomings, but one baneful fact remains, that line officers who have had actual experience on the firing line do not "knock" it.

A DOCTOR.
Cambridge, Md., April 1, 1918.

A Coalition Government.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

We want results. Democrats and Republicans in Congress as a whole are not working together on vital war problems. Bad blood is being stirred, ugly passions unloosed when there should be perfect teamwork. Should we have a coalition Government? Is party government best at this time? Should President Wilson take the initiative? Why not see General Wood at the White House? Why not consult with Senator Chamberlain rather than drift into an ugly row? What would Lincoln have done? When the people want is to win this war for "righteousness and lasting peace." The people care little who gets the glory, or the office, or who insists on having his own way.

"Faithful Albion."

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I cannot refrain from expressing gratification, which I am sure must be shared by all Englishmen (and women) in this and European countries as well, for the tribute paid to my country in this time of sore trial in the beautiful and stately poem by Herman Montagu Donner, entitled, "Faithful Albion," in this morning's TIMES. In its simple yet dignified lines there is the deep emotional strain which forms—and must form—the true basis of every great poem. It will, I am sure, hearten every English bosom, as it has mine, to hear the anxious strain of these days of harrowing suspense, and I am truly grateful to the author of the poem as well as to you for printing it.

A Day of Grace.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It is said that while the light burns the sinner may return. So as an appropriate celebration of April 6 let it be understood that those who have not been as loyal to the United States as they should have been receive a chance to redeem themselves, provided they have not been too much the other way. Of course this doesn't include spies or the twelve traitor Congressmen.

IMMUNE.

Now Spring has come, and ever you young April
Shakes out its silver rain of garnered tears;
All perfumes and all flowers shall remind you
Of this one Spring through all the pilgrim years;
But I shall slumber deep, nor feel the rain,
Nor thrill to know the lilies bloom
again.

When roses lift their petals to the sunlight
You'll feel my kisses, warm as ruddy wine;
The little airs at evenfall and dawning
Shall whisper in the voice that once was mine;
But I beneath the grass shall lie so deep
I shall not hear them, in my quiet sleep.

When snows have come, upon the wings of Winter,
And all your room is full of mellow
light,
Ah, then you'll feel my arms again en-
fold you,
And sigh for me, so lonely in the night!
But in my tranquil rest beneath the snow
I shall not know, dear heart, I shall not know.

ROOSEVELT TALKS FOR LOAN

Bond Workers Make Trip to Hear Him at Sagamore Hill.

Special to The New York Times.

OYSTER BAY, L. I., April 2.—Col. Theodore Roosevelt this afternoon addressed 250 persons connected with the Liberty Loan Committee of the New York District.

"I appeal to our people to back you to the limit of their power," said Colonel Roosevelt. "This is the people's war, it is America's war. If we do not win now, fighting abroad beside our Allies, then sooner or later our sons and grandsons will have to fight here at home without allies for their wives and their little sons.

"Germany has become a menace to the whole world. She is the most dangerous enemy of liberty now existing. She has shown herself utterly ruthless, treacherous, and brutal. The American who is not now heart and soul against her and heart and soul in favor of fighting this war until it is crowned with the peace of overwhelming victory is a traitor to this country and a traitor to mankind. He is unfit to be a free man, for his soul is a soul of a slave.

"If a person living in this country is not an American let him get out. If he is a neutral let him go to some neutral country. They are not wanted here. Men who are conscientious objectors are not wanted either. If a man's conscience tells him not to go to war he is a fool and a traitor. He ought to look at his conscience and investigate it.

"If an objector of this kind doesn't want to kill some one else, I suggest that he be given a spade and go out and dig the trenches for the fighting man. Or perhaps he could be put on a mine sweeper; there he would be in no danger of killing any one, but there is a likelihood of his being killed. This sort of man ought not be allowed to vote in this country."

After his address, the men and women crowded to the porch, where the Colonel shook hands with all. One of the first was John F. Hildebrand, President of the Shults Baking Co. and Chairman of the Baking Division of the Loan Committee. "I am a German by birth," Mr. Hildebrand said. "I came to this country fifty-five years ago and I am now a proud American citizen. My whole heart and soul is with America."

"I can imagine just what a man in your position has had to contend with," the Colonel replied. "German-American alliances here have got to be dispensed with. We are proud of men like you. I know hundreds and if I had been placed with the army and had been able to go to France there would have been several officers of German parentage on my staff. They are made, like you, of the right stuff."

Among those who were in the party were Major William Tutherley, Charles Scribner, Pemberton Berman, Guy Emerson, Grosvenor Farwell, Edgar M. Engel, Lionel F. Straus, James Warren Lane, Fred Sterry, Arthur and Russell J. Perrine.

PASS EXCESS PROFITS BILL.

Measure to Keep Down Prices of Necessaries Now Goes to Governor.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 2.—After an extended debate the Assembly passed the Wagner Excess Profits bill this afternoon by a vote of 80 to 45. The measure authorizes the State Food Commission to enact rules fixing the difference between purchase and selling prices of necessaries to prevent excessive profits. Provision is made against conflict with Federal regulations. The bill now goes to the Governor.

Senator Murphy's wire-tapping bill, which found its way to Governor Whitman last year only to be vetoed, again goes to the Governor, after being passed by the lower house today by an 87 to 26 vote. The bill makes it a misdemeanor to tap telephone wires without the consent of one of the parties to the conversation, except by written order of a Supreme Court Justice.

Assemblyman Meyer's Corrupt Practices bill, requiring campaign statements to be filed not later than five days before primary or election, was defeated by 102 to 11 votes.

The Senate Finance Committee this afternoon adopted a resolution calling for adjournment of the Legislature at noon Saturday, April 13.

ART NOTES.

F. Lynn Jenkins is showing portraits and other sculpture at the Reinhardt Galleries. The artist fuses very successfully the qualities of permanent character and momentary likeness in his portraiture. The marble bust of Mrs. William H. Nichols is a fine rendering of an interesting personality in which neither graciousness nor dignity is ignored. The bronze bust of William H. Nichols is compact and energetic in modeling; the charming marble portrait of little Gloria Gould ripples with the sensitive undulations of contour and promises of development characteristic of the childish type and very difficult to render; the sketch portrait of "Miss M. M." in colored plaster is vivacious and light.

The symbolic subjects, "Peace in Exile," "Enigma," &c., make a less positive impression. They show the influence of the antique, and one misses in their generalized forms the sense of that unremitting reference to nature upon which all satisfactory generalization must be based.

Old English Costumes.

At the Knoedler Galleries is an exhibition of water-color drawings of old English costumes by Purcell Jones, who has done interesting work for His Majesty's Theatre and the Ambassador's Theatre in London. Here are Lady Diana Manners and H. P. Irving, Lady Moira Osburne and Miss Evelyn Gordon and Miss Viola Tree as they appeared in "The Italian Masque"; English gothic costumes for Henry VI., Dukes and Duchesses, exquisites, courtesans, Ambassadors, and mummers of the James I. period and a group of Second Empire costumes. The artist has put good flesh and blood into these wooden corsets and heavy satins, the types fit the clothes, and the color is emphatic and full. It is a thoroughly rewarding and stimulating little exhibition in art of a kind that reaches and appeals to a large public. We are just now getting to the point of recognizing that a ballet costume may be as much a masterpiece of art as a painting or a statue, or the dance in which it plays its part. The field of art is not broadening, for it always was as wide as the world, but the field of intelligent appreciation of art in multitudinous forms of expression is attaining very satisfactory proportions.

Cuban Pictures by Randall Davey.

At the Montross Gallery are paintings by Randall Davey made during his recent visit to Cuba. Mr. Davey has taken immense pleasure in the negro type as he has found it on this agreeable island, and his portraits are marked by close research into the character of his subject. Most of the negress heads are of the coffee-brown complexion prevailing among the colored people in Cuba, and have also the typical expression of profound melancholy and gentleness. One little black boy, however, is blacker than any ace of spades, and the blue lights on his shining skin are like the high lights on burnished steel.

The color in the paintings has a tropical intensity, but the artist's palette has risen to a higher scale of values than he formerly used. He puts blue, yellow, and pink together with considerable daring, but justifies the combination by the delicacy and precision of his transitions. Above all, his present work shows the freshness of enthusiasm. Not a worn moment is recorded. It is all young and vigorous and wholesome and on the way to a fuller achievement. The exhibition lasts until April 13.

Liberty Committee Wants to Aid Buyers of Small Bonds.

CALLS FOR JOINT ACTION

Heads of All City Banks and Trust Companies Are Asked to Co-operate in Scheme.

The Liberty Loan Committee announced yesterday the preliminary steps of an important program for facilitating subscriptions to bonds of the third loan in small denomination through joint action by the national and State banks and trust companies throughout the city. It is proposed that the banks join in a $100,000,000 pool to carry bonds for subscribers to $50 and $100 pieces, and put into operation a new method for collecting the installment payments. The plan will permit persons who subscribe for bonds at one bank to make their payments at any other bank which joins the arrangement. In the preceding loans it was found that the partial payment plan in many cases imposed a hardship on workers and others who started their payments at one bank and afterward removed to another part of the city.

Benjamin Strong, Chairman of the Liberty Loan Committee, sent a letter yesterday to the President of every commercial banking institution, suggesting the formation of the money pool and describing the system for collecting payments. The proposal provides for the issue of coupon books to subscribers on the partial payment plan. When the books are presented at a bank, together with a payment on a bond, a coupon and its stub will be stamped by the bank. The coupon will then be sent with the money to a bureau representing all the participating banks, where the clerical work will be done. The Federal Reserve Bank engages to look after the bookkeeping details without expense either to the bond subscribers or the banks. The plan was devised by Arthur M. Anderson and associates in the Distribution Committee.

Chairman Strong sent a letter to the savings banks outlining the plan and asking their co-operation, but without asking their participation in the pool. It is proposed that the buyer of a $50 bond pay down $2 when he obtains a coupon book, while a $100 bond buyer will pay $4. There are forty-eight coupons at $2 each in the $100 book and forty-eight at $1 each in the $50 book. If any payment remains overdue for two weeks a notice will go to the subscriber, and if within a week thereafter the payment is not made, the purchaser will be deemed in default. The bond may then be sold at the market price, and after fifty weeks from the date of the agreement the purchaser, on surrender of the book with all unpaid coupons, will receive the proceeds of the sale of the bond less expenses and the amount of the unpaid coupons. The first coupon will be due the week of May 13. Selling agencies in all parts of the city will be instructed in the way of handling the coupons, so that subscribers will not have to go to a bank interested in the pool nor to a savings bank if an agency is more convenient.

The Liberty Loan campaign gathered speed yesterday. More than 1,000 prominent actors, actresses, and managers gathered at the Palace Theatre yesterday to hear Thomas W. Lamont of J. P. Morgan & Co. speak on the loan, and to complete their organization for the sale of bonds. Mr. Lamont said the members of the theatrical profession in England were sacrificing much in order to do their part in carrying the war. Daniel Frohman spoke as President of the Actors' Fund, and Colonel J. S. Dennis of the British Recruiting Mission, and Colonel Moses Greenwood also discussed the task of floating the loan. E. F. Albee, Chairman of the Theatrical Allied Interests Liberty Loan Committee, told the audience that the activity exerted for the flotation of the loan in every theatre would be directed by the local management.

The Liberty Loan Committee announced yesterday that an organization had been formed to help distribute the loan. This latest auxiliary to the bond-selling army is the Liberty Loan Legion. Through it at least 250,000 additional workers will be added to the force in the Federal Reserve District. Any person who obtains subscriptions for the third loan will be eligible for membership in the legion, and special recruiting work will be made among the subscribers to the first two loans.

The silk industry and associated interests completed an organization for forwarding the loan at a luncheon held at the Hotel Vanderbilt. Under the direction of William Skinner of William Skinner & Sons, fifty prominent men of the industry pledged themselves to exert every influence in distributing bonds, and began the movement by pledging among themselves subscriptions amounting to more than $3,000,000.

Jacob H. Schiff told the east side yesterday that every lover of democracy and human liberty must support the third Liberty Loan in order to protect the United States against German autocracy. Benjamin Strong, Chairman of the Liberty Loan Committee; A. B. Leech, and others addressed the meeting. The 200 auditors were the guests of Bernard K. Marcus, one of Mr. Leach's chief assistants, at a luncheon at the Bank of the United States, 77 Delancey Street.

"The United States," said Mr. Schiff, "has gone into this war for the things that have ever been dearest to the Jew—human liberty and democracy. The ambitions of Germany threaten a loss of these precious things to us. But Germany cannot win this war. Even if she defeats the Allies, the United States will fight on alone until doomsday if necessary until freedom and democracy are assured to this land and to the whole world."

PRIORITY FOR WAR MATERIAL

New Board Will Seek to Eliminate Department Competition.

WASHINGTON, April 2.—Creation of a Requirements Division, which will establish priority of delivery in raw and manufactured war materials, was announced today by the War Industries Board. The division will eliminate competition among Government departments in obtaining supplies.

A price-fixing program closely allied with priorities arrangement, soon to be put into effect, contemplates the organization of committees to pass on prices, consisting of members of the War Industries Board who are directly charged with the study of raw materials and manufactured products, a labor representative, the Chairman of the Federal Trade Commission, the Chairman of the Tariff Commission, and the Fuel Administrator.

The new priorities agency will be headed by Alexander Legge. Other members are Judge E. B. Parker, priorities; George N. Peek, finished products; J. L. Replogle, steel; Director Gifford, Council of National Defense; Colonel George H. Estes, War Department; Read Admiral Peoples, Navy Department; F. A. Brown of the Emergency Fleet Corporation, Shipping Board; C. Powell, Railroad Administration; B. Noyes, Fuel Administration; C. Merrill, Food Administration, and J. A. Carr, Allied Purchases Commission.

The representative for the Red Cross has not yet been selected.

RELIEF TO BANKS IN DRAIN FOR TAXES

Senate Committee Frames a Plan to Leave Government Funds on Local Deposit.

TO LESSEN COMING STRAIN

McCormick Offers Bill for Installment Payments of Excess Profits Taxes.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 2.—In response to pressure from banking interests and men of affairs for relief in the payment of income and excess profit taxes, which under the law must be made by July 1 next, the Senate Finance Committee has tentatively agreed upon an amendment to the Bond bill.

Several bills have been offered in Congress providing for the payment of these taxes in installments, but the Secretary of the Treasury has opposed the plan. He has agreed, however, to the proposed amendment, which permits reputable banks becoming Government depositories to hold on deposit all taxes paid through them and all money received from the sale of Government bonds until such time as the Treasury shall call for the funds thus deposited. This compromise, it is argued by the sponsors for the amendment now under consideration, will permit the money to remain in the localities where it is collected and will give the banks sufficient capital to relend to industries needing it.

The business community has been greatly disturbed for some time on account of apprehension that the Government would offer no relief from the condition which would follow the payment of the enormous taxes on one day.

The question of meeting the needs of banks and business men and at the same time acting with the approval of the Treasury Department was considered in the Finance Committee today. The suggestion was made, and is likely to be carried out by Treasury rulings, under legislative sanction to be embodied in the Bond bill, that all reputable financial institutions complying with the regulations may, upon application, be designated as Government depositories and obtain the privilege previously outlined.

The details of the plan and regulations will have to be worked out by the Treasury Department, but the result will be that there will be no actual turnover or transfer of cash or credits and consequently there will be no sudden and extraordinary demand on the financial world for the actual payment of heavy taxes on one day. Secretary McAdoo is expected to appear before the Finance Committee or send a letter explaining his position on the subject.

Representative Medill McCormick of Illinois, seeking to effect the same result as would be accomplished by the amendment under consideration by the Finance Committee of the Senate, introduced a bill in the House today to permit the payment of excess profit taxes in two installments, half before June 15 and the other half before Oct. 15. Discussing the need of legislation Mr. McCormick said:

"It is estimated that the income and excess profits taxes will bring in from $2,500,000,000 to $4,000,000,000. Under the present law these must be paid by July 1 next. In order to facilitate their payment the Treasury issued short-time tax certificates, of which approximately $1,-310,000,000 have been taken up. If the lowest estimate of the total of the income and excess profits taxes is correct, then business men of the country will have to pay, under present conditions, approximately $1,200,000,000 into the Treasury between now and July 1.

"In the same period they will be called upon to subscribe another $3,000,-000,000 in Liberty bonds and to give $100,000,000 to the Red Cross, as well as to finance their regular business enterprises.

"The Treasury, I am told, does not need the money so urgently that it is necessary to strain the credit of the country. If the Government should run short, the banks would better make advances on Treasury certificates, between June 15 and Oct. 15, than to thousands of taxpayers who must borrow to pay taxes. The interest on the certificate would be covered by the interest for which provision is made in my bill."

PASSES WAR FINANCE BILL.

House Also Amends Bond Bill to Clarify Bank Taxation.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 2.—The House today adopted the conference report on the War Finance Corporation bill, which now goes to the President for approval. Without opposition the conference report was accepted, as was the amendment offered by Representative Claude Kitchin to the bill authorizing the Third Liberty Bond issue. The House calendar was cleared of pending measures.

It was necessary to recall the Bond bill from the Senate for an amendment in order to clarify the language in the section exempting banks from State taxation to the amount of their holdings of Liberty Bonds. The bill as it had been prepared by the Treasury officials originally exempted banks from State taxes only on Liberty Bonds, but as it passed the House last week it was interpreted by the Treasury officials as exempting banks from all State and local taxation.

Representative Kitchin explained the changes that were proposed to be made in the Bond bill, and the House quickly recalled the bill from the Senate and amended it along the lines originally suggested by the Treasury officials. As amended by the House today banks are exempted from local taxation in proportion to the amount of Government bonds held. In other words, in determining the value of the shares of a bank for State taxation, there shall be a percentage deduction equal to the percentage of Liberty Bonds which the bank holds in relation to its gross assets.

The section as it appeared in the bill which passed the House last Thursday read:

"In determining the value of the shares of any national bank, State bank, trust company, or other banking institution for the purpose of taxation by any State or any of the possessions of the United States or any local taxing authority, the par amount of any bonds or other interest-bearing obligations of the United States owned by such bank, trust company, or banking institution, shall be deducted from its assets."

After recalling the bill from the Senate, the House amended the section as follows:

"In determining the value of the shares of any national bank, State bank, trust company, or other banking institution, for the purpose of taxation by any State or any of the possessions of the United States or any local taxing authority, there shall be deducted an amount equal to the same proportion of the value of the shares as the par amount of any bonds or other interest-bearing obligations of the United States issued during the present war, owned by such bank or trust company, or banking institution, bears to its gross accounts."

Miss Pettit Weds E. H. Edinger.

The wedding of Miss Elizabeth V. Pettit of 145 West 103d Street, daughter of Walter John Pettit, and Ernest H. Edinger of Jersey City, took place last evening at the Central Baptist Church.

Miss Ruth Pettit was her sister's maid of honor, and the Misses Beatrice and Carlisla Edinger, Emily and Olga Luhan, Georgia Atwarer and Elsie Firor were the bridesmaids.

Sergeant Franklin G. Dunham, U. S. A., stationed at Camp Sheridan, acted as best man, and the ushers were William D. Brooks, Frederick J. Benedict, Wallace D. Newman, Jack Litt, Ensign Theodora Schulte, and Millard J. Bloomer. A reception followed at the Hotel Marseilles.

The bride is a former student of Columbia. Mr. Edinger is a graduate of Columbia, also of the Columbia Law School.

Sgt. Maj. Gordon, on Furlough, Weds

William R. Gordon, a battalion Sergeant Major of the 59th United States Infantry, arrived in New Rochelle, N. Y., yesterday on a ten days' furlough from Camp Greene, Charlotte, N. C. An hour after his arrival he was married to Miss Ethel E. Drummond, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mathew Drummond, in St. Paul's Church, New Rochelle, by the Rev. Frederick Wammersey. Mr. Gordon is a son of Frederick C. Gordon, head of the Gordon Studios, of this city.

Miss Leonard, Yeoman, to Marry.

Captain Edgar C. Leonard of the Quartermaster's Department, connected with the Adjutant General's office at Albany, and Mrs. Leonard of that city announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Katharine Leonard, to John Addison Perkins of New York. Miss Leonard was graduated from Barnard College and is a yeoman in the United States Naval Reserve. With her sister, Miss Ruth Leonard, she has been living in this city the last three years. Mr. Perkins is a son of John B. Perkins, editor of The Sioux City Journal of Sioux City, Iowa, and Mrs. Perkins. He was graduated from the University of Wisconsin.

To be Bride of Lieutenant Hustis.

The engagement of Miss Elise Wood, daughter of Mrs. Philip M. Wood of Jamaica, L. I., to Lieutenant James Humphrey Hustis, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. James H. Hustis of Winchester, Mass., has been announced. Lieutenant Hustis is a graduate of Harvard, class of '15. His father is President of the Boston & Maine Railroad.

TWO SPY SUSPECTS NOW IN HOSPITALS

Mme. Nix Faces Operation at Ellis Island—"Baron" de Clairmont at Bellevue.

UNLISTED MAY BE INTERNED

Federal Officials Check Up Police Records Preparatory to Roundup —Nearing Files Demurrer.

Surgeons in the Ellis Island hospital who attended Despina Davidowitch Storch, also known as the Countess de Beville, during her fatal illness after her arrest on the suspicion that she had co-operated with German agents, said last night that Elizabeth Charlotte Nix, who was arrested with Mme. Storch on the same suspicion by agents of the Department of Justice, was also seriously ill in the Ellis Island hospital, and that an operation would be necessary to save her life.

A few hours before Mme. Nix was taken to the hospital on Ellis Island, where her illness was diagnosed as appendicitis, "Baron" Robert de Clairmont, who was also arrested by the Secret Service Bureau on the day the two women were taken to Ellis Island, was taken to Bellevue Hospital, suffering from gastric trouble.

Officials at Ellis Island who had attended Mme. Storch when she was ill with pneumonia, before her death on Saturday, repeated yesterday that there was nothing suspicious in the illness of either woman. It was said that, although a definite diagnosis of the case of Mme. Nix as appendicitis would be made today surgeons were sure of their first diagnosis. It was said that an operation would be necessary at once, and that Mme. Nix had consented to the operation.

Assistant Attorney General William Wallace, Jr., in charge of the Federal Alien Enemy Bureau for the New York District, is now checking up the police lists of registered enemy aliens, to ascertain the probable number of unregistered subjects of the Kaiser now living or doing business in the district. As soon as Mr. Wallace completes this work the round-up of those Germans who have defied the order of the Government to register will begin, and those who are found to have willfully refused to register will be interned for the period of the war.

Morris Hillquit, attorney for Scott Nearing, the peace agitator, now under indictment for violating the Espionage Act, filed a demurrer to the indictment in the United States District Court yesterday. Argument on the demurrer will be heard some time next week. Mr. Hillquit alleges that the court failed to designate the person or persons in the army or navy among whom the defendant is alleged to have sought to cause insubordination or mutiny. Another defect alleged by the attorney is that the specific charges in the pamphlet, which are made the basis of the charge are not cited. Nearing's counsel further contends that the Government must show in what manner the alleged crime was committed. A fourth objection is that in the conspiracy section of the indictment, the American Socialist Society and Nearing are improperly joined, and a final objection is that no overt act upon the part of either is specified.

Toronto Ship Plant Burns.

TORONTO, April 2.—The entire plant of the Thor Iron Works on the waterfront, at the foot of Bathurst Street, was destroyed by fire tonight. The company has been engaged almost exclusively in shipbuilding since the war began. A large vessel, almost ready to launch, which was on the runways, was saved by the firemen.

TO REBUILD WAR CRIPPLES.

Reconstruction Work Urged by Red Cross Institute Head.

Douglas C. McMurtie, in charge of the Red Cross Institute for Crippled and Disabled Men, was the principal speaker at yesterday's session in the Academy of Medicine of the New York Conference on Hospital Social Service's special course on physical and mental handicaps. Mr. McMurtie emphasized by means of lantern slides, illustrating what has been done on the other side and what his institution hopes to accomplish for America's war maimed when once those unfortunates begin arriving in this country.

The speaker devoted much of his talk to an exposition of the necessity for the "reconstruction work" for war cripples being made a national work, Government supported and Government directed. He said that Canada alone of all the countries at war had started on a national basis, and that the results there had justified making the undertaking one of official concern.

Miss Florence S. Sullivan of the Rhinelander School, which cares for crippled boys, was the other speaker of the afternoon. She told of the encouragement that disabled youths derive from contact with similar unfortunates, who after proper training have made new successes of their lives.

Put Watch on B. R. T. Schedule.

Superintendent of Plant and Structure Delaney has assigned a force of men to keep tabs on all of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company's cars and trains which start for the Manhattan end of the various bridges and then turn back at Sands Street without completing the distance. The order came from Mayor Hylan, who said in a letter of instructions to Mr. Delaney that passengers were very badly treated by the railroad company, and that the practice of dumping passengers out at any place the company pleased had to stop. Signs have been posted at the Sands Street terminal inviting passengers to make complaint whenever they were compelled to transfer from one car to another.

CAROLYN WELLS MARRIES.

Author Is Wed to Hadwin Houghton, Son of Late Publisher.

The marriage of Hadwin Houghton, a son of the late Bernard Houghton, who was with the publishing firm of Houghton Mifflin & Co. of Boston, and Miss Carolyn Wells, the author, and daughter of Mrs. William E. Wells of Rahway, N. J., was celebrated yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Sprague, 241 West End Avenue, the Rev. Huber Gray Beuhler, Head Master of the Hotchkiss Preparatory School at Lakeville, Conn., performing the ceremony in the presence of the nearest relatives and a few close friends.

Miss Wells, in blue chiffon brocade in blue velvet over blue metal cloth, topped by a large black lace hat and carrying clusters of la France roses, was attended by her young niece, Miss Marjorie Wells of Brooklyn, in la France pink, and two little flower girls, Althea Sprague, daughter of Mrs. Sprague, and Miss Beuhler, the daughter of the officiating clergyman, in white organdie frocks with quaint fichus, carrying baskets of roses. Herbert Wells gave his sister in marriage.

SPIRITED MATCHES MARK PROGRESS OF NATIONAL INDOOR TENNIS TITLE TOURNEY

VOSHELL HAS KEEN MATCH WITH JUNIOR

Indoor Tennis Champion Forced to Close Three-Set Contest by Gerald Emerson.

ROSENBAUM BEATS SHAFER

Gains Victory at 7—5, 2—6, 6—1 —Spirited Play Marks Opening of Title Event in Doubles.

Several spirited matches marked the play in the national indoor tennis championships at the Seventh Regiment Armory yesterday. That the younger tennis players are already beginning to challenge some of the leading experts, in point of skill, was once again demonstrated in the match between S. Howard Voshell, the national indoor champion, and Gerald B. Emerson. Voshell, one of the most accomplished players hereabouts, was pressed to a three-set match before overcoming his younger rival, who was at all times threatening. The score of the encounter was 6—3, 4—6, 9—7.

In justice to the title holder it must be said that he was not playing anywhere near to the form that he displayed on his first appearance in the tournament. The effect of lack of practice was evident in his work and his muscles seemed tied up a bit because of the exertion in Monday's contests. As a result Emerson, with a fine brand of tennis, was able to carry the match along to a close conclusion.

Dr. William Rosenbaum, who frequently comes into the limelight with a trick racquet, stood to the fore yesterday without having to call into the game his freak invention. In fact, he scored a notable triumph when he disposed of G. Carleton Shafer, a veteran of many former tournaments, for the indoor title, at 7—5, 2—6, 6—1. Rosenbaum showed once more, to the satisfaction of the gallery, that when he is going at top speed his play is to be feared. Shafer found this true to his discomfiture.

In the first set Rosenbaum raced along to an early lead at 4—2, and was still ahead at 5—4, but Shafer was able to pull even. Shafer was serving the next game, and Rosenbaum, with a spirited net attack, succeeded in breaking through, and, by winning his own service, clinched the set. The sting of defeat served as a spur to Shafer, who played a whirlwind game in the second set, completely smothering Rosenbaum's efforts at defense. In the final set Shafer won the opening game, but thereafter was called to face a fire of shots from Rosenbaum's racquet that swiftly forced him into submission.

Only two other matches were played in singles. Frederick B. Alexander of international fame swept through to victory over Harry S. Parker of the Hockaway Hunting Club in straight sets. The score was 6—3, 6—4. Alexander, even though out of practice, showed flashes of the finished play for which he is famous, and Parker's game could not stand up before it. In another match H. H. Manchester succeeded in defeating Carrol J. Post, Jr., by 6—0, 6—3.

All the victors in yesterday's competition are now in the round before the semi-finals. Alexander and Rosenbaum are in the upper half of the draw, and the winner will meet William T. Tilden, 2d, in the semi-final round, the latter having already secured his bracket.

The doubles tournament opened yesterday, and the play in the first round was rather better than usual. One of the ranking doubles teams of two years ago, S. Howard Voshell and Fred C. Baggs, went down to defeat in the first clash, which was against Arthur S. Cragin and W. Dixon Cunningham. Baggs was far from being in condition for a hard match, and, with Voshell somewhat tired because of his exertions in the singles, the usual strength of the team was lacking. Cragin and Cunningham won by a score of 6—4, 6—4.

The summaries:

Singles—Third Round—Dr. William Rosenbaum defeated G. Carleton Shafer, 7—5, 2—6, 6—1; Frederick B. Alexander defeated Harry S. Parker, 6—3, 6—4; S. Howard Voshell defeated Gerald B. Emerson, 6—3, 4—6, 9—7; H. H. Manchester defeated Carroll J. Post, 6—3, 6—4.

Doubles—First Round—Arthur S. Cragin and W. Dixon Cunningham defeated S. H. Voshell and Fred C. Baggs, 6—4, 6—4; King Smith and G. Carleton Shafer defeated H. R. James and M. Goldman, 6—1, 6—2; Allan Behr and Vincent Richards defeated J. L. Anderson and Julian S. Myrick, 6—3, 6—3; W. T. Tilden, 2d, and Cecil Donaldson defeated G. H. Emerson and F. T. Anderson, Jr., 6—3, 6—2; W. J. Clothier and R. B. Marcomb defeated Abraham Bareford, Jr., and Abraham Bareford, 3d, 7—5, 6—1, 6—2; Frederick F. Alexander and Dr. William Rosenbaum defeated Ingo Hartman and H. H. Manchester, 6—4, 6—3.

Second Round—W. T. Tilden and Cecil Donaldson defeated Allan Behr and Vincent Richards, 2—6, 6—3, 6—2.

NEW BILLIARD BODY GROWS.

Officers Elected and Two Tournaments Will Begin Next Week.

At the second meeting of the newly formed American Amateur Billiard Association, a rival to the National Association of Amateur Billiard Players, at Maurice Daly's Academy last night, the full list of officers was elected. William Gershel was named President of the association at a meeting last week. The additional officers elected last night were Edgar S. Appleby, First Vice President; John E. Lewis, Second Vice President; Shepard G. Barclay, Secretary, and Charles McCarthy, Treasurer. No Executive Committee has thus far been elected, but a committee to draw up a constitution and by-laws was appointed last night. It includes, in addition to the officers of the association, Arthur R. Townsend, a former Class A champion; Hal Coleman, a former Class B champion, and Lawrence L. Strauss.

An Advisory Committee composed of three roomkeepers was appointed. This is made up of John Doyle, Maurice Daly, and Joseph Thum.

The meeting decided to start immediately two metropolitan championship events, one in balkline and the other at three cushions. They will be run simultaneously, starting next Monday. Seven rooms will have entrants in the balkline event and there will be eight rooms represented in the three-cushion event. William Gershel and Charles P. Conway will be the entrants from Daly's two rooms in the balkline tournament, John E. Lewis will represent Thum's, Hal Coleman, Canfield's, and David Welner or M. Isaacs, Osborne's. Arthur R. Townsend will also probably play in the tournament. The Morningside Academy has not as yet nominated an entrant. The same rooms will send entrans forth in the three-cushion event.

It was announced last night that Ferdinand A. Unger, recent winner of the National Class C championship, under the auspices of the National Association of Amateur Billiard Players, had joined the rival organization.

SERVATIUS DEFEATS LEWIS.

Veteran Billiardist Victor in Poggenburg Memorial.

The veteran billiardist, Louis A. Servatius, started off well in the final round robin of the Poggenburg Memorial handicap billiard event at the Brooklyn Billiard Academy last night when he defeated Claude R. Lewis by a score of 115 to 105. The victory was particularly gratifying to Servatius, not alone from the fact that it placed him a step nearer to victory in the tournament but because it is the first time that he has ever been able to vanquish Lewis in tournament competition. A match was scheduled between Jacob Klinger and George Spear, but the former, through a misunderstanding, did not appear for the event, and rather than default him it was decided to play three games tomorrow.

A protest was lodged with the Executive Committee. This came from George T. Moon, Jr., President of the National Association of Amateur Billiard Players, who was a contestant in the tournament. In one of the divisional round robin tournaments which decided those who were to compete in the final round robin Moon was tied on games won and lost with George Spear and Jacob Klinger. The application of the so-called Olympic system of scoring, which takes the total number of points into consideration in the event of a tie, gave Moon the low total.

The scores of yesterday's match were:

L. A. Servatius. (115)—2 5 0 3 9 5 0 1 0 1 1 0 3 0 1 4 1 1 1 0 0 1 2 1 1 9 4 0 5 2 3 0 1 0 0 0 1 3 2. Total—115. Average—2 27-39. High runs—14 and 12.

SHAWKEY ENLISTS IN NAVY.

Accepted as Chief Yeoman and Is Lost to Yankees.

PHILADELPHIA, April 2.—Bob Shawkey, pitcher of the New York American League baseball team, enlisted here today as a chief yeoman in the Naval Reserve. Shawkey went South with the Yankees on the training trip last month, but left the team upon receiving notice that a local draft board had placed him in Class 1. His home is in this city.

PRATT AND LAVAN SUIT UPSET LEAGUE

Ban Johnson, Colonel Ruppert, Huggins, and Griffith Worked to Settle the Action.

The whole American League would have been set topsy-turvy if strong influences had not been brought to bear to bring about the settlement of the slander suit brought by Derrill Pratt, the Yankees' second baseman, and John Lavan against Phil Ball, the owner of the St. Louis Browns. It now develops that, when the case was settled a few days ago, Manager Miller Huggins of the Yankees, Ban Johnson, President of the American League, and Manager Clarke Griffith of the Washington Club were instrumental in influencing Pratt and John Lavan to accept a settlement.

Pratt's attorneys, in working up their client's case, planned to call every player of note in the American League. As the trial would not come up until after the baseball season started, this would have caused no end of trouble in the league, and might have resulted in a disarrangement of the schedule. It would have forced players out of the game just at a time when they would have been the most needed.

It now develops that Colonel Ruppert of the Yankees flatly refused to negotiate for Pratt until the suit was disposed of, but he finally consented to allow Manager Huggins to sign Pratt under the pressing need of a second baseman for his club, believing that Huggins would be able to persuade Pratt to accept a settlement instead of having the affair aired in the courts. Huggins advised Pratt to settle the suit from the first.

Ban Johnson, when he heard that the two players had planned to call nearly all the players in the American League to the stand to testify as to their characters, became alarmed. He hurried to St. Louis to smooth the matter out. Johnson and Business Manager Bobby Quinn worked on the St. Louis end of the case, while Huggins got busy with Pratt at Macon and Clarke Griffith used words of persuasion on John Lavan at the Washington Club's camp at Atlanta, Ga. It was mainly through the advice of Huggins that Pratt finally consented to a settlement.

This satisfactory disposal of the case brought to a close one of the most unusual lawsuits in the history of baseball. Pratt and Lavan each sued Owner Ball for $25,000 damages as the outcome of a purported interview with Owner Ball in a St. Louis newspaper last September. On Sept. 4 the Browns were beaten, 13 to 6, by the Chicago White Sox, who were then fighting for the American League pennant. The Chicago team scored eight runs in the eighth inning.

In the alleged interview President Ball was quoted as accusing several of his players of "laying down." On the following day the players refused to put on their uniforms unless Ball issued a retraction. This Ball did, claiming that his was misquoted on several matters. Several days later Pratt and Lavan filed suit against Ball. In his disposition given in the suit Ball characterized the purported interview as "a garbled account of a one-sided interview."

GOLF MEDAL TO SCOFIELD.

Wee Burn Player Leads Field in North and South Tourney.

Special to The New York Times.

PINEHURST, N. C., April 2.—E. L. Scofield of Wee Burn won the qualifying medal in the North and South amateur championship tournament at Pinehurst today, completing the thirty-six holes in 151 strokes. He led the field by a margin of 8 strokes. Scofield had a 77 on the championship course yesterday, and played the No. 1 course in 77, 37—74 today. He holed a full massie for a 2 on the par 4 second hole.

FORDHAM NINE TRIUMPHS.

Maroons Defeat In-Er-Seals by 5 to 0 in Practice Game.

Fordham registered a shutout victory over the In-Er-Seals in the practice game played between the two nines yesterday on Fordham Field. The score was 5 to 0. Jim McQuade, the Maroon veteran twirler, had his first endurance test and went through the full game in fine style. He allowed only three hits and whiffed eleven of the opponents.

This score:

Fordham	0 0 4 0 1 0 0 0 —5

YANKS VICTORIOUS AGAIN.

Defeat Braves by 2 to 1 in Game of Much Chatter.

Special to The New York Times.

MACON, Ga., April 2.—The Yanks defeated the Braves again today, and a rowdy game of baseball it was, with the score 2 to 1. The Braves furnished the sideline chatter, including a deal of umpire baiting.

Love pitched well for the Yanks, but Monroe and Thormahlen were close to blowing up several times, and were saved by fine fielding. In the last inning Thormahlen hit the first two batters with nobody out, but Wilson hit into a double play, and the fussy Mr. Henry filed to Gilhooley.

EDGE NAMES BOXING BOARD.

New Jersey Governor Appoints Cann, Crain, and Smith as Commissioners.

TRENTON, N. J., April 2.—W. E. Cann of Elizabeth, George S. Crain of East Orange, and John S. Smith of Atlantic City were today appointed by Governor Edge as the commission under which eight-round boxing bouts, recently legalized by the State Legislature, are to be conducted.

On Saturday Governor Edge will outline to the Commissioners the general policy to be pursued. A statement from the Governor's office today said that bouts supervised by the commission must be conducted in such a way as to avert any justifiable criticism.

Greenleaf Outplays Concannon.

Ralph Greenleaf played pocket billiards of remarkable quality in the continuation of his match with Joseph Concannon at Maurice Daly's Academy yesterday. In the afternoon he pocketed 150 balls while Concannon was getting 100, and in the evening won by 100 to 27. In the afternoon match Greenleaf who now leads by a total score of 400 to 327, made high runs of 67 and 62.

C.C.N.Y. BOWS TO ST. JOHN'S

Manhattan Collegians Overwhelmed in Baseball Game by 10 to 0.

The St. John's College baseball team partly retrieved itself for the defeats it has suffered in the first two games of its schedule, by trouncing the C. C. N. Y. nine on the Brooklyn institution's field yesterday by the one-sided score of 10 to 0.

Lou Waters, the St. John's southpaw, pitched in excellent form and received good support. The City College clan showed a brand of playing that was just the reverse, frequent errors contributing to their defeat.

The score by innings:

	R.	H.	E.
St. John's	1 1 0 0 0 6 0 2 .—10	8	0
C. C. N. Y.	0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0—0	3	4

COLUMBIA NINE WINNER.

Morningside Lads Defeat Interborough Team in Practice Fray, 3 to 1.

Even Cy Seymour, the ex-Giant, playing first base for the Interboroughs, Manhattan Division, failed to stem the Columbia nine yesterday afternoon when the teams met in a practice game on Solith Field, and the Morningside boys won their second affair of the season by a 3-to-1 score.

The score by innings:

STRUGGLE FOR MAT TITLES.

Local Amateur Wrestlers Begin Tourney at Crescent A. C.

Amateur wrestlers of the local district opened their annual tournament for the Metropolitan Association A. A. U. championships last night at the Crescent Athletic Club in Brooklyn, and in a series of matches that lasted well after midnight, furnished a large crowd of members of the New Moon Club with interesting exhibitions. C. Johnson, champion in the 145-pound class, and G. Mulinos, 125-pound title holder, were among the successful wrestlers. Johnson won referee's decision over B. Neilson, Norwegian-American A. C., after ten minutes of interesting grappling, and Mulinos scored a decision over E. Benson of the Swedish-American A. C.

A. Schuezler of the Hungarian-American A. C., scored a quick fall over M. Sellman, Bush Terminal Y. M. C. A., in their match at 145 pounds. Schuezler downed his rival in 1:57 with a body scissors and head lock.

In the 158-pound class another champion was successful when J. Molinos, Hungarian-American A. C., threw W. Linch, Kaleva A. C., in 1:57.

The summaries:

145-Pound Class.—J. Skogland, Norwegian-American A. C., threw D. Collios, Greek-American A. C., with a body hold in 4:50; M. Bloomfield, unattached, threw J. C., defeated Dinati Paccione, Fort Jay, U. S. Army, referee's decision, 10:00; A. L. Schuezler, Hungarian-American A. C., threw E. Sellman, Bush Terminal Y. M. C. A., with a body scissors and head lock in 1:57; Carl Carlson, unattached, defeated Harry Klein, Hungarian-American A. C., referee's decision, 10:00; C. Johnson, Finnish-American A. C., defeated B. Nielson, Norwegian-American A. C., referee's decision, 10:00; T. Bariah, unattached, defeated F. Nelson, Finnish-American A. C., referee's decision, 10:00; G. Grimstad, Norwegian-American A. C., threw P. Borovopzky, Hungarian-American A. C., with a double arm lock in 1:14.

Second Trials.—Skogland defeated Bloomfield, referee's decision, 10:00

125-Pound Class.—A. J. Pascarella, U. S. Navy, threw J. Brasier, Jr., Bush Terminal Y. M. C. A., with a half-Nelson and body hold, in 5:27; L. Glitz, Greek-American A. C., threw G. Grim, Eastern District Y. M. C. A., with a double bar lock, in 7:40; G. Mulinos, Greek-American A. C., defeated E. Benson, Swedish-American A. C., referee's decision, 10:00; J. George, Greek-American A. C., threw C. Blesch, unattached, with a near arm and body hold, in 2:56.

158-Pound Class.—S. Reynolds, Norwegian-American A. C., defeated H. Hansen, Atlas A. C., referee's decision, 10:00; J. Tuominen, Finnish-American A. C., threw J. Abrahamson, Central Y. M. C. A., with a near half-Nelson and body hold, in 4:06; J. Molnar, Hungarian-American A. C., threw W. Linch, Kaleva A. C., with a body hold, in 1:57; J. Colisns, Greek-American A. C., defeated W. Bonver, unattached, referee's decision, 10:00.

Like Mother, Like Child

The health of the nursing child mirrors the health of its mother. Rich, red mother-blood means a richly nourished, vigorous baby. Thin, weak mother-blood means a poor-blooded baby, and life goes hard with a poor-blooded baby. The nursing mother will find Gude's Pepto-Mangan a splendid general tonic, appetizer, and blood food.

Gude's Pepto-Mangan

"The Red Blood Builder"

Gude's Pepto-Mangan helps to build the blood from its very foundation, the red cells. It aids in increasing their number and power to carry life-giving oxygen to every organ, cell, and tissue of the body.

Thousands of physicians have prescribed Gude's Pepto-Mangan for weak and run-down people of all ages, and millions of men, women and children have used Gude's Pepto-Mangan. It is easily digested, promptly assimilated by the blood, and exceedingly pleasant to the taste.

Friendly Warning: There are many imitations of Pepto-Mangan on the market, but you can be sure of getting the genuine if it bears the name "Gude" and is put up in the bottle and sealed package as pictured here. Ask for it by its full name—"Gude's Pepto-Mangan." For sale at all drug stores.

Women's Fancy Underwear.

With the return of buyers to town after Easter week very substantial buying of fancy underwear for women has set in, according to reports from manufacturers in this city. Nightgowns and one and two piece pajamas also figure extensively in this business, it is said. For nightgowns, delicately figured voiles, both in white and in flesh color, are proving to be very popular. Crepe de chine as well as voile is apparently well sought in pajama lines. In fancy underwear of whatever sort, both black and white seem to be entirely neglected for fine silks in pink and lavender.

Organdie and Voile Dresses.

Dresses of organdie and of cotton voile are said to be having a very considerable run of popularity in the general Spring trade. Local manufacturers report that they have received since Easter a number of reorders for garments of this sort, indicating that they have been moving over the counter in the retail trade very well. They are taken in a wide variety of colors, both light and dark shades. Semi-fitted effects with three-quarter length sleeves, pleated skirts, and satin sashes in a contrasting shade are some of the more popular features of these frocks.

Popular Cape Materials.

Women's capes, which have quite suddenly become so generally popular, are preferred in such fabrics as serge, broadcloth, tricotin, and satin. According to reports from the trade in this city, the most favored colors in these fabrics are navy blue, pearl gray, champagne, and the new olive drab. Some of these capes are made with large adjustable collars, others have the straight military collar, and a few are made without any collar at all. They seem to be selling in about the order mentioned. Fancy silks in striking colors, sometimes solid, sometimes a mixture of bright hues, are usually employed for lining.

Features in Separate Skirts.

Separate skirts, made of pongee silk, satin, Oriental silks, taffetas, and the firmer crêpe de chine weaves, are said to have a very heavy pre-Easter sale. Local manufacturers report that these materials have now demonstrated beyond question that they are by far the best sellers of the season. Orders are already coming in from retailers all over the country for additional supplies of these skirts, and it is expected that business of this sort will become greater as the season develops. Quite a variety of colors has been selling. The leaders among them are said to be pale pink, light green, yellow, sky blue, and lavender. Pleated models are very much in vogue and stripes and checks of the colors mentioned, usually on a white background, are popular.

Easter Millinery Sales Large.

Reports from the local stores indicate that the Easter business in millinery far exceeded even the most optimistic expectations of the buyers. Due to the present vogue for trimmings, business was excellent in all branches. Flower-trimmed hats proved to be the most popular with women, and transparent hats also did well. Nice sales of shapes in lisere and milan, with Georgette, velvet and satin facings, are told of as well. Of the colors, all shades of light or dark blue, brown, black, and, to some extent, red, were the best sellers. For tailored wear were sold hats with trimmings of wings or quills, burnt ostrich or ostrich bandings, jaunty ribbon bows, pompoms and fancies. Untrimmed hats reflected the goods business done in the trimmed ones.

Furs Go On Show Today.

Today will be "show day" at the warehouse of the New York Fur Auction Sales Corporation, 48 and 52 Great Jones Street, where the furs to be sold at the Spring auction, which begins in the Masonic Temple here on Monday next, will be placed on view. The collection, which is expected to bring well above $3,000,000 at the sale, is the largest ever offered at an auction in this city, and it is estimated that six days' selling will be required to dispose of it. From the viewpoint of the quality of the skins to be offered, the coming sale will also be notable. The collection of silver fox is larger and better than any previously sold here, and the same is true of red fox, white fox, and American opossum. The offering of muskrat skins, which will be of good size in spite of the current shortage, will contain a number of extra fine black pelts.

Gray Goods Prices Very Firm.

Prices continued very firm in the local gray goods market yesterday in spite of the lack of snap to trading, and in some cases new levels were reached. Spot and nearby sales of 38½-inch 64-60s were made at 17¼ cents, which was a quarter higher than paid for similar deliveries on Monday. One of the interesting things heard of during the day was the sale of a limited quantity of 38¼-inch 60-72s, for October delivery, at 16 cents. Twenty-two cents is being asked for nearby shipments of 48-square, four-yard sheetings, largely due to activities of Red Cross buyers on this construction. Some mills are sold up on those goods until Jan. 1. This is the way printcloth prices closed:

39-inch, 72-76s	21c	28½-inch, 64-56s	16½c
39-inch, 68-72s	19c	38½-inch, 60-52s	18c
30-inch, 56-44s	14¾c	38½-inch, 60-48s	15½c
38½-inch, 64-64s	17¾c	27-inch, 64-60s	12½c

Charge Accounts "Legitimate."

Apropos the statement recently made in this column, on the authority of certain local retail credit men, that more than the usual number of charge accounts were asked for this year before Easter, the question has come up in certain quarters as to just how "legitimate" these applications were. It was said, for instance, that just before Easter and just before Christmas the stores are always asked for charge accounts by persons who have not ready money enough to buy what they want and who hope in this way to get it and postpone payment until the bills are rendered some time later. It was said yesterday by local credit authority, however, that there were fewer of this type of applications than usual this year because well-posted men have discouraged them in the recent past. As a result, he said, practically all of the charge accounts now granted are "legitimate," and are not sought as means of deferring payments.

Coal Plans Meet with Favor.

The Coal Trade Journal will say today that the decision arrived at by the Fuel Administration not so very long ago, to let practical coal men have more to say about trade regulations, has already resulted in a number of beneficial changes. A case in point is the recent announcement that the anthracite output will be prorated among the various markets on the basis of the 1916-1917 distribution, instead of using 1917-1918 as a guide. The reason 1916-1917 was selected was because at that time conditions were more nearly normal than in the coal year just ended. For the last two weeks the Central Pennsylvania bituminous region has been alive with buyers who were attracted there by the possibility of closing contracts or purchasing larger or smaller tonnages for shipment after April 1.

Will Try to Standardize Colors.

A meeting of the officials of all the trade associations in the women's wear industry will be held Friday noon at the Waldorf-Astoria to discuss the question of standardizing colors. The meeting is called by Frederick Bode, President of the Textile Color Card Association of the United States, and grew out of a preliminary conference on the subject that was held recently under the auspices of the United Waist League of America and was attended by leading factors in the women's wear trade. The purpose of the meeting will be to coordinate the various industries on the question of colors, a movement that is being undertaken for the first time. It will also be attended by manufacturers of hosiery, shoes, millinery, gloves, &c. It is planned later to obtain the cooperation of the country's leading dyestuff makers.

BUSINESS SITUATION SOUND

Failures for First Quarter of 1918 Small and Liabilities Light.

The soundness of the general business situation is attested by reports to the mercantile agencies, covering the first three months of 1918.

"Notwithstanding various factors calculated to enhance the business mortality," says R. G. Dun & Co., "commercial failures in the United States during the first quarter of 1918 make the best numerical exhibit for the period of fully a decade, and the liabilities are the smallest since 1909. Exclusive of banking and other fiduciary suspensions, the insolvencies number 3,240, and involve $40,195,300 of defaulted indebtedness, against 3,937 for $52,307,000 in the corresponding three months last year and 5,387 for $61,492,749 in 1916.

"Comparing with the high record of 7,216 reverses for $105,703,355 in the opening quarter of 1915, the present returns disclose a 55 per cent. reduction in number and a contraction of nearly as much in amount, while the average for the five years prior to 1915 was about 4,300 failures for $70,000,000. The first quarter's statement, as usual, shows larger totals than in the last quarter of 1917, but the numerical increase is less than in many years, and the statistics seem all the more gratifying when the extraordinary weather and transportation conditions of January and early February, which caused general derangement of business and delays in meeting financial obligations, are considered."

AGREE ON PERSONAL PROPERTY TAX HERE

Senator Boylan Introduces Measures for Tariff of $1.10 Per $100.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 2.—To relieve tax burdens in New York City, municipal authorities and New York real estate interests, after a conference here today, agreed upon a bill providing for a personal property tax of $1.10 on $100. Senator Boylan of New York introduced the measure. He attempted to advance it to final passage immediately, but was balked on objection of Senator Nicolls, which brought from Minority Leader Wagner a threat, that if the objection was persisted in, he would attempt to block the advancement of all other legislation.

In addition to the Boylan bill, the conference agreed upon a listing measure which would require all persons having over $3,000 in personal property to file a statement in the New York City Tax Department before July 1, and that the tax on that property should be paid before Jan. 1. The tax on real estate will depend on the amount of money thus collected. It was also decided to push the bill limiting the tax on real estate to a rate of $1.75, although it was declared that this would not be necessary if the personal property tax and the listing measure went through.

Those who attended today's conference included Controller Charles L. Craig, Jacob A. Cantor, President of the City Tax Commission; Commissioners Louis A. Swazey and George H. Payne, Assistant Corporation Counsel McGoldrick, Lawrence McGuire, and E. P. Doyle of the Real Estate Board, Robert E. Dowling, President of the City Investing Company, and Walter Linder, representing the Title and Trust Company.

After the Senate adjourned a hearing on the Boylan Tax bills was held before the Senate Taxation and Retrenchment Committee, at which Mr. Dowling declared the measures were absolutely necessary to relieve the situation in New York. He said that the "group of internationalists, living mainly on the east side, hold real estate and property interests at their mercy in New York City."

State Tax Commissioner Merrill said that unless steps were taken to relieve the tax burdens in New York City socialism would be increased when the war is over to an extent hitherto unknown. The Commissioner said that constructive and not legislative work is needed to bring about adequate relief from excessive taxes.

A. C. Pleydell of the New York Tax Reform Association was among the opposition.

Bolt Manufacturers Meet Here.

Representatives of more than thirty of the most prominent firms in the country engaged in manufacturing nuts, bolts, and rivets, organized as the Nut, Bolt and Rivet Institute, met yesterday at the Waldorf-Astoria and engaged in a preliminary discussion regarding some of the problems facing the members of the organization growing out of the shipbuilding program of the Government. At the meeting to be held today the wage question is expected to be one of the important matters up for discussion.

Pupils to Aid French Soldiers.

President Somers of the Board of Education and Acting City Supt. Straubenmuller have made the appeal to public school teachers to set aside Monday, April 8, on which to call for a contribution of 1 cent from each child in the public schools to help relieve the 400,000 cases of French soldiers who are too ill to work and whose families are in want.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Dealings in Stocks Again on a Greatly Restricted Scale—Liberty 4s Shade Off.

In many respects the stock market of the last two days has closely resembled those which used to recur in dull midsummer periods coincidentally with the absence from their desks of nearly all of the men to whom Wall Street is accustomed to look for guidance. Yesterday's turnover has often been exceeded in a single hour of a moderately active session. Prices for the most part were fractionally lower, and there were no movements of a size to attract attention. The attendance in brokerage offices was small and those who followed the course of the market were mostly content to wait for something definitive to happen.

To some extent the dullness has been aggravated, no doubt, by the new tax requirements placing such an added burden on the speculative trader as to make him unwilling to trade except in a market undergoing wide price changes. The stock market has long since relegated local and domestic happenings to the background as factors influencing prices, and has fallen into the habit of waiting for important war news. The course of the great battle has closely followed the expectations aroused by the stubborn resistance of the Allies in the first few days, and so has been conducive to lessened speculative activity. It is beginning to look now as though the Germans had worn themselves out against the wall interposed by the British and French troops without materially altering the relative position of the opposing forces held two weeks ago. The stock market has reconciled itself to a long war—a position which it will no doubt gladly abandon at the first sign of willingness on the part of the Germans to concede the hopelessness of their western objective.

It is apparent, after all, that the element of patriotism must be counted upon to no small extent in selling the new Liberty 4¼'s, with the outstanding 4's which can be converted into the new issue several points under par on the eve of the new offering. The 4's changed hands in large volume yesterday on a slightly lower level; they fell short of reaching 97 in the early transactions and were down to 96.66 at the close. The situation has brought home to the bond man the necessity of going into the new campaign with all of the vigor that attended the first sale. When the Secretary announced the low minimum which he had set for this offering there was at first a disposition to expect the issue to sell itself, but preparations are going forward on the theory that not to surpass by a generous margin the total fixed for the sale starting next week would be almost a confession of failure.

LONDON MARKET IS FIRM.

Quotations Put Up as the Result of Reassuring News.

LONDON, April 2.—The reassuring news from the western front induced dealers on the Stock Exchange to mark up quotations a fraction all round today in anticipation of an accumulation of buying orders, and though the latter were only small, a feeling of confidence prevailed and prices closed firm everywhere.

Consols advanced three-eighths and the war loan an eighth, while tin mines were leading features in the other sections. Money was easier and discount rates were steady.

Trading Calm on Paris Bourse.

PARIS, April 2.—Trading on the Bourse today was calm. Three per cent. rentes were quoted at 57.25. Exchange on London was 27.19½. The 5 per cent. loan was quoted at 88.35.

TELLS OF STUDEBAKER PLAN

President Erskine Predicts Earnings of $6,000,000.

A. R. Erskine, President of the Studebaker Corporation, informed stockholders at the annual meeting yesterday that the outlook for profits this year was considerably better than a year ago. He said that net earnings of $6,000,000 might be reached, compared with $3,500,000 in 1917, provided that Government requirements did not absorb more of the company's facilities in future months than at this time. At present 50 per cent. of the plant capacity is being devoted to Federal orders.

Mr. Erskine was called on to answer numerous questions. In respect to rumors that big bonuses had been paid to officers, he said that the profit-sharing plan reached all officers, and certain clerks of long service with the company. In no case, he asserted, did the profit-sharing fund acquire more than 15 per cent. of the net profits in a year, while last year the amount paid in was much smaller.

Arthur Lehman of Lehman Brothers was elected a Director to succeed Major H. H. Lehman, who resigned to enter the Government's service.

SLOSS-SHEFFIELD EARNINGS

Operating Profit in 1917 $3,370,614, a Gain of $1,140,614.

The Sloss-Sheffield Steel and Iron Company reports an operating profit in 1917 of $3,370,614, an increase of $1,140,614 over the total reported in the statement for 1916. The management wrote off $665,741 from earnings to cover depreciation and depletion of ore reserves and set aside $350,000 for the Federal war taxes. Neither of these items appeared in last year's statement. The figures actually covered the thirteen months ended Dec. 31, owing to a change in the company's fiscal year.

The balance for dividends was $2,152,373, the amount available for the common stock being equal to $15.78 a share, compared with $15.22 in the previous fiscal period. The statement to stockholders said that the abnormal conditions affecting the company's operations made it necessary to conserve cash, particularly in view of the early maturity of the bonded debt of $4,000,000. While transportation troubles impeded deliveries last year, the plants were kept working steadily and are now at capacity.

Westinghouse Increases Wages.

PITTSBURGH, Penn., April 2.—Announcement was made by the Westinghouse Airbrake Company today that the wages of its employes at the Wilmerding and Swissvale plants had been increased 12½ per cent., effective April 1. About 8,000 persons are affected.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Midsummer Dullness.

The Summer temperature yesterday was accompanied by midsummer dullness in stocks. The turnover of less than 154,000 shares was the smallest for a full market session since August, 1916, when trading became so stagnant that the seventh of the month brought business of less than 119,000 shares. The low record of 1916, however, appeared only a few days before a long series of million-share sessions began, a development which brokers earnestly hope may be repeated shortly. Times have not been good for many commission houses since Jan. 1, and now, with the grim struggle on the western battle front tending to curb speculation, the ruling by the Attorney General on the borrowed stock tax has tended to curtail operations on the short side of the market.

Federal and State Tax Revenues.

The brokers handling speculative accounts are not affected alone by the tax on the borrowing and returning of borrowed stock. The Government, as recipient of taxes derived from transactions in stocks, stands to receive less revenue than before if business declines, and the State also will see its income sag to the extent that dealings in stocks are cut down by the Federal taxation. Where the Government collects $6 on each completed transaction on the short side in 100 shares of stock the State gets $2. Carrying further the application of taxation on short sales, the Government gets, beside the $6 from the short seller, $2 from the person who sells to the short seller when the latter covers, and the State collects, too, another $2 from the seller to the person who buys to cover short stock.

Cotton Price Control.

Every time the cotton market goes up more spectacularly than usual the sorely smitten bears take refuge in dark threats of Government price fixing. Many of them, as a matter of fact, are in their hearts as thoroughly convinced as the bulls of the economic unsoundness of any such step, but it is a comfort to losers—and it is reported that one group of short sellers in cotton have dropped over a million dollars in the latest rise—to warn the winners of a dire fate soon to overtake them. Naturally it is necessary to dress the bogey up each time in new colors, and the latest costume is something like this: The War Trade Board has, from its composition, wide discretion and far-reaching powers over industry, particularly transportation both by land and sea. It would be a simple matter, consequently, to make it virtually impossible for any manufacturer whose prices are not "right" to obtain raw materials. In this manner, without additional legislation, it may be possible to "put the screws" on the cotton trade as well as any other.

Influencing the Market.

Another possibility is hinted at by N. L. Carpenter & Co. in a market letter issued yesterday. This is the possibility of the United States, in order to insure fulfillment of its immense orders for cotton goods already placed with manufacturers, commandeering the stocks of cotton now held in this country for the account of foreign buyers chiefly financed directly by their Governments. Such action would have appeared very unlikely a few weeks ago, but the bold stroke by which the Government commandeered the Dutch merchant ships has put a different face upon the matter. Certainly, commandeering of the huge stocks of cotton now held in this country for foreign account would break the market as quickly and effectively as any price fixing. The point is that under existing conditions this cotton cannot be exported because the tonnage is not available, and it might as well be put to use and replaced later when tonnage is available as allowed to lie idle.

Railroad Economies.

The various beneficent results to be expected, and to some extent already accruing, from Government control of the railroads have been considerably enlarged upon, and there is no doubt of the economic benefits in many directions of unified control of the country's transportation system. But a number of interesting individual experiments in the encouragement of efficient operation are imperiled by the Government's rigid standards of uniform control. One of them is the recent order of the Southern Pacific by which individual locomotives of that system making the best record for their respective divisions in fuel economy were to be decorated by having their boiler fronts painted red. Perhaps, however, the resulting rivalry in fuel efficiency will be extended by Director General McAdoo throughout the country.

Willys-Overland Funds.

The Willys-Overland Company's report showed, in two items, that a large amount of money is necessary for the conduct of this concern's various manufacturing operations. Notes and bills receivable totaled $17,937,800, a gain of $11,840,067, or considerably more than 50 per cent. over the class of indebtedness a year before. Inventories amounted to $40,589,808, representing in part products bought with the funds raised on the notes and bills. From what President Willys told stockholders in his annual statement, the figures were prepared when the "peak of the load" in financing the year's output was either at hand or lately passed at the end of 1917. "The release of funds now in progress," he stated, "will enable the company to reduce materially the outstanding current indebtedness.

DU PONT MORRIS PLAN HEAD

Elected President to Succeed Clark Williams, Who Resigned.

T. Coleman du Pont yesterday was elected President of the Industrial Finance Corporation, succeeding Clark Williams, who has resigned to engage in war service which will probably take him to France in the near future. The Industrial Finance Corporation is the parent company and directing force of the various industrial banks of the so-called Morris Plan system, of which there are altogether 104 operating throughout the United States. Mr. du Pont was already a Director of the Industrial Finance Corporation, and had been a stockholder since the organization of the corporation in 1914. Mr. Williams was the first President of the corporation.

The Morris Plan, a system of banks for lending money on favorable terms to salaried men and wage earners who lack the collateral necessary for negotiating loans from the ordinary commercial bank, was originated by Arthur J. Morris of Norfolk, Va., who is now Vice President and General Counsel of the Industrial Finance Corporation and President of the New York Morris Plan Company and the Morris Plan Insurance Society. The total capital of Morris Plan banks in the last four years has increased to $12,000,000, with total resources of $40,000,000.

TRADE SHOWS ACTIVITY.

Pierre Jay Tells of Recovery from Disturbed Conditions.

Business activity and sentiment show further recovery from the disturbed conditions and uncertainty which prevailed during the early part of the year, according to the monthly report on business conditions made yesterday by Pierre Jay, Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York. He says that business with New York City retail stores is fairly active, and that country merchants are having more active trade and are purchasing more freely.

Mr. Jay reports that in March the banks of this district continued to absorb a large volume of Treasury certificates of indebtedness, the amount outstanding having increased from about $1,200,000,000 on Feb. 15 to more than $1,550,000,000 on March 21.

Mr. Jay says that traffic is moving more freely, though there is still much congestion of goods and shortage of cars.

STANDARD OIL COMPANY AND ITS MEN.

The relations of the Standard Oil Company to its employees and its idea of exchanging views on a basis of mutual interest, discussed in The Annalist this week. 10 cents a copy—$4 a year by mail. Published by The New York Times, Times Square, New York.—Advt.

Investors who have waited for a favorable opportunity to use their funds are now able to obtain standard securities on extremely advantageous terms. We should be glad to make some timely Investment Suggestions to those with funds available or with securities purchased before the war.

Confidence in This Country

—its economic strength, its future, and its people—is justified from every standpoint. In years to come investors will look back and wonder why Americans, because of temporary war setbacks, should have been so uncertain during the spring of 1918.

Stock Dividend Outlook for Standard Oils

The Standard Oil subsidiaries, since their segregation from Standard Oil of New Jersey, have established a remarkable record for periodical distribution of accumulated profits to stockholders, in the form of large stock dividends.

At the present moment there are eight of the Standard Oil subsidiaries which have piled up sufficient surpluses to justify distribution of profits to stockholders, and these are dealt with in detail in our fortnightly publication.

AMERICAN SMELTING EARNS $18,495,625

President Guggenheim Says Government's Action Has Cut Into Profits.

SALES BREAK ALL RECORDS

Balance Available for Dividends is $3,656,624 Less Than in Preceding Year.

Daniel Guggenheim, President of the American Smelting and Refining Company, says to stockholders in the report for 1917 that governmental action in fixing metal prices, and at the same time following the "cost plus commission" method of letting out construction contracts, is having an adverse effect on the company's expenses and profits. In this he refers to current conditions. Last year the corporation had the greatest receipts in its history, and the income before fixed charges, taxes, depreciation, &c., showed a substantial gain over the result of the preceding year.

The balance of $18,495,625 available for dividends was $3,656,624 less than in 1916, the decline being due, in part, to increased taxes. Dividends on the company's preferred stock and the preferred issues of the American Smelters Securities Company required $4,712,665. The remainder of the net income was equal to 22.5 per cent. on the common stock, compared with 29.9 per cent. the year before. The salient features of the income account and balance sheet of the companies, taken together, are presented in this table:

	1917.	Increase Over 1916.
Cash receipts	$443,980,801	$85,862,405
Operating gross	28,194,927	2,895,178
Total gross	31,602,615	3,484,784
Net income	18,495,625	*3,656,624
Taxes, including Federal war tax	3,849,970	2,864,005
Depreciation, &c	4,934,482	2,904,434
Surplus	9,513,009	*3,505,816
Total surplus	26,955,394	3,513,009

*Decrease.

Current Assets $38,280,808.

The increase of $2,864,005 in taxes presumably was accounted for chiefly by the reservation for Federal war income and excess profits imposts. The cash item of $10,901,717 showed a decline of $6,039,774 in the year, a movement which was more than offset by an increase of $6,419,250 in the holdings of Liberty bonds. The aggregate of current assets at the end of the year was $38,280,808, as compared with current liabilities amounting to $27,694,865.

"The company is now suffering," Mr. Guggenheim says, "from the entire lack of economic law, and is operating under the direction of governmental commissions, whereby the value of the metal products of the company is fixed. But the cost of labor and supplies is not fixed; in fact, owing to the various governmental contracts for shipbuilding and other construction of great magnitude, which have been made on the basis of cost plus a commission, the contractors have no interest in holding labor costs at a point where a profit can be made, and, in fact, their own interests are in favor of as high a cost as can be in any way justified.

"By these two governmental actions, first, by reducing the value of our product, and, second, by constantly increasing our cost, this great corporation, producing what is absolutely necessary to the Government in carrying on the war, is having its ability to pay a fair return to its stockholders seriously jeopardized. While it may be said that the previous profits were excessive, had it not been for such profits, the company would not have been able to enlarge its works and increase its output, all of which has been of vital necessity to the Government. These enlargements have been effected at a cost of fully $15,000,000, all of which has been taken out of the earnings of the company, and the enlarged capacity will doubtless be entirely useless after the war demand ceases."

Labor Troubles Serious.

The statement says that the company's greatest difficulties are in connection with the lack of an adequate supply of labor and the demands of labor. At the same time, general expenses are continuously advancing, supplies and building material are costing from 50 to 150 per cent. more than in normal periods.

The report, which is to be issued today, notes that total expenditures in 1917 for new property and additions amounted to $6,605,690. This outlay brought the company's smelting and refining capacity up to 1,150,000,000 pounds of electrolytic copper a year, and production at present is running at the rate of 1,000,000,000 pounds per annum. The amount of copper turned out last year was 848,888,000 pounds, an increase of 59,450,000 pounds over the preceding year. Gold to a total of 2,496,693 ounces was produced, a decline of 165,317 ounces, and the output of silver, 69,841,081 ounces, was 1,027,390 ounces less than in 1916. Zinc was produced to a total of 52,522,000 pounds, an increase of 4,714,453 pounds.

The company increased the pay of all its employes on salary from 15 to 25 per cent. at the close of the year, in consideration of the high cost of living and in recognition of efficient service.

THE COTTON MARKET

Trading Irregular, with Close Barely Steady, Net 4 Points Higher to 6 Lower.

The cotton market was nervous and irregular yesterday, reflecting an easier technical position after the big advance of the previous day, and an unsettled or reactionary sentiment around the ring. Reports of showers in the Southwest, with prospects for more precipitation promoted a generally favorable view of immediate new crop conditions, while the continued scarcity of ocean tonnage appeared to be attracting more attention, and there was renewed talk of price-fixing during the afternoon. The latter appeared to have more definite basis than previous rumors of a similar character, however, and bearish features were opposed by the continued bullish average of Southern spot advices. After selling off to 38.62 cents, July contracts rallied to 32.99, making a new high record for the season, but lost a good part of the advance, closing at 32.82. The general list closed barely steady, net 4 points higher to 6 points lower.

The market was under considerable pressure during the earlier trading. There was naturally a good deal of realizing as well as scattered selling for a reaction and before the end of the morning active months sold 11 to 25 points net lower. Offerings were pretty well absorbed at this level, however, while early sellers were disappointed by the failure of pressure to increase on a scale down and the market stiffened up during the early afternoon on covering. For a time contracts were scarce and most of the active months made new high records for the season with the old crop selling 21 to 25 points, and the new crop 9 to 12 points net higher. The later market was unsettled by the renewed talk of price-fixing with last prices showing reactions of some 15 to 20 points from the best.

The talk of price-fixing was inspired by Washington advices quoting an official of the War Industry Board to the same effect as announcements from that source reaching here a week or two ago. It was recalled in this connection that a conference between cotton goods interests and Washington officials last week had adjourned without action, and that the goods people had been informed that there appeared no immediate reason for price regulation.

COMMODITIES MARKETS

WHEAT.

Advices from Washington indicated that considerable opposition has arisen in connection with the bill providing for an advance in the price of next year's wheat crop to $2.50 per bushel. The weather in the Northwest was colder, with prospects of snow, which was less favorable for the seeding of the new Spring wheat crop. It was the general opinion, however, that a large acreage will be sown, and at the present time the trade feels very hopeful over the prospects for both the Winter and Spring wheat crops. The movement at Western points was small, but was somewhat interrupted by the Western holidays. It was said that the Food Administration has located some good-sized lots of wheat on farms which were apparently considered as having been improperly held, and that the wheat will be commandeered if owners refuse to sell.

RYE.

The local rye market was entirely nominal in absence of business. In the West a somewhat easier tone prevailed, Minneapolis being 4 cents lower, at $2.01, while Duluth was down 3 cents, at $2.90.

CORN.

A holiday feeling prevailed in the corn market owing to the fact that most of the Western markets were closed for Spring elections. Prices in St. Louis, where the market was open, were a trifle higher, but there was no real new feature to the situation. Weather conditions over the belt were again mild, but the outlook was for a considerable drop in temperatures, with probable snows over quite a wide area, and this may result in some falling off in receipts. In the local cash market kiln dried No. 3 yellow was quoted at $1.82½; No. 4 yellow, $1.75½; No. 3 white, $2.20½, cost and freight, New York; Argentine corn, $2.40, free on board cars.

OATS.

The market for oats was inactive, with most of the Western markets closed on account of election. Prices in Minneapolis and Winnipeg were firmer, but apparently the action of values there was due more to local technical conditions than to any change in the general situation. The cash market recently has developed an easier tone, and premiums in the West have been considerably reduced. The local cash market was easier; natural quoted at $1.04½ to $1.05½, and clipped white $1.05 to $1.08, all elevator.

PROVISIONS.

Owing to the holidays in the West the provision market was entirely nominal. Hog prices were firmer; however, and this partially offset the effects of the bearing monthly statement of stocks issued on Monday. Receipts of hogs at Chicago were 20,000; estimated for Wednesday, 30,000. Kansas City received 8,000 and Omaha 19,000 hogs.

COTTONSEED OIL.

The market for cottonseed oil was featureless, with an absence of business, and closing bid prices were not unchanged. The cash market was inactive, with spots selling in a jobbing way at around 21 cents. Range of prices:

	Close.	Prev. Close.
Spot	19.75	19.75
April	19.75@20.00	19.75

July	20.00@20.50	20.00
August	20.00@20.50	20.00

COFFEE.

Coffee futures were easier yesterday under realizing by old longs or trade selling, which was accompanied by rumors of prospects for an improvement in the volume of imports. Nothing very definite developed in this connection, but the freight situation was much discussed around the ring, and there appeared to be an impression that the Shipping Board might fix berth rates as well as charters, and that arrangements would be made to replenish supplies here before there was any real scarcity. The market opened unchanged to 5 points higher and closed net unchanged to 21 points lower. The Brazil cable gave the Rio spot market 75 reis higher, with Santos spots 50 reis higher. Santos futures were irregular, 25 reis higher to 25 reis lower. Receipts at the two ports were 80,000 bags, against 16,000 bags a year ago. Steamer arrivals from Santos were 90,217 bags. SUGAR.

About the only feature in the sugar market was the large purchases reported through the International Sugar Committee, including 507,800 bags Cuban raw sugar, April shipment, at 4.985c, cost and freight, and 100,000 bags Porto Ricos at 6.005c, cost, insurance, and freight, April shipment. Receipts of raw sugar at all Cuban ports were 15,000 tons less than a week ago. Exports from Cuba were disappointing, showing a considerable falling off from the previous week. No change was reported in refined sugar, a small daily distribution being made to the trade.

BUTTER AND EGG MARKET.

BUTTER.—Receipts yesterday, 6,725 packages. Demand not quite so brisk as it was the day before, and feeling on the top grades of creamery was perhaps a shade easier, though quotations have not changed materially. Creamery, higher than extras, a pound, 43½@44c; extras, (92 score,) 43c; firsts, (88 to 91 score,) 41@42½c; seconds, (83 to 87 score,) 38½@40½c; thirds, 36@37½c; creamery, unsalted, higher than extras, 44½@45c; extras, 43½@44c; firsts, 41½@43c; seconds, 39@41c; creamery, held, as to quality, 35@41c; State dairy, tubs, finest, 42@43c; good to prime, 39@41½c; common to fair, 35@38c; renovated, extras, 39@40c; firsts, 36@38½c; lower grades, 34@37c; imitation creamery, firsts, 36@37c; ladles, current make, firsts, 35@35½c; seconds, 33½@34c; lower grades, 31@33c; packing stock, current make, No. 1, 34c; No. 2, 33c; lower grades, 28@32c.

EGGS.—Receipts, 57,722 cases. The arrivals continue excessive, larger than the tone of Western advices had led receivers to expect. Much of the stock is going directly to the storage warehouses, owing to the high cost and the inability to place them on the present market except at a loss. The demand is limited, being affected by the Jewish holiday beginning last evening, and prices rule in buyers' favor. An ample supply can be obtained for current needs at a decline of about ½ cent from yesterday's quotations, although a good deal of the best stock here is not offering at any reduction and is under orders to store rather than force sales on the present market. Nearby white eggs are in liberal accumulation and prices show a further decline, the market closing unsettled but with some evidences of considerable speculative demand for storage on the basis of about 40c for round lots of desirable quality. Fresh gathered extras, a dozen, 35½c; storage packed firsts, 37@38c; regular packed extra firsts, 36¼@37c; regular packed firsts, 35@36c; seconds and poorer, 33@34½c; fresh gathered dirties, No. 1, 34@34½c; No. 2 and poorer, 32@33c; fresh gathered checks, ordinary to choice, dry, 30@33c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby Western hennery whites, fine to fancy, 40@41c; ordinary to prime, 39c; gathered whites, ordinary to fine, 38@40c; Western and Southern gathered whites, 37@39c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby hennery browns, 39@40c; gathered brown and mixed colors, 36@37½c; duck eggs, 50@65c; goose eggs, a dozen, 75c.

MUST AWAIT INTEREST ON $16,200,000 BONDS

Semi-Annual Payment of Rio Grande Western Railroad Held Up.

The semi-annual interest on $16,200,000 first consolidated 4 per cent. bonds of the Rio Grande Western Railroad, due at the Guaranty Trust Company on April 1, is not being paid and bondholders will have to wait for their money until further progress has been made at Washington in working out details of the Federal management of the country's railroads. Ample funds have been earned by the company to meet the interest, but the income derived from operations since Jan. 1 may not be used because it is to be turned into the "pool" of railway earnings. The income accumulated prior to the date when the Government took control is not available because it has been attached by court order.

The Rio Grande Western became part of the Denver & Rio Grande system in 1908, and as part of this road it is affected by the suit brought by the Equitable Trust Company as Trustee of a mortgage of the Western Pacific Railroad, which was guaranteed by the Denver & Rio Grande. The suit was brought last year and a judgment for a sum approximating $36,000,000 was obtained by the trust company some time ago. In December last the trust company attached all the earnings of the Denver system, the order continuing in effect until the Government took over the road.

The bondholders are in the unusual position of knowing that their coupons are entirely good, but not convertible into cash. When the railroads became Government property for the war period a committee headed by John Skelton Williams, Controller of the Currency, began the huge task of deciding what each road was entitled to in the way of income under the railroad statute. Pending the allocation of funds to the roads in proportion to their average earnings in the three years ended with 1916 it was decided to impound the income of all the roads into a general fund which would be solely at the disposal of the Government. The carriers are not permitted to use their earnings which have come in since Jan. 1 to pay fixed charges, maintenance, upkeep, &c., except with the consent of the Director General of the railroads. Bondholders who displayed anxiety about their money yesterday were informed by bankers interested in the Rio Grande Western that there was nothing to do but wait. It was learned that the Equitable Trust Company stood ready to lend the company money to meet the interest, but the management presumably thought it better to wait for the Government to act, and the loan was not taken.

The Government is empowered by the law which transferred the railroads to Federal ownership to lend money to a company for such a purpose as paying bond interest. In railroad quarters it was predicted yesterday that the Rio Grande Western would receive a loan before many days pass, although no specific information in respect to it could be obtained.

BETHLEHEM BONUS SYSTEM.

Stockholders Give Sanction to Long-Existing Payment Plan.

Stockholders of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation at the annual meeting in Newark yesterday adopted an additional by-law providing for the payment of bonuses to employes on an established basis. Under the new rule the management is allowed the right to distribute in extra remuneration to officers and other workers a sum equal to 8 per cent. of the total net earnings in any one year after deducting all interest charges and providing for taxes, but before making allowance for depreciation.

The corporation has been paying bonuses for many years, but without the specific sanction of the shareowners. Last year the amount paid out was $3,913,833, equal to 7.96 per cent. of the net income.

Charles M. Schwab, Chairman, expressed his appreciation of the stockholders' action.

"By this action of the stockholders," said he, "I believe the future of the corporation is safeguarded. Through the establishment of a bonus system it has been possible to obtain the personal interest of employes in a manner not heretofore obtainable in a large corporation. The use of the bonus system has been the only successful way to secure individual co-operation to the extent we have found desirable."

After the meeting Mr. Schwab told inquirers that Bethlehem operations in the past month were considerably more active than earlier in the year. The steel plants were working at about 80 per cent. of capacity, he stated, and the shipyards were working full. In January and February steel plant operation dropped to as low as 50 per cent. The Bethlehem works, said the head of the corporation, was doing more Government work than any other organization of the same size.

John W. Griggs, Archibald Johnson, B. H. Jones, and George R. Sheldon, whose terms as Directors expired, were re-elected for another term of three years.

Appraiser Fixes Figures Between $52,000,000 and $56,000,000.

When the hearing on the application of the Third Avenue Railway Company for authority to charge 2 cents for transfers was resumed before the Public Service Commission yesterday, figures showing the value of the entire Third Avenue system were submitted. The appraisal was made by E. J. Connette, President of the United Gas and Electric Engineering Corporation, who made a partial appraisal of the property two years ago as a member of the commission's staff.

Mr. Connette based the appraisal figures placed in evidence on the average unit prices prevailing for the last five, the last eight, and the last ten years of materials which would have to be purchased in the properties of the system were reproduced. After including development charges and current assets and deducting depreciation, obsolescence, and inadequacy, he found the various averages of the valuation to be $56,364,852 for the five-year average, $53,465,703 for eight years, and $52,520,8[illegible] for ten years.

J. A. STILLMAN TAKES HIS FATHER'S PLACE

Son of Late James Stillman Elected Chairman of City Bank Board of Directors.

NOMINATED BY VANDERLIP

New Head Also Becomes Ex-Officio Member of the Board of Executive Managers.

James A. Stillman was elected yesterday Chairman of the Board of Directors of the National City Bank, succeeding his father, James Stillman, who died on March 15. Mr. Stillman, who is about 45 years old, has been with the bank for about twenty years, and at the time of his father's death held the office of general executive manager. At yesterday's meeting of the board the nomination of Mr. Stillman for the post of Chairman was made by Frank A. Vanderlip, the President, who will continue as the administrative and active head of the bank.

Although Mr. Stillman resigned as general executive manager in order to assume the office of Chairman, the Directors elected him an ex-officio member of the Board of Executive Managers. Charles V. Rich, one of the executive managers, was elected general executive manager. A year ago last January there was created the Board of Executive Managers, the senior Vice Presidents being given the higher rank. Under the plan then adopted one of the executive managers was to serve as general executive manager for the period of one year, in rotation. For the first year, William A. Simonson held that post, and at the annual meeting this year his place was taken by James A. Stillman.

It had been generally understood that James A. Stillman was not disposed to accept the Presidency of the bank, even in the event that Mr. Vanderlip was elected Chairman as successor to James Stillman, and for that reason the election yesterday of Mr. Stillman to the Chairmanship did not cause any surprise.

After the late Mr. Stillman retired from the Presidency of the bank and became Chairman of the board in 1909 he was not active in the affairs of the institution, and spent a good deal of his time in Paris. At the same time he kept in close touch with what was going on and continued to direct the general policies of the bank. After the United States entered the war and President Vanderlip was appointed Chairman of the National Committee on War Savings, which required his going to Washington, Mr. Stillman resumed active charge of the bank's business.

The fact that J. A. Stillman was elected yesterday an ex-officio member of the Board of Executive Managers is an indication that he does not expect to limit his activities to the usual duties of Chairman, but that he will also continue the work that he has been doing as an executive manager.

Mr. Vanderlip, it was learned yesterday, will devote practically all of his time to the bank, although he will, from time to time, make trips to Washington for the purpose of continuing his services to the Government. The succession of Mr. Stillman to the place formerly held by his father does not in any way affect the standing of President Vanderlip, who remains the active and directing head of the bank.

Mr. Stillman is a Harvard graduate, and was a member of the Harvard crew. He first came to the bank in 1898 and about a year later was elected an assistant cashier. Some years later he was made a Vice President, and about a year and a half ago we elected an executive manager. He has been a Director for several years. Mr. Stillman married the daughter of Mrs. James Brown Potter. He is a golfer of standing and is interested in yachting. His father named him one of the trustees of his estate.

The Board of Directors, at their meeting yesterday, did not fill the vacancy on the board created by Mr. Stillman's death.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

The National City Bank of New York has completed preparations for opening a branch office at San Juan, Porto Rico.

The Foreign Trade Banking Corporation, recently organized with George A. Gaston as President and Max Mey as managing Director, has leased the lower floor of 35 Wall Street. The quarters are fully equipped with banking facilities. The institution is expected to open for business in about two weeks.

The Bond Club of New York will hold a Liberty Loan luncheon on Friday at the Bankers' Club. Governor Strong of the Federal Reserve Bank will be the chief speaker.

Walker D. Hines and Carl Gray have resigned as Directors of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railroad. Vice President Edward Chambers also tendered his resignation, which was accepted at a meeting of the Directors. Their successors have not yet been chosen.

Directors of Cosden & Co. declared yesterday a stock dividend of 5 per cent. on the common stock, payable May 1 to stockholders of record April 10. The payment was the same as that on Feb. 1.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE

The market on the Consolidated Stock Exchange was very quiet and prices drooped more through inertia than any vigorous selling pressure. The day's news was not of a sufficiently pronounced character to stimulate trading, and in the absence of any buying incentive the market was uncertain in tone until near the close, when prices eased off, particularly among some of the railroad shares. Losses of a point or more occurred in several issues, but the majority of the changes were of a fractional nature.

BRITISH EDUCATOR TELLS NEED OF MEN

Sir George Adam Smith of Aberdeen University Here to Urge Speed.

ENGLAND WILL HOLD OUT

America's Entrance a Tremendous Moral Stimulus, He Says, but Predicts Great Sacrifices.

Clad in the uniform of a Colonel of the British Army, Sir George Adam Smith, Principal and Vice Chancellor of Aberdeen University and one of the noted Biblical scholars of modern times, told in an interview at the Manhattan Hotel yesterday of England's firm determination to see this war through to the bitter end. He had not the slightest doubt that the ultimate result would be victory for the Allies, but he felt certain, on the other hand, that the United States, France and England, would be called upon to make tremendous sacrifices before that victory was achieved.

"What we need from America, of course, is ships and men," he said, "but aside from the material aid, I may say that the moral stimulus given by the entrance of America in the war is tremendous. Man power, however, is the vital issue. We need men terribly. I have no doubt that following this German attack the military age will be advanced. The number of men between 40 and 50 who have gone in is not inconsiderable. It used to be only the women who reduced their ages, but now it is the men.

Sir George Adam Smith has just arrived from England as the representative of the Department of Public Information of the British Foreign Office to give a series of lectures.

Discussing the present offensive, Sir George said:

"We are now facing a very serious crisis. It is a test of our strength and a test of our moral courage. We will hold out until you are ready. America today is somewhat in the position that Britain was when the Kaiser greeted the approach of the British forces in 1914 as a 'contemptible army.' There probably were not more than 180,000 man available at that time, but we pushed on what we had to the front. The army was small but eager and compact, and it managed to help France stay the enemy advance."

Sir George discussed the effect that the war has had in deepening the religious feeling of the British peoples.

"War," he said, "will rebuke the somewhat easy views of God entertained before the war. We had been thinking of Him only as a God of peace and of love; we have neglected the righteousness of God and His judgments. Now at last our eyes are opened, and we are fighting for justice against the doctrine that might is right.

"The heightened faith and the deepened spiritual consciousness of the people as the result of the war were brought home to me particularly in my contact with the families of the students of Aberdeen University who have fallen in battle. Two hundred and thirty students of our university out of 2,000 in the conflict have been slain. I have been personally in touch with the families of all these men. I have been struck with their faith, their resignation, and the great revival of the belief in future life."

During his visit to this country Sir George will speak in favor of the British project to restore Palestine to the Jews as a future home land. He has given a great deal of study to the subject and has written several works on the Holy Land. He delivered his first lecture on the "Moral Aims of the War" before the Union Theological Seminary last night.

REJECT APPEAL OF BOLO.

High Court Makes Decision as Brother Asks Reopening of Case.

PARIS, April 2.—The Court of Cassation today rejected the appeal of Bolo Pacha from the sentence of death imposed by court-martial for treason. The court also rejected the appeal of Darius Porchere, an accountant, who was tried with Bolo Pacha and sentenced to three years' imprisonment.

The appeals were based on the argument that French military justice was incompetent in the case of a Frenchman committing a crime in a neutral country. The appeals of Bolo Pacha and Porchere were denied on March 12 by the Court of Revision.

Mgr. Bolo filed at the Ministry of Justice today an application for revision of the case of his brother. A special commission will consider it.

GERMAN FACTORIES CLOSING

Hundreds of Spinning, Weaving, Oil, and Shoe Plants Shut Down.

AMSTERDAM, March 20.—A leading German manufacturer, writing in the Norddeutsche Allgemeine Zeitung, says:

"Out of 1,700 spinning and weaving mills only 70 are still running at high pressure, while in the boot and shoe industry, 1,400 factories have been amalgamated into 300. In the oil industry 15 factories, working at high pressure, have been formed out of 720 works previously existing. In the silk industry the number of spindles has been reduced from 45,000 to 2,500."

SPICE CO. AMERICANIZED.

Palmer Reorganizes Toledo Concern Two-thirds Enemy-Owned.

WASHINGTON, April 2.—Reorganization of the Woolson Spice Company of Toledo, Ohio, was announced today by A. Mitchell Palmer, Alien Property Custodian. The concern has a capital stock of $180,000, two-thirds enemy-owned.

The enemy stock has been assigned to the Custodian, who named as Directors Joseph D. Pickslay of New York City, C. H. Graves, Toledo; Harrison Nesbit, Pittsburgh; J. J. Watson, Jr., and George E. Warren, New York City. Mr. Graves has been made Vice President and will represent Mr. Palmer.

Western Union Loses Appeal.

NEW ORLEANS, April 2.—The Western Union Telegraph Company, under a decision of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals announced here today, lost its appeal in the company's suits against the Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis, the Atlanta & West Point, and the Louisville & Nashville Railroads. The cases involved right of way for Western Union wires and poles on the railroad rights of way.

Kill Bill for Warm Apartments.

ALBANY, April 2.—The bill of Assemblyman Orr, a Socialist, to compel owners of heated apartments to keep them warm, and, if they do not, to permit tenants to deduct from the rent the amount spent for kerosene, gas or other fuel, was killed in the Assembly today.

Democratic Club Bans German.

Resolutions forbidding the use of the German language in the clubhouse "for any purpose whatsoever," and barring all enemy aliens, were adopted by the National Democratic Club, 617 Fifth Avenue, at a general meeting last night. The motion to adopt the resolution was made by George C. Norton, an attorney of 115 Broadway.

MYSTERIOUS EPIDEMIC ASSAILS FORD PLANT

2,000 Workers Affected by Disease Resembling Grip—200 a Day Laying Off.

DETROIT, April 2.—Officials of the Ford Motor Company confirmed a report this afternoon that more than 200 men had been affected daily by a mysterious epidemic resembling grip, which has been prevalent in the plant. It is estimated that about 2,000 employes have been ill thus far.

Ernest G. Liebold, private secretary to Henry Ford, made this statement today:

"The disease seems to resemble grip. I have just returned to work after being laid up for three days. I do not feel very strong yet. Scores of men in the offices have been ill, while an average of 200 factory workers a day have been laying off for the last ten days.

"At first we thought the water might be contaminated in some manner due to Spring weather, but an analysis showed this theory to be wrong. The germs evidently are floating through the air."

The Ford Motor company has been doing a large amount of Government work.

FOOD EXPORTS SHOW NO DECLINE IN VALUE

$110,000,000 the Total for February, While Eight Months' Imports Increased.

WASHINGTON, April 2.—Exports of foodstuffs in February showed no decline in value as compared with the same month last year, despite the shipping tieup due to railroad congestion. The exports amounted to $110,000,000, and the total for the first eight months of the fiscal year was $803,466,738. In February, 1917, foodstuffs sent abroad were worth $89,000,000, and for the first eight months of the fiscal year they were $750,000,000.

DOCTORS' CORPS FOR I.W.W.

Government May Engage Medical Men to Speed Chicago Trial.

CHICAGO, April 2.—A corps of physicians to maintain health among more than 100 leaders of the Industrial Workers of the World, on trial for alleged violation of the Espionage act, may be engaged by the Government to prevent further delays of the case through illness, District Attorney C. F. Clyne announced tonight.

When the way had been cleared late today for the selection of a jury, counsel for the defense announced that adjournment would be necessary because of the illness of Walter T. Neff of Philadelphia, Secretary of Branch 100, Marine Transport Workers of the Atlantic.

"The Government will make immediate arrangements for an army of physicians to attend the defendants if further delays occur," Mr. Clyne declared.

W. B. Cleary, the Bisbee, Ariz., attorney, who, with several hundred Industrial Workers of the World, was deported from Bisbee at the time of the serious mining disorders last year, arrived here tonight and announced that he would aid the defense.

MRS. HIRSCH IS FREED.

Atlanta Blackmailer Let Off with Fine of $300 by Court.

ATLANTA, April 2.—Judge Hill today reduced to a fine of $300 the sentence of one year in prison and fine of $1,000 imposed on Mrs. Margaret Hirsch, who was convicted with J. W. Cook of attempting to blackmail Mayor Candler for $500,000. Herman H. Hirsch immediately paid his wife's fine and she was released from custody.

Judge Hill, in commuting the original sentence, declared that he was actuated by the fact that Mrs. Hirsch's health was impaired by her long confinement. He said her reputation had been ruined and her husband had been greatly humiliated.

Cook was sentenced to a year and a day on the chain gang and fined $1,000. He is at liberty on bail pending a hearing on his motion for a new trial.

53 GRADUATED AT STEVENS.

Mechanical Engineers to Enter Service of the Government.

Fifty-three students were graduated from the Mechanical Engineering Department of the Stevens Institute in Hoboken yesterday with exercises held two months before the regular commencement, to enable the men to enter the Government service.

Twenty-five men of the class had already entered the army, and it was announced yesterday that when these men chose to return at the end of the war every facility of the institute would be thrown open to them and that after they had completed their work they would be listed as graduates in the class of 1918. A service flag with 445 stars, representing the number of graduates and students already in the service, was unveiled. Three white stars had been placed in the red border to indicate the three men who have died in the service already.

The honorary degree of doctor of engineering was conferred upon J. Waldo Smith, who was chief engineer on the new Catskill Aqueduct, recently turned over to the city to increase the water supply. The Cyrus J. Lawrence prizes for excellence in scholarship were awarded to Merrick W. Phelps of Dayton, Ohio, and John W. McQuillen of Passaic, N. J., the Alfred Marshal Mayer prizes in physics were awarded to James M. Horn of New York and Gordon R. Milne of Newark, and the Priestly prize for chemistry was awarded to Sidney Klein of Woodhaven, N. Y. James M. Horn also won the William A. Macy prize for general excellence in scholarship.

MAKE LESS ICE THIS YEAR.

Natural Crop to be Used to Save Ammonia for War.

Production of ice in New York this year is to be reduced 40 per cent. and very largely throughout the State to aid the Government by the conservation of ammonia, fuel, and labor, according to statements made yesterday at the annual meeting of the State Ice Manufacturers' Association at Trommer's Hall, East New York.

Arthur P. Miller said the demand for ammonia for fertilizer and explosives last year was 150,000,000 pounds, and that the supply had fallen 20,000,000 pounds short. Reduction of ice manufacture affords one of the principal opportunities for conservation.

To meet the demand this year a crop of natural ice, estimated for the State at 2,500,000 tons, 700,000 tons more than the Winter before, is available.

Favor Repeal of State Anti-Trust Law.

ALBANY, April 2.—The Ellenbogen bill to repeal the Donnelly act, the anti-trust law of the State, was passed by the Assembly today by a vote of 100 to 40, Democrats casting the negative votes. The Democrats opposed the repeal on the ground that it was a move to assist the Dairymen's League, now under indictment in New York for alleged violation of the act.

Men Called in Second Draft

All Boroughs of City Except Richmond Represented in Yesterday's Departures.

MANHATTAN EXODUS TODAY

Last of Names of 6,388 Recruits Who Will Be Sent to Yaphank This Week Published.

The second selective draft contingents for the second national army of the United States left New York for Camp Upton yesterday. The men who reported at Camp Upton yesterday afternoon represented all boroughs in the city except Richmond, the total number of men involved in the movement being about 1,700. The Bronx and Queens detachments left from Long Island City, Jamaica, and other points in Queens Borough, those from Manhattan entrained at the Pennsylvania Station, while Brooklyn's second contingent departed from the Flatbush Avenue station.

Only five Manhattan districts sent their quotas to Upton yesterday. They were from the 89th to 93d districts, inclusive. The first big Manhattan movement takes place today, when the men from the 94th to 119th districts start for the cantonment.

THE TIMES this morning prints the last of the names of the 6,888 men who will go from the city to Camp Upton this week as New York's first contribution to the second draft army. In addition to the names of those originally selected to go to camp, the names of other men designated as alternates are also printed. The names follow:

N.Y.A.C. EXONERATES BROWN

Governors Find That He Had No Part in Pro-German Celebration.

It became known yesterday that Vernon C. Brown, a member of the New York Athletic Club, who had been suspended by the Board of Governors on the suspicion that he had taken part in a celebration by some pro-Germans in the club in honor of the German drive in France, had been exonerated on Monday night after a formal hearing. The Board of Governors were in session until midnight and listened to Mr. Brown's story, as well as to those of the other two suspended members, Basil Ruysdael, basso of the Metropolitan Opera Company, and Henry Lampe, formerly of the Hamburg-American Line.

No action was taken on the cases of Ruysdael and Lampe, and it was said that the two cases would be further investigated at a regular meeting of the board to be held next Tuesday evening.

"Mr. Brown is an honorable gentleman," said Jeremiah T. Mahoney, Vice President of the club, yesterday. "He has made many sacrifices for the Government, and after hearing him we decided to exonerate him. He happened to be at the same table with some others when a regrettable occurrence took place, and had absolutely nothing to do with what happened. He was an innocent victim, and we were glad to exonerate him when we heard the facts."

WOMEN HELP RECRUITING.

Start Drive Here to Fill 3,700 Vacancies in New York Divisions.

The need of 3,700 volunteers to fill the vacancies in the 27th New York Division before it goes to France caused the Mayor's Committee of Women on National Defense to undertake yesterday a drive for recruits that will be pushed to all the five boroughs during the next two weeks. Recruiting tents will be erected for the special work of the drive on all the important squares, and speakers at noon hour and evening meetings will endeavor to impress upon the public the opportunity which the 27th Division offers to all men above and below draft age to come forward and do their bit for their country.

Two more recruiting tents will be erected for the drive today—one in Columbus Circle, and the other in City Hall. Formal exercises will be held at both places by the Mayor's Committee within a few days. The chief recruiting stations for the divisions are at 721 Fifth Avenue, 1,960 Broadway, the Seventh Regiment Armory, Park Avenue and Sixty-sixth Street; the Twenty-second Engineers Armory, 168th Street and Fort Washington Avenue; the Second Field Artillery Armory, Park Avenue and 166th Street, the Bronx, and the Second Field Artillery Armory at 165 Claremont Avenue, Brooklyn. Captain Tristram Tupper is in general charge of the recruiting.

PROMISES CHEAPER COAL.

Fuel Administrator Reduces Profit Margin by 35 Cents a Ton.

Reeve Schley, New York County Fuel Administrator, announced yesterday the marginal retail profits on anthracite coal for this city. The new margin is now fixed at $2.25 a ton on domestic sizes. The Government has given the railroads promises to charge 15 cents more a ton for hauling, and this reduces the benefit to the consumer by that amount, and his actual reduction cost over Winter months will be 35 cents a ton.

On steam sizes, or coal used for office buildings and factories, the margin of profit is $1.75 a ton. For pea coal and soft coal, as they have been mixing soft coal with anthracite ever since the shortage, the margin of profit allowed is $2.10 a ton.

"Many of the dealers have held off," Mr. Schley said, "because they did not want to fill orders when there was an apparent misunderstanding as to what they could charge. These margins of profit will now stand, and the consumer should start at once to lay in a supply for next Winter. Unfortunately there is not enough coal in the city to fill all demands now, but there will be before the Summer is over."

In the wholesale trade Harry T. Peters, Chairman of the Coal Conservation Committee and a large coal dealer, said there would be no change in price or profit margin, as the Government has decided to allow the margins made eighteen months ago to stand.

Estate Goes to Children and Grandchildren.

The transfer tax report on the estate of Mrs. Edith Cooper Bryce, who died on April 29, 1916, at her home in Roslyn, was filed yesterday at Mineola, showing that she left a total net estate of $6,921,810. Mrs. Bryce, who was the wife of Lloyd S. Bryce, former United States Minister to the Netherlands, gave a life interest in $1,132,143 to her husband, and on his death on April 2, 1917, this sum was added to the residuary estate for distribution among Mrs. Bryce's children and grandchildren.

The appraised values of the shares left to the children and grandchildren were: Edith C. Cram, daughter, $957,645; Mrs. Gifford Pinchot, daughter, $966,635; Peter Cooper Bryce, son, $2,519,905; Henry G. Cram, Edith Bryce Cram, and John Cram, grandchildren, got $170,980 each, and $503,952 went to Gifford Pinchot, Jr., a grandson.

The value of Mrs. Bryce's stocks and bonds was more than $5,000,000, the largest block of stock being 167 shares of Union Sulphur, $2,400,501. Her jewelry was worth $183,488. A parcel of realty at the northeast corner of Fourth Avenue and Twenty-seventh Street was appraised at $1,090,000. Her country place at Roslyn was worth $284,452.

The tax on the estate is $184,766.

REAL ESTATE FIELD

Large Addition Planned for Altman Stable on East Thirty-sixth Street.

The sale of a large frontage on East Thirty-sixth and Thirty-seventh Streets to be utilized for the erection of an addition to the stable of B. Altman & Co., was the feature of a fairly active real estate market yesterday.

The Downtown Realty Company, understood to represent the Altman interests, has purchased from George D. Hilyard 215 and 217 East Thirty-sixth Street; also 219 from Alice V. Cook et al, 221 from Thomas Hissey, and 223 from Alice V. Cook, forming a plot 97.6 by 98.9, adjoining the big six-story Altman stable at 207 to 213, which runs through the block to 208 East Thirty-seventh Street. The same company also acquired from Horatio M. Flanagan the property at 204 East Thirty-seventh Street, adjoining the stable on the east, and is understood also to have bought the parcel at 212 East Thirty-seventh Street, adjoining, to the west.

On the newly acquired plottage it is planned to erect an addition to the stable. The Altman holdings at this point now have a frontage of 197.6 feet on Thirty-sixth Street and 100 feet on Thirty-seventh Street.

Dwellings in Trade.

Mrs. Jessica E. Smith has contracted to purchase the four-story remodeled residence at 13 East Sixty-fifth Street, on a lot 22 by 100.5, and assessed at $98,000.

In exchange Mrs. Smith will give the three-story dwelling at 129 East Forty-seventh Street, on a lot 20 by 100.5, and also the five-story dwelling at 16 West Sixty-eighth Street.

Square Out Block Ownership.

Through the purchase of sixteen lots yesterday adjoining its large east side plant, the Eagle Pencil Company has come into the control of the entire block bounded by Avenues C and D and East Thirteenth and Fourteenth Streets.

The purchase takes in the block front on the west side of Avenue D from Thirteenth to Fourteenth Street, improved with one, two, and three-story buildings, having an avenue frontage of 206 feet and a frontage on each street of 188 feet. The Avenue D front, 206 by 88, was purchased from the Kiddity Realty Company, headed by Henry G. Barber, and the westerly end, formerly in two parcels, was secured from Emily T. Kent and Herbert C. Pell, Jr., Clarence C. Pell, and the United States Trust Company as trustees. The Douglas Robinson, Charles S. Brown Company negotiated the transaction.

Reported Beaver Street Deal.

Withdrawal of the twelve-story office building at 23 and 25 Beaver Street from the market led to a report yesterday that the property had been sold. The structure, which is owned by the Metropolitan Trust Company, covers a frontage of 49.5 feet on Beaver Street and runs through the block to 58 to 62 New Street, where the frontage measures 65.2 feet.

Information regarding the transaction was withheld at the office of the trust company. The property was acquired by the present owner last June as plaintiff in a foreclosure action, on a bid of $170,000.

Tenements Purchased by Investors.

Florence I. Ludlow purchased for investment from Aaron Cohen 306 and 308 West Sixty-ninth Street, two five-story tenements, on a plot 50 by 101, located 150 feet west of West End Avenue.

An investor purchased from Mrs. Elizabeth Kane the six-story tenement 204 and 206 West 141st Street, on a plot 53 by 99.11.

Buyer of Apartment Site.

Anthon Lukssey sold to a client of the Nehring Company the vacant plot, 100 by 100, on the west side of Walton Avenue, 102 feet north of Tremont Avenue. The purchaser plans the erection of two five-story walk-up apartment houses.

Buying in the Bronx.

An investing client of Richard H. Scobie purchased from the Phelan Estates, Inc., for a client, the two five-story fifty-foot apartment houses 2,247 and 2,251 Ryer Avenue. The houses have recently been completed, and were held at $110,000.

Brooklyn.

Meister Builders, Inc., sold 8,419 Seventeenth Avenue, a three-story frame cottage, on a lot 20 by 77.

John Pullman sold 695 President Street, a two-story and basement brownstone dwelling, on a lot 20 by 90, for Carol C. Doepker to a client for occupancy.

Queens Borough Sales.

The Cord Meyer Company sold to C. M. Kelly the dwelling at 75 Fifth Street, Elmhurst.

S. N. Fitkin sold to M. C. Mudgeon the dwelling on the west side of Hollis Avenue, 60 feet south of Belleview Avenue, Hollis.

E. W. Gray sold to A. Choen, the plot 40 by 130 feet, on the south side of Atlantic Avenue, 63 feet east of Channel Avenue, Far Rockaway.

Long Island.

Henry Gregnry has purchased from the Urban Development Company thirteen acres of land at Great Neck, L. I.

New Jersey.

Edward P. Hamilton & Co. sold for Frederick Pring the new Colonial residence with about a half acre at the northwest corner of Ralston Avenue and Grove Road, South Orange, N. J., to W. S. Hare for occupancy. Raymond E. Brooks purchased a similar property on the southwest corner of Grove Road and Raymond Avenue.

Westchester County.

Griffen, Prince & Ripley and Thomas S. Burke sold for Frank Loesee, the moving picture actor, his place on Elinor Place, Yonkers, to O. J. Gilson, who will make it his home. The property was held for $10,000.

Connecticut.

Mrs. Cosmo Hamilton of New York City has purchased through Kenneth Ives & Co., in conjunction with Franklin Edson of Greenwich from Charles Ingram his country place at Greenwich, containing about two acres, new residence and outbuildings. The property was held at $50,000.

Commercial Leases.

Louis Schrag leased for Mary E. Jones the store, basement, and rear building at 506 Sixth Avenue to Sohel & Lincin for a term of years.

Cammann, Voorhees & Floyd have leased for a number of years the six-story building, 50 by 100, at 548 and 550 West Twenty-third Street, between Tenth and Eleventh Avenues, to the United Forwarding Company.

The Charles F. Noyes Company has leased the store and basement at 319 Pearl Street for M. S. Gutterman, trustee, to the McMann Supply Company for a term of years.

The Ruland & Whiting-Benjamin Corporation leased 33 Rose Street for A. Schrader & Son, Inc., to J. Mendlowitch, leather merchandise, and the property at 393 and 395 West Twelfth Street for the Gregory estate to Samuel J. Miner for a long term of years.

$2,000,000 for 54 Broad Street.

Title passed yesterday from the New York Life Insurance Company to the Broadex Realty Corporation of the twenty-story office building at 54 Broad Street, showing a consideration of $2,000,000. The property was reported sold last February.

Fourth Avenue Site for Sixteen-Story Building.

The White Rose Baking and Restaurant Company, M. Strasser, President, is the buyer of the four four-story buildings 407 to 413 Fourth Avenue, sold last month.

The buildings occupy a site 90 by 84 feet, and it is understood that the buyer will improve the entire site with a sixteen-story building when there is a change for the better in building conditions.

A Recent Buyer.

Jeremiah Milbank is the buyer of the five-story dwelling 16 East Fifty-third Street, sold recently by Warren Barbour.

Realty Notes.

Arthur B. Pendleton, Secretary of the National Terra Cotta Society, will give a half-hour talk on terra cotta and its uses to the members of the Real Estate Board at the board room on Thursday at 4 o'clock.

ARE YOU THE MAN?
ARE YOU THE MAN?
ARE YOU THE MAN?

The business of the advertiser is the readjustment of going businesses preliminary to further financing. This involves variously a readjustment of the corporate form to make place for new securities, attractive to investors, often changes in the methods of doing business, and, on occasion, new man in the administration.

The work is of a highly specialized character, and so strictly limited as to require frequently the preliminary employment of nationally recognized accounting, appraisal and engineering firms.

Its full success develops often a need to find especially competent executives and three such places have opened within six months at salaries from $6,000 to $9,000 annually.

The value of the service is testified to by the amount of money secured by these businesses which have used it—$800,000 within seven months.

The service is of no value except to those businesses inherently so sound as to permit presentation of the readjusted security issues to members of the Investment Bankers Association.

The advertiser is the creator of this service, which has latterly been organized by banks and private banking firms, on behalf of their own clients and investment offerings.

The advertiser seeks to employ from one to three men who can first help in developing business, later handle important phases of the work, and, finally, fill the administrative places which open. The qualifications are, apart from those indicated by the character of the work to be done, age 23-35, some familiarity with corporate and financial problems, and ability to meet business men on their own plane.

The compensation paid will be a fixed (minimum) amount per month and an agreed upon share of the fees received.

In replying state age, employments dating from 1912, and minimum amount per month required. All replies received will be dealt with in the utmost confidence. T 88 Times.

There will be a meeting of the Principals of all schools and directors and supervisors of special branches at the De Witt Clinton High School, Fifty-ninth Street and Tenth Avenue, on April 4, at 4 o'clock, at which the President and other members of the Board of Education will make addresses on the subject of the Third Liberty Loan drive.

Franklin F. Hopper, campaign director for Manhattan, the Bronx, and Richmond, of the American Library Association is making a campaign to obtain books for soldiers and sailors, appealing to people to give what they can spare from their own shelves. While he has reached many of the teachers through various ways, it has appeared to him that through a brief appeal telling of the great need there is for books to be sent abroad and to the navy he would succeed in reaching all the teachers directly. All donations of books should be sent to a public library.

Druggists in this city have been selling vaccination certificates to children. The certificates were signed in blank by physicians and were filled in by the druggists. The Commissioner of Health recommends the following: "Principals do not accept vaccination certificates unless the physician signing certificate that he personally vaccinated the child on a particular day at a specified time. That a child unable to produce such a certificate upon entering school, or at any time subsequent thereto, be examined by a medical inspector of the Board of Health, who will furnish the necessary certificate, if, in his opinion, after such examination, the child was successfully vaccinated."

The National War Garden Commission, Maryland Building, Washington, D. C., has issued a pamphlet on "War Vegetable Gardening." This is of interest to teachers who are to direct the school garden work. Copies may be obtained, free of charge, by writing to the commission at Washington.

Dr. Kazu Noriegi, Inspector General of the Department of Education of the Japanese Government, has installed at the Teachers' College a large collection of school work done by the public school children of Japan. The exhibit will remain at the college for about two months. Teachers are invited to inspect them.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, April 2.—The weather map Tuesday night showed unusual contrasts in weather, and temperature over the Rocky Mountain region and the Plains States to the southeastward. In the former there has been moderately heavy snow, with temperatures 10 to 12 degrees below freezing; in Arkansas and Texas temperatures of 90 degrees prevailed at 7 P. M. Tuesday.

Precipitation has been very scattered. Thunder showers have occurred in Southern Michigan and thence westward to Iowa, also along the East Gulf Coast and in Northern Florida. There has been a very decided fall in temperature in the Missouri Valley and its general throughout the Rocky Mountain and Plateau regions.

Thunder showers and cooler weather are indicated in the next forty-eight hours in the Ohio Valley, Tennessee, the East Gulf, South Atlantic, and the south portion of the Middle Atlantic States. It will be considerably cooler in these regions by Thursday afternoon or night. Elsewhere in the Washington forecast district fair weather, with lower temperatures, will prevail.

Winds for Wednesday and Thursday along the North Atlantic Coast will be moderate west, fair weather; Middle Atlantic Coast, moderate south, fair; South Atlantic Coast, gentle and variable; fair.

FORECAST TODAY AND THURSDAY.

Eastern New York—Generally fair Wednesday, cooler in the interior. Thursday, fair, except rain and cooler on the coast.

Southern New England—Fair and continued warm Wednesday. Thursday, unsettled, probably showers and cooler.

New Jersey—Fair, continued warm, followed by thunder showers in the afternoon or by night, much cooler Wednesday. Thursday. Thursday fair, continued cool.

Western New York—Fair and cooler Wednesday, fair, continued cool.

Eastern Pennsylvania—Generally fair and continued warm Wednesday. Thursday, unsettled, probably showers in the south portion, much cooler.

Northern New England—Fair Wednesday and probably Thursday, not quite so warm.

The temperature record for the twenty-four hours ended at 11 P. M., taken from the thermometer at the local office of the United States Weather Bureau, is as follows:

SAYS SPIES SPOILED 2,900 GAS MASKS

Perforated Them, Then Packed Discarded Pile in Shipment, Thomas Tells Senate.

LABOR STRIKES DENOUNCED

Resolution to Suppress Enemy Language Papers—Drastic Amendment to Espionage Act.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 2.—Senator Thomas of Colorado alleged in the Senate today that German spies, working in one of the war factories, had tampered with gas masks. Out of 5,000 masks made for the American troops, he said, it had been discovered that 2,900 were defective, tiny perforations having been made in the rubber. The defective masks were discarded by inspectors but were later found packed among a shipment. Once more they were put aside. The perforations were so small, Senator Thomas said, as not to be visible to the eye until the rubber was stretched. The masks would have been entirely useless in a gas attack.

The Colorado Senator, urging the passage of a bill offered by Senator Hoke Smith, to appropriate $100,000 for preliminary work by the Bureau of Education in a campaign on illiteracy, advocated the teaching of English in every community in the country as a way of stamping out what he called Pan-German propaganda. Senator Thomas declared that in many communities English was not spoken and that German intrigue was carried on under the German tongue.

During the debate Senator King offered a resolution, providing that after July 1, 1918, and until the end of the war, "no newspaper, magazine, news item, editorial, or other matter" produced in the language of any country with which the United States is at war, be allowed the privilege of the mails. This would not apply to newspapers or magazines brought in from abroad. Violation would entail a $5,000 fine or five years' imprisonment. The resolution went to the Judiciary Committee.

Propaganda Most Dangerous.

In revealing the plot to tamper with gas masks, Senator Thomas declared that German propaganda in the United States had long since reached a "most dangerous stage."

"The time has come when no man who is unable to speak the English language in this country ought to be allowed to exercise political rights," insisted Senator Thomas. "I believe we ought to take steps now, while this war is on, to make English the universal language. There are many communities in this country where the English tongue is not heard. These communities are made up of foreigners who are banded together under the control of Boards of Education, whose members wield the influence their vote gives them, to keep up the teaching of the foreign tongue. It is nothing short of scandal. It tends to undermine the principles of Americanism.

"This absence of unity of purpose in our country has manifested itself since the war began. I know that the Secret Service system is hampered by the prevalence of so many tongues in different parts of the country. Plots of all sorts are hatched out in these nests of foreigners with practical immunity because the language that flourishes is not English. It is difficult for agents to discover these plots and punish the offenders.

"The work of German spies is a serious menace to this country. The contemptible work of perforating gas masks in one of our factories is only a small part of it. We read in today's papers of 5,000 men on strike at Newport News and 60,000 men threatening to strike in New York. Other strikes are reported throughout the country. Is this coincidence? To my mind it is nothing less than a part of the German propaganda, which avails itself of every conceivable artifice. I believe that any man who incites a strike during this wartime ought to be treated as an enemy of the country. I would punish him as a traitor."

Senator Thomas was informed, he said, that 700,000 men of draft age could not read nor speak English.

"Think of that!" exclaimed the Colorado Senator. "And we are putting these men in our army to fight for this great English-speaking race."

"That is a burning shame," commented Senator Page of Vermont. "There is the fact, also, that 1,500,000 native-born whites could not read or write English, according to the last census."

"It is a severe reflection upon American intelligence and progress," agreed Senator Thomas.

Senator Reed of Missouri blamed illiteracy for the inroads made by the I. W. W. among some classes of workmen. He denounced organized labor for not discouraging strikes.

The Judiciary Committee reported favorably an amendment to the Espionage act so as to make it a penal offense to "wilfully make or convey false reports or false statements with intent to interfere with the operation or success of the military or naval forces of the United States" or to obstruct the sale of Liberty bonds or any other Government loans, or to "wilfully cause or attempt to cause, or incite or attempt to incite, insubordination, disloyalty, mutiny, or refusal of duty in the military or naval forces," or to obstruct or discourage recruiting.

An amendment to the committee's amendment, offered by Senator Poindexter of Washington, went even further in providing against disloyal utterances.

HUDSON TUBE LINES WILL BE EXTENDED

Shipping Board Provides Better Transportation for 250,000 Workers.

Plans to extend the Hudson tubes rapid transit system from its terminal in Newark to the Newark Bay section to provide better transportation facilities for the 250,000 workers to be employed in the shipyards filling the contracts of the United States Emergency Fleet Corporation were announced yesterday by A. L. Drum, transportation engineer for the Shipping Board. Mr. Drum said that the system would be extended at a cost of less than $3,300,000, and that the improvement would mean a saving of at least $50,000,000 to the Government because it would take at least that amount to provide houses for the 50,000 workmen who will be benefited by the extension.

Work on the extension will begin at once, and it will be rushed so that the trains will be running within three months. The tracks will be laid south from the present Newark terminal through Avenue R, Newark, to the Lincoln Highway, and the new terminal will be built at the gates of the Federal Shipbuilding Company, now engaged in the construction of fabricated steel ships for the Government, but unable to rush its work because of a shortage of workmen, caused by the lack of housing facilities. From this terminal express trains will be run to Cortlandt Street in sixteen minutes and to Broadway and Thirty-third Street in twenty-six minutes. Workers may reach Atlantic Avenue, Brooklyn, in about thirty-one minutes.

It is estimated that at least 50,000 workers unable to work in the shipyards because of lack of transit facilities will be brought to the yards by the new trains and that thousands of others may be induced to work there after a subsequent plan has provided for the construction of trolley lines radiating to all the shipyards and factories from the Lincoln Highway terminal.

Survey of the transit facilities at twenty-eight other shipyards on the Atlantic Coast have been made by the Shipping Board, and many other improvements will be made. These plans will make it unnecessary for the Government to carry out its plans for providing houses for hundreds of thousands of workers, Mr. Drum said.

Gamut Club Closes Camp Tour.

The Gamut Club unit of the Stage Women's War Relief Entertainment Committee has just finished a four days' tour of camps and naval bases in the vicinity of Philadelphia and through Southern New Jersey. The workers in the units, volunteers of the stage, who contributed their services as entertainers, included Jefferson de Angelis, Percy Haswell and company, Edna West, Grace Goodall, and Muriel Pollack.

TROOPS IN QUEBEC PUT AN END TO RIOTS

Large Forces Patrol the City—Official Report of Dead and Wounded of Monday's Riot.

QUEBEC, April 2.—Large forces of troops were stationed at nightfall in the area where rioting occurred here last night. The people heeded the warning issued by the military authorities and, although the evening was pleasant, St. Joseph Street, which last night was thronged, was almost deserted tonight. The few men who were about were searched by soldiers and were told to return home.

A new battalion of troops arrived today from Toronto and gave the authorities an adequate force with which to cope with any situation that might arise. Several suspects were arrested during the evening, but there was no disorder.

An official list issued by the authorities today placed the casualties in the anti-conscription rioting last night at four civilians dead, fifteen wounded, and five soldiers wounded. It is believed others were wounded and were treated privately.

ANY ONE CAN USE THE DALTON

No more experience is required to use the 10-KEY DALTON than to use the telephone.

Executives and clerks use it with equal facility. Expert help or previous training is unnecessary.

The 10-KEY DALTON is more than an adding machine. It subtracts, multiplies and divides in a fraction of the time required by brain and pencil.

The DALTON has but one key for each figure. You strike the same key to indicate hundreds, thousands or millions. The machine places the figure in the right column.

The DALTON is simpler but more efficient. It does everything the more complicated machines do, with accuracy and increased speed.

You can operate the DALTON by "Touch Method"—possible only on the 10-Key machine.

Let us give you a DALTON demonstration in your office. Learn how it will save time, economize help and insure accuracy in your figure work.

Fore-runner of Progress

A thousand miles without changing cars; freight from coast to coast; fast express from afar;—all are the outgrowth of a great principle first applied by

when it brought under one system the early unconnected telegraph lines. On this principle of "through connections" all freight, express and sleeping car service is based today.

THE WESTERN UNION TELEGRAPH CO.

In New York, London and Paris

When a system of conducting business is approved by the world's three wonderful cities, it is surely worthy of more than a passing glance.

Great business and government institutions in London, New York and Paris have during the last 25 years installed the P. A. X. in preference to relying on ordinary telephones to furnish interior service.

The P. A. X.—our term for our Private Automatic Exchange with its automatic telephones—is the best in private exchanges.

It gives unfailing 24-hour service without operators.

Another of its visible advantages over ordinary telephones is speed.

Still another is absolute secrecy.

The character of the New York organizations using it is sufficient evidence of its merit and value.

If further proof is needed its use in every United States Arsenal and in many government institutions in England and France should satisfy.

We are certain that it can effect for you improvements in service and savings whether your organization is a factory or a bank, a department store or a publishing house, a club or a compact suite of offices.

Defends Treaty with Rumania as Bringing Security to Austrian Empire.

SERB CESSION TO BULGARIA

Says Territory Must Be Yielded —Insists He Still Favors Peace League.

"Czernin Lied," Is Reply of Premier Clemenceau

PARIS, April 3.—"Czernin lied." This is all Premier Clemenceau had to say when told today of the statement of Count Czernin that he had inquired through an intermediary whether Austria-Hungary was ready to negotiate, and if so, on what basis.

The Premier departed from Paris for the front this morning, and learned of Count Czernin's speech on his arrival there.

In its city edition yesterday The Times published textually the first half of the speech of Count Czernin, Austro-Hungarian Foreign Minister, made before a deputation of the Vienna City Council on Tuesday morning. In this part of the speech Count Czernin said he accepted President Wilson's "four principles." He also declared that the Teutonic Powers had done everything to avoid the new offensive; that the French Prime Minister had asked him what his terms of peace were, and he had replied that the only obstacle to peace for France was her desire for Alsace-Lorraine.

The remainder of the speech follows:

By The Associated Press.

AMSTERDAM, April 3.—In the course of his speech to the deputation of the Vienna City Council yesterday, Count Czernin said:

"The peace concluded with Rumania, it is calculated, will be the starting point of friendly relations. The slight frontier rectifications which we receive are not annexations. Wholly uninhabited regions, they serve solely for military protection. To those who insist that these rectifications fall under the category of annexations and accuse me of inconsistency, I reply that I have publicly protested against holding ont a license to our enemies which would assure them against the dangers of further adventure.

"From Russia I did not demand a single meter, but Rumania neglected the favorable moment. The protection of mercantile shipping in the lower Danube and the guarding of the iron gate are guaranteed by the extension of the frontier to the heights of Turnu-Severin, by leasing for thirty years a valuable wharf near this town, together with a strip along the river bank at an annual rental of 1,000 lei, and finally, by obtaining the leasing rights to the islands of Ostrova, Marecorbu, and Simeanu, and the transfer of the frontier several kilometers southward in the region of the Petroseny coal mine, which better safeguards our possessions in the Szurdek Pass coal basin.

Takes Territory at Passes.

"Nagy-Szeben and Fogaras will receive a new security frontier of an average width of from 15 to 18 kilometers at all passes of importance, as, for instance, Predeal, Bodz, Gyimes, Bekas, and Tolgyes. The new frontier has been so far removed to Rumanian ground as military reasons require.

"The rectification east of Czernowitz has protected that city against future attacks.

"At the moment when we are successfully endeavoring to renew friendly and neighborly relations with Rumania, it is unlikely that we would open old wounds, but every one knows the history of Rumania's entrance into the war and will admit that it was my duty to protect the monarchy against future surprises of a similar kind.

Predicts League of Peace.

"I consider the safest guarantee for the future, international agreements to prevent war. In such agreements, if they are framed in binding form, I should see much stronger guarantees against surprise attacks by neighbors than in frontier rectifications, but thus far, except in the case of President Wilson, I have been unable to discover among any of our enemies serious inclination to accept this idea. However, despite the small degree of approval this idea receives, I consider that it will be realized.

"Calculating the burdens with which the States of the world will emerge from the war, I vainly ask myself how they will cover military expenditures if competition in armaments remains

British Ship Losses Drop to 13, the Lowest Total in 6 Weeks

LONDON, April 3.—There was a marked decrease in the losses to British shipping through mines and submarine in the last week. Only six merchantmen of 1,600 tons or over and seven under that tonnage were sunk. Five fishing vessels were sent to the bottom. The Admiralty statement reads:

Fifteen British merchant vessels were unsuccessfully attacked by submarines.

The large vessels reported sunk includs one sunk during the week ended March 16, and the smaller vessels reported sunk include one during the week ended March 23.

The arrivals during the week ending March 30 were 2,416, and the sailings 2,375.

A Rome dispatch states that in the week ended March 30 submarines sank three Italian steamships of more than 1,500 tons and destroyed one sailing vessel of more than 100 tons, and nine sailing vessels of a tonnage under that figure.

The losses to British merchantmen last week were less than half the losses of the previous week, when twenty-eight merchantmen were sunk, sixteen of the vessels being of more than 1,600 tons burden.

With the exception of three weeks, the number of large ships sunk last week is the smallest since the intensified U-boat war began, on Feb. 1, 1917. With four exceptions it is the lowest for the total number of ships sunk. This number [thirteen] was last equaled in the week of Feb. 16.

REJECT CZERNIN'S PEACE 'WEDGE'

Washington Regards It as an Attempt to Incite Dissensions Over Alsace.

CALLED SIGN OF WEAKNESS

Wilson Is Believed to be Now Thoroughly Distrustful of Vienna Professions.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—The German peace drive is on. It was launched yesterday by Count Czernin, Austro-Hungarian Minister for Foreign Affairs, when he told a delegation from the Vienna Municipal Council that the only obstacle to an ending of the war was the attitude of France with respect to Alsace-Lorraine. Officials here were quick to interpret Count Czernin's speech as part and parcel of the great German military offensive in Picardy. They believe that it was timed to fit in with the lull in the fierce fighting that has been going on since March 21 in Northern France.

As the German armies tried to make a military wedge between the British and French forces, so their statesmen are now trying to drive a political wedge between the British and French Governments. That is how officials in Washington view the situation as developed in the speech of the Austrian Foreign Minister.

They are of the opinion that the main object of the speech was to create feeling against France among British—and perhaps French—workers, and produce a sentiment for peace in allied countries on the basis of Germany's retention of Alsace-Lorraine. Put in another way, Germany has sought to make the people of the allied nations believe that she was and is ready for peace but is prevented from entering into negotiations because the French Government insists that the recession of the lost provinces shall be a basic principle of the peace agreement.

Inciting Clemenceau's Critics.

In his speech Count Czernin declared that some time before the Teutonic offensive in the west was begun M. Clemenceau, the Prime Minister of France, addressed to him an inquiry as to the basis upon which Count Czernin would be willing to negotiate for peace. When Count Czernin answered that the only obstacle which he could see was the French desire for Alsace-Lorraine, M. Clemenceau, according to the Austro-Hungarian statesman, responded that it was impossible to negotiate on that basis. The whole inference from Count Czernin's remarks is that M. Clemenceau sought peace, perhaps without the knowledge of the other allies, found Germany and Austria willing, and then, for some cause—the wind suddenly veered, was the way Count Czernin phrased it—the French Premier used the question of Alsace-Lorraine as an excuse for not following up his overtures.

A press dispatch from Paris this afternoon says that all M. Clemenceau would say in reply to the Czernin charge was "Czernin lied." The opinion was expressed here that the matter will not rest with this terse denial, but will be brought forward by Clemenceau's critics in a demand for a fuller explanation.

This, it is believed in Washington, is exactly what is desired by Berlin, for no doubt is felt that Czernin's speech was "made in Germany." That Count

FATIGUE THE WORST FOE

Being Attacked the Only Thing That Kept Some of the Men Awake.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WAR CORRESPONDENTS' HEADQUARTERS, April 3.—One of the most astonishing things in this war is the way in which military youth recovers from the overwhelming fatigues of battle and from its breaking strain upon every quivering nerve of the human body.

I have described the weariness of the British soldiers after a week or more of fighting over the Somme battle grounds; yet nothing I said can give more than a faint idea of the exhaustion of many of these poor lads after those bad days when the enemy was all about them and trying to break between them, and they knew that they must hold them or all would be lost.

The Highlanders of the Fifty-first Division whom the King saw on the roads are as tough as any men in the British armies, yet some of their officers told me that on the last lap of their rearguard actions they were tired almost to death, and when called on to make one last effort after six days and nights of fighting and marching many of them staggered up like men who had been chloroformed, with dazed eyes and gray and drawn faces, speechless, deaf to the words spoken to them, blind to the menace about them, seemingly at the last grip of strength.

So it was with the West Riding troops round about Bucquoy, where they had dug a line of defense after beating off the attacks at Pulsieux early in the battle. They were assaulted five times, all day and night, by the First Guards Reserve and Third German Guards, who had direct orders to take Bucquoy, and they bent off these waves with frightful losses to the enemy and the loss of many of their own good men.

Gallantry of the Yorkshires.

On the 27th the enemy got into Rossignol Wood, from which a year ago I saw them retreat, and the Yorkshiremen were called on to turn them out, which they did. Next day they were attacked all along the line and repulsed the German Guards everywhere, and for the two following days were fighting patrols incessantly. The Duke of Wellington's West Riding Regiment fought most gallantly, and in one week these men and their comrades took prisoners from seven German divisions showing weight of numbers against them.

A battalion of the Yorkshire Light Infantry had hard luck in a moment of crisis, for the enemy swept over a bit of trench—one of the old German trenches derelict for twelve months till then—and when they turned to take the enemy in the rear another wave followed on and caught the Yorkshires in the back. One platoon was isolated and fought most gallantly, refusing to surrender.

"All my men are very cheery, but very tired," was the report of their General at a most critical time. Being attacked, he says, was the only thing that kept them awake. Toward the end of this fighting they had a drunken craving for sleep, and slept standing with their heads falling against the parapet, slept sitting hunched in ditches, slept like dead men when they lay on the open ground. But they waked again when the enemy attacked once more and fought him and killed him and dozed off again.

In body and brain these men were tired to the point of death. They were footsore and their limbs were stiff, and they felt like old, old men. Yet after a few days' rest they were young and fresh. That is the astounding thing.

Highlanders Seen Recuperate.

Yesterday I went again among those Highlanders who fought so long and so hard, and upon my faith it was almost impossible to believe they were the same men. Their pipers were marching up and down the roads playing "Highland Laddie" and other tunes of Scotland, and Gordons and Seaforths and Argyles stood about in the evening sunshine like men on a village green taking their ease in times of peace. Their kilts were dirty and stained, but they had washed off the dirt of battle, and shaved, and cleaned their steel hats, and the tiredness had gone out of their eyes and their youth had come back to them.

A Colonel of Seaforths came around a corner with his bonnet cocked to a jaunty angle. He had been through hell fire, but there was no smoulder of it in his smiling eyes as I saluted him.

Early in the German attack on March 21 the enemy worked round behind his battalion headquarters in a fog, having pierced down a gulley from the front line after a frightful bombardment which destroyed our defensive works. There were, with the Colonel in his dugout, a padre and a doctor, and when machine gun bullets came like the crack of whips outside he said to them: "You had better get back, the enemy is pretty close."

They obeyed his order and went out, but were captured at once by German troops swarming down.

Away in the front line was a gunner officer in an observation post with a telephone. He spoke over the wire: "There are boches in the reserve line," he said. Then, after a short silence: "There are boches in my trench." Then some other words came down the telephone: "They are bombing me." Those were the last words he spoke.

In another post with a telephone a Scottish officer kept up messages for half an hour, though the enemy had strenmed behind him. At 2 o'clock that day the enemy got into Doignies, retaken for a time, as I told before, by tanks and English troops, but the enemy's progress made it hard for the Highlanders, who were in danger of being outflanked, and orders were given for withdrawal. Next day the enemy followed them up and attacked in three waves near Hermies and were flung back with exceedingly heavy losses. Groups of Argylles were posted in sunken roads by Demicourt and their machine guns swept down platoons and companies of Germans who came within the field of fire. The Guards who attacked them came over not in

Germans Assert That Storms, and Not Allies, Halt Them

AMSTERDAM, April 3.—German newspapers received here assert that the marked decrease in the fighting in France was made necessary by the bad weather, but that it will soon begin again.

The Cologne Gazette says it learns from Berlin that the pause was a necessity. It asserts that the stormy weather of the last few days has greatly hampered the transport service of the Germans, and cites as a similar case the halt in the Italian campaign when the Tagliamento River was reached by the Teutonic Allies.

The Cologne Volkszeitung says that the pause in the battle was due solely to orders of the German army command and not to any success by the Entente Allies. The correspondent adds that the roads must be repaired, and munitions and food supplies sent up to the fighting forces, and continues:

"The bad weather perhaps may hamper our action, but the enemy will soon realize that we intend to go on with it."

A semi-official dispatch from Berlin says the Compiègne station and the railway from Clermont to Amiens are under the German artillery fire, while Compiègne and Soissons have been bombarded by German airmen.

AMERICANS HEAVILY GASSED

Attack of Unusual Severity Occurs in Sector Other Than Toul.

SHELLING LASTS ALL NIGHT

Pershing's Lines Northwest of Toul Also Under Extraordinary Bombardment.

NEW CENSORSHIP RULES

Elaborate Regulations Issued Abroad Show Pershing Will Issue Bulletins.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, April 3.—(Associated Press.)—American troops on a certain sector other than that in the region of Toul have been subjected to an extraordinarily heavy gas attack. (Part of dispatch deleted.)

The attack began last night and continued at intervals until this morning. Mingled with the gas projectiles sent over by the Germans were shells of high explosives.

The Germans energetically shelled the American line and batteries northwest of Toul last night and this morning, employing minenwerfers at some places. In view of the intensity of the bombardment, it is surprising what little damage was done.

The visibility being extraordinarily good this morning, American observers saw long lines of German artillery entering the enemy sector far in the rear. German airplanes, which attempted to cross the American lines today, brought a thousand shells bursting around them, and retired hastily.

While the activity among the American expeditionary forces for movement toward the battle line continues, one of the units which will go to Picardy came to a temporary halt today to complete preparations for battle. New equipment was issued to the men, and their rifles, guns, and machine guns were put in first-class condition. It was made sure that every weapon was ready for instantaneous work.

Many of the men took the opportunity of the halt to write home, for it probably will be the last real good chance they will have to do so for some time. Many of the men marched today through miles of tree-lined roads which were just faintly green with newly budding Spring leaves. Women and children distributed flowers to the singing and whistling marchers at many points. The Americans stuck the bouquets in the muzzles of their rifles or in their hats.

New Censorship Rules.

The following are the most important provisions of new censorship regulations which became effective today:

"It is the policy that all information not helpful to the enemy may be given to the public. The basic principle requires that all articles must meet these four conditions.

"First—They must be accurate in statement and implication.

"Second—They must not supply military information to the enemy.

"Third—They must not injure the morale of our forces here or at home or among our allies.

"Fourth—they must not embarrass the United States or her allies in neutral countries.

"The foregoing conditions apply to every article written. The specific rules which follow are intended to explain them, but never to be considered as permitting the publication of anything which conflicts with those four conditions.

"There will never be identification by numbers or organization.

"Concerning troops in the line, identification will be only as announced in the official communiqué.

"Concerning troops in training, there will be no identifications by sections, such as 'New York troops and Ohio troops,' in cable dispatches.

"When it is obvious to the censor that, in consideration of the time ele-

Foch Reassures France As to the Future; Says "Most Glorious Hopes Are Permissible"

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, April 3.—"We can henceforward regard the future with tranquillity," was the confident statement of General Foch made to René Renoult, President of the Army Committee of the Chamber, who accompanied Premier Clemenceau to the front day before yesterday. Foch even went further, according to M. Renoult, and asserted that as things now stand the most glorious hopes are permissible. Premier Clemenceau also expresses himself as completely satisfied with the prospect, and this feeling is everywhere here.

Critics agree in regarding the present pause in the battle as merely the lull before a coming storm. Henri Hidou points out the curious parallel between the first phase of the battle of the Somme in 1916, which concluded, as the present battle has done, after ten days' continuous fighting. If the parallel is to continue exact the battle should be resumed today, after a pause of three days, but this the critics regard as hardly probable, as the Germans will need some time yet to bring up their heavy artillery.

Another furious attack is inevitable, and the German objective, judging from the development of the battle so far as it has gone, will undoubtedly continue to be Paris. To this end the immediate objective must almost necessarily be Amiens.

Too much importance must not be attached to the fact that the Germnn left are intrenching themselves between Roye and Noyon. They did the same in the centre before Albert after it fell into their hands. Such a step does not imply a return to the defensive, but a simple measure of precaution. The whole German design against Paris depends on the capture of Amiens, and it is in this direction that the whole force of the coming blow will be directed.

The tactical situation may be summed up in the fact that the Germans have succeeded so far in reconstituting the famous Roye salient which they held from 1914 to 1917. But if Albert and Roye be regarded as fixed points, it is to be noted that the new salient between the two towns has a much sharper curve and should thus be much more vulnerable. The enemy is nearer Amiens than he was in 1917, but in addition to the increased vulnerability of his salient he is much less strong on his left than before.

The Germans appreciate this so keenly that it has been apparent since the 24th that they fear a French attack on Laon, which is immediately behind this vulnerable left wing.

LOOK FOR STROKE SOON BY FOCH

Washington Believes Plans for Counteroffensive Are Now Being Matured.

OUR TROOPS TO BE FACTOR

Shipping Now Available to Transport All the Men We Are Planning to Send.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—With the battle of Picardy brought to a standstill for the time being, at least, and the initial momentum of the German drive overcome, military observers here were plainly puzzled tonight by the fact that a great counterassault had not developed.

The psychological moment for the counterstroke under the rules of strategy, they think, is passing, if it has not already passed, without a recorded movement of the allied forces toward throwing back the exhausted foe before he has had time to dig himself in.

Officers here admit frankly, however, that they do not know what the situation at the front is. If any report has come from General Bliss or Pershing that would serve to explain the defensive tactics of the Allies, it is a guarded secret. Naturally nothing would be made public regarding such advices, even without Secretary Baker's order of yesterday, shutting down absolutely on War Department announcements regarding operations in France. That order has served, however, to make officers even more cautious about discussing the situation.

It is possible, it was suggested, that the plan of campaign mapped out by General Foch is of far greater scope than would be involved in an effort to hurl the enemy back to his old lines. The German defenses there, which successfully stemmed the British assault in 1916, are still intact, and even if the Allies were successful in rushing the German lines back over the twenty or thirty mile zone he has wrested from them, they would face those defenses when their own organization was badly demoralized by their advance, their men showing the wear and tear of a prolonged offensive.

For this reason some officers here inclined to look elsewhere for the aggressive campaign to which they are pinning their faith. They have counted upon the creation of a unified army under General Foch to produce offensive operations and they see nothing in the situation at the present time to warrant the conclusion that the Allies have not the necessary reserves, forces or supplies.

It was suggested that the new purpose of employing American troops to fill out allied fighting divisions might have some bearing upon the situation. If General Foch is laying his foundations for continuous operations of an aggressive character, he would need to be certain of his reserves and the detailed plans for employment of American troops would have to be worked out.

Speeding up of American troop movements to France is engrossing attention here. President Wilson held his weekly conference with the heads of

Gen. Maurice Sees Indications of an Austrian Offensive Against Italy.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, April 2.—"The Germans lost the present battle on Monday and Tuesday of last week just as they lost the battle of Verdun on Feb. 24, 1916, immediately after they captured Douaumont." This statement is boldly made in an article in the Petit Journal this morning by Abel Ferry, former Under Secretary for Foreign Affairs. He recalls the fact that on that day the French had scarcely any reserves between the Verdun bridges and the Germans; yet, through ignorance, hesitation, fatigue or exhaustion of manpower, the enemy did not follow up his success. The present battle, he contends, was lost by the Germnns when, as at Verdun, it became a race between the two sides to bring up reserves.

"Now that the French reserves are available," says M. Ferry, "each German division finds itself faced with another division ready for defense or attack. The second phase of the battle has begun, namely, the wearing down phase."

M. Ferry asserts that the present struggle is equal to five battles of Verdun rolled into one, alike as regards the material employed, the length of the attacking front, the distance of the advance, the importance placed on it by the Germens as a means of securing Prussian domination, and in the moral and political consequences which the stopping of the offensive will create.

Maurice Predicts New Battles.

LONDON, April 3.—"There are indications that an Austrian attack on Italy is in preparation, and we shall not be surprised if it develops before long," said Major Gen. F. B. Maurice, Chief Director of Military Operations at the War Office, in his weekly talk today.

General Maurice also indicated his belief that further gigantic battles were in prospect on the Western front.

"For the moment," he said, "after a series of great battles, the front both north and south of the Somme has reached a condition of stability. But we are only at the beginning of April, which is earlier than the beginning of the offensive last year, and a whole year's campaigning season is still before us.

"'It would be futile to think the German operations at an end.'

The Germans, General Maurice said, were making a great effort in the air at a time when the Allies were somewhat crippled by the loss of many airdromes and much equipment.

"The German principle," he went on, "is to concentrate everything on whatever they undertake. That principle is being applied to the western front. That is why they stopped bombarding London. While the Allies still retain superiority in the air and a preponderance of men

BERLIN SAYS BRITISH FAILED

Amiens in No Present Danger, Commander Tells the People

PARIS, April 3.—General Dumas, commanding the French armies in the north, has signed the following proclamation, which has been posted in Amiens.

"The dangers which have been announced to you do not threaten you for the moment. The military authorities give you that assurance. You see them in your midst. Warning will be given in case of peril. Keep confidence in France's hour."

LONDON, April 3.—Field Marshal Haig reports that comparative quiet reigned today on the western battle front. There was local fighting near Founchy and Hebuterne, (south of Arras,) in which many Germans were killed.

Tonight's War Office statement on operations simply says that "there is no change in the situation."

The official statement issued earlier in the day reported the occupation of Ayette, [about eight miles southwest of Arras,] the repulse of a strong German raid near Fampoux, [five miles east of Arras,] and a raid by British troops northeast of Loos, which resulted in the capture of prisoners and a machine gun.

General Haig's bulletin reads:

The day again passed comparatively quietly on the whole battle front.

There was local fighting last night and this morning in the neighborhood of Feuchy and Hebuterne. We captured two machine guns. Many Germans were killed.

The number of prisoners taken yesterday in successful operations at Ayette was 192, including six officers.

There is nothing further of special interest to report.

Following is the text of the day report:

At dawn yesterday a determined attack made by a strong party of the enemy against our positions in the neighborhood of Fampoux was repulsed after sharp fighting. A number of German dead and a few prisoners were left in our hands.

A successful local operation was undertaken by us last night in the neighborhood of Ayette, which is now in our possession. Over 100 prisoners and three machine guns were captured by us.

We secured a few prisoners yesterday through the enterprise in the neighborhood of Seree, already reported.

There is nothing further to report from the battle front.

Lincolnshire troops raided the enemy's trenches northeast of Loos yesterday morning and captured thirty-one prisoners and a machine gun.

Another successful raid, in which we captured a few men, was carried out by us last night northeast of Poelcappelle.

Downed Thirteen German Airplanes.

In intensive air fighting thirteen German aircraft were downed and eight sent down out of control by British airmen Tuesday, according to the official communication issued tonight. The British themselves lost seven machines, which are missing.

The text of the statement reads:

Hostile troops and transports on roads again were harassed Tuesday with bombs and machine-gun fire. Over a thousand bombs were dropped during the day.

The enemy's airplanes were fairly active between Albert and Moreuil. Thirteen German machines were

Ford Turning Out 2,000 Cylinders Daily For Liberty Motors; Airplane Work Improving

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—A more encouraging feeling concerning aircraft production and war preparedness generally prevailed in Washington today. This was due to several causes. One of them was the arrival of Henry Ford, the Detroit manufacturer, with news that efforts in connection with the Liberty motor for airplanes had been so successful that quantity production had progressed to the point where about 2,000 motor cylinders were being turned out daily.

Another bit of encouragement came from those who have been investigating the failure to produce aircraft according to program. They believe that difficulties are rapidly being overcome and that while the program is still far behind schedule the delivery of aircraft in quantities in France will not be delayed more than three months beyond the scheduled time.

Still more encouragement came from reports made to President Wilson by members of the council, composed of the Chairman of the War Industries Board, the Fuel Administrator, the Food Administrator, the Chairman of the Shipping Board, the Chairman of the War Trade Board, and the Director General of Railroads. This party met the President this afternoon for the regular weekly meeting. The Secretary of the Navy and the Acting Secretary of War were present also.

Part of the session was devoted to discussing measures for hurrying American troops to France. It was brought out that ships were being obtained in considerable numbers and that it would be possible to transport large bodies of troops across the Atlantic in short order. French, British, Dutch, and American tonnage is being utilized for this purpose, and ability to load vessels with troops and supplies at American ports much faster than heretofore was cited as a reason for the good showing promised.

Did you ever notice how much war news that you get in the morning paper already appeared in the final edition of the N. Y. Evening Post the night before? This reason is plain. When it is 4 o'clock in New York it is 9 at the battle front. The Evening Post now 2 cents, same as other papers.—Advt.

brought down, eight were driven down out of control, and three hostile balloons were destroyed. Seven of our machines are missing.

At night rain fell continuously until 3 o'clock in the morning, after which time four and a half tons of bombs were dropped on hostile billets and troops, our airplanes returning to their airdromes just as dawn was breaking.

FRENCH WIN GROUND IN LASSIGNY SECTOR

Repulse German Thrusts in Montdidier Region, Where Violent Gunfire Prevails.

PARIS, April 3.—Violent artillery engagements were fought north of Montdidier throughout the day, especially between Demuin and Hangard, according to the bulletin issued by the War Office tonight.

Elsewhere on the French front relative quiet prevailed. There was no infantry action.

The day statement records the extension last night of the French positions north of Piemont [near Lassigny] and the repulse of German attacks on the southern outskirts of Moreuil [northwest of Montdidier] and north of Rollot. [between Piemont and Montdidier.]

French aerial squadrons have dropped more than thirteen tons of explosives upon German positions back of the lines, and have brought down eight German airplanes.

Tonight's War Office announcement says:

There was no infantry action during the course of the day. Quite violent artillery fighting was maintained in the region north of Montdidier, especially between Demuin and Hangard-en-Santerre. It was quiet everywhere else.

The day statement reads:

On the front between the Somme and the Oise there was increasing activity on the part of the artillery on both sides. South of Moreuil the enemy made a spirited attack against the French positions between Morisel and Mailly-Raineval. It was repulsed by the French fire, and the enemy was not able to gain a footing in the French defenses, except at a single point.

A German effort north of Rollot was broken up by the French fire. Last night the French carried out a local operation on the slopes north of Piemont, in the course of which our troops enlarged their position appreciably and took sixty prisoners. There is nothing to report from the remainder of the front.

On March 31 and April 1 French aerial squadrons threw down 12,000 kilograms (more than thirteen tons) of projectiles on railways and cantonments at Ham, Chauny, Noyon, &c. A large fire was observed in the railway station at Chaulnes. German cantonments in the region of Roye were bombarded with many projectiles and attacked with machine guns from a low elevation. French pursuit planes were engaged in many fights, in the course of which eight German airplanes were brought down. Two others were put out of action.

French Extend Their Line Northward.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—An indication that heavy French reinforcements are being brought up rapidly to the point on the western front where the Germans appear to have concentrated their strongest efforts to break through is carried in information received at the British War Mission today from British headquarters in France.

The French forces, it is said, have extended their line to Thannes, near the Luce River. This enables the British to shorten their own line and to concentrate their forces.

HAIG CHECKED, BERLIN SAYS.

Tells of His Heavy Losses on Engagement in the Luce Valley.

BERLIN, April 3, (via London.)—German troops yesterday captured the heights southwest of Moreuil, on the Somme front, the German General Staff announced today. A night thrust by British troops against Ayette was repulsed by a counterattack.

The British attacked with strong forces between Marcelcave and the Luce, the statements adds, but were driven back with heavy losses.

The communication reads:

The artillery engagement near and south of Lens was more lively at times. On the battle front this fighting activity throughout the whole of the day was restricted to artillery firing and reconnoitring engagements.

A thrust during the night by English companies against Ayette was repulsed by a counterattack. During the evening the enemy attacked with strong forces between Marcelcave and the Luce River. He was driven back with heavy losses. By means of a surprise attack we gained possession of the heights southwest of Moreuil.

The destruction of Laon by the French artillery continues.

Before Verdun and in the Central Vosges the artillery activity has been revived. Southwest of Hisbach a successful thrust resulted in prisoners being brought in.

Cavalry Captain Baron von Richthofen won his seventy-fifth aerial victory.

GERMAN ACTIVITY VISIBLE.

But Movements of Troops and Guns Face Difficulties.

OTTAWA Ont, April 3.—Reuter's correspondent at British headquarters in France cales:

"Our airmen report much movement of troops, guns and transport in enemy regions, ut the Germans are experiencing unexpected difficulties in this regard.

"While for once the weather le turning against active operations, it is believed that the Germans are bound to strike again as soon as possible and as hard as possible, or admit failure, which alternative would be fraught with a reaction from which the high command shrinks."

CANADIAN ARMY HEADQUARTERS IN THE FIELD, VIA LONDON, April 3. (Canadian Press, Limited.)—Again this morning our guns, heavy and light, have smashed up the enemy trenches, communications and assembly areas, Somme Line on Fourteenth Day of the Drive.

In twenty-four hours of comparative quiet on the battle front the positions of the opposing armies have undergone little change, except for the retaking of Ayetts (south of Arras) by the British and the extension of the French lines north of Piemont, immediately to the east of Lassigny. These two thrusts by the Allies are indicated by arrows. French troops have taken over another short section of the line, extending their holdings northward to Thennes, on the Luce River, and thereby permitting a further concentration of British forces.

The War Situation

BY THE MILITARY EXPERT OF THE NEW YORK TIMES.

Some days ago it was stated in these columns that the British had only about 5,000 men holding each mile of line at the time the Germans attacked with from two to several times this number, the disproportion varying at the different points of attack. If we go no further than this, the indication is plain that the British have only about 600,000 men in France. This is, of course, nonsense, as we know they have nearly four times this number, if indeed not five times. The question is, then, where were these troops at the time of the attack and, since there are so many British in France, the attack was not stopped at the outset?

The last available figures showed over 5,000,000 British from the United Kingdom under arms in addition to the overseas forces from Canada, Australia, and New Zealand. This figure includes, however, the forces at Gallipoli, in Mesopotamia, and in Palestine, and the various groups in South Africa and in the other British colonies who now are doing defensive duty. What this number is we do not know; but it is almost positively a million men in all. In addition are included in the grand total men who are still in training and who are recovering from wounds or illness in home hospitals.

To understand where the British in France were at the time of the attack we must appreciate at the outset that the allied trench system and that of the Germans are fundamentally different. The Allies have almost from the beginning held to the principle of occupying the trenches in the first lins lightly and holding heavy reserves. The Germans, on the other hand, have up to relatively recently, adopted the opposite system of depending primarily on heavily held first-lins trenches. The result is that the British lines are more easily penetrated, at least for a certain distance until the reserves come into play. The British system, it may be noted, was adopted by the Germans last Summer in the terrific fighting about Passchendaele Ridge when the British artillery turned their front lines into a shambles.

While the British knew, or had reason to believe, that the Germans were going to attack on the western front, they did not know where the attack was to be launched and consequently could not mass in advance to meet it. Had they taken the chance on a given sector and guessed wrongly their predicament would have been well-nigh fatal, as their reserves, having been shifted, would have had to move back to the threatened front and might well have arrived too late. Therefore, while some dispositions could have been made and undoubtedly were made in anticipation of what happened, it was not possible in advance to match or nearly match the Germans at the point of extreme pressure. The British in France, aside from those in the front-line trenches, were scattered more or less over the entire front, leaving only what might be termed their reserve army of manoeuvre.

When the German attack was launched and its location definitely fixed by the development on a large scale, they were suddenly confronted with the problem of greatly increasing their numbers on the fifty-five-mile front involved. A tremendous strain was immediately placed on all available transport. It is not known naturally where these reserves were drawn from, but some of them at least—the Canadians—were drawn from sectors some distance from the actual fighting front.

In order to meet the German onslaught, somewhere in the neighborhood of half a million men had to be shifted. The amount of transportation required for an army corps of 40,000 men is 110 Continental railroad trains, which, of course, take care of the cavalry, the artillery equipment, and all other paraphernalia that goes with a complete army unit. From this it can be at once seen how tremendous the transport problem was and also why it was that the reserves did not arrive in time to hold up the German progress. Add to this the enormous supply of munitions that were necessary for the defense and the problem assumes staggering proportions.

As to the fighting of yesterday, little can be said. Both armies were as a whole resting, pending, probably, the arrival of suitable weather and of reinforcements. Only at isolated points was there activity. What gains there were, and these were minor, are credited to the Allies. The British took the village of Ayette, about which there has been extremely severe fighting, and further south gained something at Hebuterne. Further north the Germans tried their hand again along the Scarpe in a heavy local attack near Fampoux. But this was completely checked before it was fairly started.

On the French front the Germans again tried to push forward between Moreuil and Mailly in order to widen the Montdidier wedge, but here as in the north they were beaten back and had to abandon the attempt until greater forces were available. All of these actions, however, were decidedly minor as compared to the fighting of the last ten days and have consequently no general significance.

The most important news is the announcement that the allied reserve army, about which so much has been written, is still intact and has not yet been in action. This was supposed to be the case, but the confirmation is calculated to give added confidence in the ability of the Allies to bring about the undoing of the great German effort.

our artillery co-operating with the infantry in fifteen minutes of barrage fire, while our machine guns swept No Man's Land and the opposing trenches. Our "Stokes" and trench mortars added the weight of their fire to the program which gave the enemy further grim notice of our readiness to meet his offensive operations. All night long, too, our guns maintained a slow fire on enemy areas, punctuated with harassing fire programs at intervals.

While both the enemy's weight of artillery and infantry concentration point to another attempt against Arras and Vimy Ridge, nothing more than patrol activity has characterized our front line, save for one raid north of Acheville against an enemy post, as a result of which we captured one prisoner.

In visits to batteries, battalions and brigades and divisions the correspondent has found high spirits everywhere. It is felt that Germany has lost the first play in her desperates gamble for victory, and, while further bitter fighting is looked for, there is no conviction anywhere that the enemy can succeed in the future where he has failed in the past.

TRIBUTE TO OUR AIR FORCE.

British War Office Calls Its Aid in Battle "Invaluable."

LONDON, April 3.—The British War Office pays a high compliment to American airmen in the official statement issued tonight on aerial operations.

"During the last fortnight of intense fighting in the air," says the statement, "the assistance rendered by the personnel of the American air service attached to the Royal Air Service has been invaluable."

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN FRANCE, April 3, (Associated Press.)—An interesting document relating to the German casualties has been found on a German officer of the 140th Infantry Regiment of the Fourth Division. It records that on the second day of the offensive out of four companies in the battalion to which the officer belonged there were then in line only three officers and fifteen noncommissioned officers and ninety-four men.

BAKER VISITS ORLANDO.

Confers Also in Rome with the Italian War Minister.

ROME, April 2.—After his arrival from the Italian front today, Newton D. Baker, the American Secretary of War, called upon Premier Orlando.

In greeting the Secretary, the Premier said that he spoke in the name of the Italian Government and people who had been so closely connected with the United States in the past through emigration, and now were linked indissolubly in a "sacred alliance." Later Secretary Baker visited General Zupelli, the Minister of War, and discussed the military situation with him at length.

Finance Minister Nitti called upon Secretary Baker and renewed their acquaintanceship formed in America. Secretary Baker said he was greatly touched by the genial warmth of the welcome extended him in Italy.

In the evening Secretary Baker had dinner with Ambassador Page and the staff of the American Embassy.

ITALIANS BOMB METZ.

Airmen Now on French Front Very Active—La Guardia in Paris.

PARIS, April 3.—Captain Fiorello la Guardia of the American Flying Corps, who was injured recently in an aerial accident in Italy, is spending a few days in Paris. The Captain, who is a representative in Congress from a New York City district, has recovered completely from his injury and is following the work of Italian aviators on the French front with the utmost interest.

Caproni airplanes bombed an airdrome at Metz on the night of March 17 and again on March 23. Italian squadrons also bombarded the railway station at Thionville on the night of March 24 and succeeded in hitting a train filled with reserve troops going to the Picardy front.

GREET OUR MEN IN ENGLAND

Stars and Stripes Hoisted on Ancient Town Hall—People Throng Streets.

SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND, April 3.—American troops were entertained at a civic reception at a historic centre in England yesterday. The American flag flew over the town hall, which dates back more than three centuries before Columbus discovered America.

Headed by a band, the Americans marched through the streets crowded with cheering people. The Mayor and other prominent citizens welcomed the soldiers, and refreshments were served by a committee of women headed by the wife of the Mayor.

1,402 LEAVE FOR UPTON.

"Gas House District" Gives Its Draft Men a Send Off.

The third contingent of the second call for selective draft men, numbering 1,402, reported at Camp Upton yesterday afternoon. These represented districts in all boroughs except Richmond.

The Manhattan units represented, for the most part, that part of the city known as the "Gas House District." The people down there gave the boys a great send-off, an early morning parade which preceded the entrainment being led by bands, while thousands of citizens lined the sidewalks and cheered. The members of the various District Boards were in the parade, as was also a majority of the politicians resident in the "Gas House" district.

Ten of the Brooklyn contingent of 456 drafted men scheduled to go to Camp Upton yesterday had not put in an appearance when the special train pulled out of the Carlton Avenue Railroad yard and orders for their arrest were issued. One of the men who failed to report was married on Tuesday night. He was found at his home and, despite the sobs and tears of his bride, was dragged away to be a soldier.

steel helmets but in pickelhaube for pride and glory. Others who came against the Scots were the famous Cockchafers or Maikaefer, whose regiment was cut up by a Welsh battalion on Pilken Ridge.

Guns Saved Under Foe's Nose.

It was necessary to withdraw again as the enemy was advancing on the left by Morchies, Vaux-Vraucourt and Beaumetz. There were a number of heavy guns in Beaumetz and the Highlanders were determined to save them at all risks. At night steam tractors went up into the village with Germans close to them all round and hitched their caterpillars to the guns and brought them out under the very noses of the enemy and saved every one.

Pioneers of Highland regiments with field commands of engineers and odd units made a perimeter defense of Bougny, with a body of Gordons, commanded by an officer who has appeared in many of my little pictures of this war since the battle of Loos and daye at Martinpuloh, when he served with other Gordons of that gay and gallant crowd.

He wae wounded in the battle of Flanders, he had only come back to France a little while, and now outside Beugny was wounded again in the leg. His men carried him out on a stretcher, and on the way back he was wounded again in the leg.

The enemy was still advancing like a tide while English troops held the lines outside Bapaume. The Jocks passed through these ruins refreshing themeelves in an abandoned canteen where there were fresh eggs and biscuits, and so came to Loupart Wood which overlooks a great stretch of that desolate world of the Somme battlefields, where thousands of little white crosses tell of the strife that passed over this mangled earth. Over the old places where they had fought two yeare before, these Highlanders marched now, leaning against each other, some holding hands like children, falling into depths of sleep whenever they halted for a brief spell, with the enemy trying to encircle them and with heroic rearguard actions being fought all around them.

Queer Friendly Message.

A queer friendly message came to them almost at the journey's end. It was wafted from the enemy lines, sent over in a small balloon:

"Good old 51st Division! Sticking it yet! Cheery, oh!"

That balloon and message now belong to a Scottish sergeant, who would not part with them for any gold.

Some of the most resolute rearguard fighting in these recent battles was done by some battalions of Manchester and other Lancashire troops around about Bihucourt, Bucquoy and Avette. That village was recaptured today by a brilliant little attack when the enemy was pouring down the Arras-Bapaume road.

After beating off the enemy and restoring the line through Ervillers, Behagnes and Sapignies, these men were ordered to hold another line further back, and in a most orderly way, as though on field manoeuvres, made that movement in three stages in the face of the enemy. To cover their withdrawal they made three counterattacks with their rearguards, and the Lancashire Fusiliers swept into Behagnes at the bayonet point.

It was not the only bayonet charge made by these Lancashire troops. The Manchesters broke the German line near Abalizeville and brought out a number of German officers and men as prisoners with several machine guns. It was the Manchesters also who attacked Bihucourt with tanks on the afternoon of March 23 and cleared it of the enemy until fresh hordes bore down. From the first these Lancashire men fought with a grim, fierce spirit to hold back the enemy tide.

A crowd of men of Yorkshire took their band with them into the battle "for the sake of swank," said one of their officers, who is proud of it, and that music playing gay tunes with the beat of drums, was like wine to the weary men and cheered up all the troops in their neighborhood.

No historian will ever be able to tell in full the narrative of the last twelve days with all the adventures of thousands of men moving across broken country, with masses of Germans on their flanks, where every man had hairbreadth escapes and every battalion its historic episode and every division an Iliad of its own.

I wish I had time and strength to tell much more, to pay some small tribute to all those brave fellows who do not ask for praise, but like to think that their folk at home know what they have done to save their country in its hours of gravest danger, at all risks of life and limb and to the very last ounce of their bodily strength.

Seem Like Supernatural Beings.

The writing of these things is easier than the doing of them, the reading of them is easier still, so easy that it may make no deep impression on the imagination and heart of the world. To us out here, meeting these men, seeing the look of them after their battles, knowing the ground over which they came, hearing the shellfire that came out of the woods and roade on their way, and having a clear knowledge of their danger and suffering and sacrifice, greater than I can put into worde, in a battle more stupendous than the mind can picture, all the crowds of men who have come through seem like supernatural beings, men who have passed through the gates of death, heroes of a mythology which we know to be true.

They are just simple lads, nobodies, as a friend of mine calls them, not endowed with supernatural qualities, not even braver than men in the bulk, not finding any sport in all this, not indifferent to death or pain or the fright of high explosives, yet sticking it, fighting through, never giving up their pride of spirit, because they knew that every old thing was up against them and if they failed all might be lost.

So to get a salute from one of these private soldiers is an honor as though a great Captain saluted one, and to talk to any officer who has been through these things fills one with a sense of having been in touch with some famous character of history.

For what these men have done, these nobodies whose names are unknown, who have come from little villas in London and from the Lancashire warehouses and sweet Devonshire lanes, and the wide Scottish moors and the wet moist wind of Southern Ireland and the streets of Belfast, will be famous for all time in history; and any man who fought down from the Cambral salient or St. Quentin will be like those who were with Henry at Agincourt, and the fewer men the greater share of honor, for there were not enough of them against the German tides, yet enough to save us all.

ATTACKS HINDENBURG FOR HIS 'STRONG PEACE'

Newspaper Insists His Plea to Reichstag Is Contrary to Government View.

By GEORGE RENWICK.
Copyright, 1918, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

AMSTERDAM, April 3.—The Frankfurter Zeitung of last evening contains a severe criticism of Hindenburg's telegram to the Reichstag.

The newspaper seizes on the sentence in which he expresses the hope that the Reichstag also will now declare for a strong German peace which alone can preserve Germany from war in the future. "Such words," it says, "are open to different interpretations, but it cannot be overlooked that they are just those words of which the opponents of the policy, which hitherto has been that of the German Empire, have made their program. A weak and un-German peace is desired by no earnest German, but the formula, 'a strong German peace which will protect us from war in the future' is the formula of the opposition parties on the right wing of the Reichstag, and those parties have explained that such strength as will assure us against future war can only be obtained by territorial gains, by annexations in the East and in the West.

"The Government and the Reichstag (and the Government is responsible to the Kaiser presumably also the supreme head of the State) stand by opposite point of view. They have definitely rejected the demand for annexations. They hold that annexation does not always mean increased strength and that the annexation of Polish as well as of Belgian territory would result in a weakening of the empire.

"Whether after the world war any lasting guarantee for the maintenance of peace is possible is doubtful enough, but that a new partition of Poland offers no assurance of world peace appeare to be certain. It appears to us to be equally certain that the addition to Germany of parts of Belgium would threaten our fatherland with new and terrible wars of revenge.

"Although, in fact, Hindenburg does not mention Poland or Belgium, there can be no doubt that his telegram will be used as propaganda for the policy represented by the Fatherland Party. Hindenburg's advisers cannot be surprised at that.

GERMAN TROOPS LANDED IN FINLAND

Effected After Difficult Passage Through Ice and Mine Fields, Berlin Reports.

AMSTERDAM, April 3.—A Berlin official communication received here reports the landing of troops in Finland. The statement says:

"Part of our naval forces this morning, after a difficult passage through the ice and mine fields, landed troops, destined to give help in Finland, at Hango."

STOCKHOLM, April 3, (Associated Press.)—White Guards are bombarding Tammerfors, Finland, and many buildings are on fire.

The Finnish Press Bureau reports that Russian reinforcements have reached Finland, including the celebrated Preobrashensky Guard, which has taken up a position on the Karelian front.

A Swedish detachment, fighting with the White Guards, has lost fifteen killed and seventy-nine wounded of the total of 841 men.

TO GIVE FURLOUGHS FOR WORK ON FARMS

War Department Takes Steps to Permit Troops to Serve Farmers.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—The War Department has taken steps for the execution of the act of March 16 permitting the granting of furloughs to enlisted men to enable them to engage in farming during the present season. General orders governing the granting of these furloughs were signed late yesterday afternoon by Major Gen. Marsh, the Acting Chief of Staff, and sent out today by Adjt. Gen. McCain.

The order authorizes commanding officers to grant furloughs, within prescribed rules, whenever it appears that they will contribute to increased farm production. They will be without pay.

Furloughs granted under this order will be for short periods and largely for seeding and harvesting time. They may be given by commanding officers of posts, camps, cantonments, divisions, and departments. Such furloughs will not be granted to enlisted men of or above the grade of First Sergeant, nor will they be granted in an organization that has been ordered, or is in transit, from points of mobilization or training to a port of embarkation. All furloughs will be recalled and the men ordered to their organizations when the latter have received preparatory orders for duty overseas.

FERRY SAYS DRIVE IS NOW A FAILURE

and machines, we are far from having anything like command of the air. The enemy is able to take as many photographs as he requires and to conduct the necessary reconnoissance and scouting by air.

Germans Reorganizing Army.

"At present the enemy is engaged in an effort to reduce the congestion in the newly occupied territory. His army is in two main masses, divided by the Somme. The congestion is particularly severe in the north, where, thanks to the resistance of our splendid Third Army, we were able to effect a more systematic destruction of roads and lines of communication.

"In the German attack they equipped the men with rations for several days and sent them to the front to last as long as they could on these rations, regardless of transport. Then they replaced them with divisions from the rear similarly equipped with 'iron rations.' That device is now at an end, and the army must move up supplies.

"A great number of German divisions are exhausted and must be moved back to the depots and be replaced with fresh divisions from other parts of the front. The Germans thus far have used only about half of their available divisions, and there is no reason to suppose that they are done with the attack.

"Their line of thought must naturally be: 'We broke through the enemy's well prepared line in a week, and he is now in improvised defenses; if we get up fresh troops and artillery there is no reason why we should not repeat the process.'

"That is what we have to expect on the west front in the immediate future."

Discussing casualties, General Maurice said:

"There is no question but that the German losses in the last fortnight have been very considerably heavier than ours."

War Savings Record for a Day.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—The War Savings campaign made a new record today with $4,120,932 recorded at the Treasury for the day's receipts from stamp sales.

TOKIO CONFIRMS SHIP AGREEMENT

Announces That Japan Will Turn Over 450,000 Tons, Including 150,000 Tons Under Charter.

TOKIO, Thursday, March 28.—(By The Associated Press.)—It is learned from an authoritative source that an agreement has been concluded under which Japan will turn over to the United States 450,000 tons of shipping.

Of this total 150,000 tons will be supplied immediately, in return for no consideration except the chattering rates of the Allies. The Japaness Government will make up the difference between this payment and the Far Eastern rate, involving an expenditure of 18,000,000 yen. Another 100,000 tons of new ships will be delivered between May and December, in exchange for an equal tonnage of steel. The remaining 200,000 tons will be turned over as constructed later, upon terms which are mutually regarded as most satisfactory.

The plan was arranged by the American Ambassador, Roland S. Morris, with the fullest co-operation on the part of the Government and shipbuilders.

46 RELEASED IN QUEBEC.

Eleven Others Arraigned in Anti-Draft Riot Cases.

QUEBEC, April 3.—Forty-six of the sixty-two men arrested in the anti-draft riots were discharged today by Justice Langelier, it having been established that they were only spectators.

Eleven others against whom more serious charges have been preferred had a preliminary hearing.

SHOOT SPIES, SAYS TAFT.

But the Ex-President Says Mobbing Is Akin to German Savagery.

MUSKOGEE, Okla., April 3.—"Spies should be court-martialed, lined up, and their citizenship ended by bullets; those who express treasonable sentiments should be tried and punished, but in all cases law should be obeyed and mob violence such as practiced in certain parts of the United States should be everywhere condemned, that the United States may not sink to the lawless savagery of the Germans," ex-President Taft declared here today in an address before the Chamber of Commerce.

Is Juvenile Crime On the Increase in Germany?

JUVENILE crime! Little children taught to lie—to steal—to murder—left alone to perpetrate who knows what horrors!

There is danger of just this in Germany to-day.

An American who was sent abroad as war correspondent by the Associated Press has seen Germany in her worst extremity.

SPEED UP, URGES WOOD.

Won't Win, He Says, Without Paying Price of Waiting Too Long.

BALTIMORE, April 3.—General Leonard Wood made an address tonight at "Over There," the Liberty Loan Exhibition, in the course of which he said:

"We're in a war which is going to tax us to the utmost. We are going into the valley of the shadow. We're going to win, but not easily, not without paying the price that all must pay for waiting too long. Everything we have must be engaged. Men, women, children must lend their activities.

"Great, glorious France is giving her sons, Britain is shedding the blood of thousands. They are glorious, but they are tired. They are weary, but, speaking literally, on a long tour through the trenches, I have yet to hear one man talk of quitting. Their determination should be an inspiration to us. What they need is the vigor of our support. We must adopt the motto of the Black Prince—'I serve.'

"Inefficiency at this time is treason. There are thousands of things we can do, if we but realize the seriousness of the situation in the world tonight.

"Do not talk of this as the last great war. God will have to change human nature before we can discuss such a thing. There will be other wars, and America, to keep them from her shores, must build up her strength, remaining yet tolerant, but firm in her purposes. We must have forces to prevent war, as well as to wage it. Indeed, if we do not speed this great war may be fought here."

FRANCE OPPOSES AIDING BOLSHEVIKI

Help Given by America Would Be Turned Against Allies, Journal des Debats Holds.

WOULD FLOW TO GERMANS

Recent Events, Writer Says, Prove That Russian Opposition to Teutons Cannot Be Organized.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, April 3.—French opinion continues to watch with anxiety the possibility of any American action in conjunction with the Maximalists that may aim at the restoration of orderly government in Russia. There is a fear here that the American Government may be induced through a feeling of sympathy with the revolution to extend moral and material aid to the Trotsky-Lenine government, which French opinion almost unanimously regards as unworthy of the slightest confidence. The only exception to this feeling of reprobation is found among the extreme Socialist group, who warmly welcome the fact that by the return of M. Noulens to Moscow the French Government has resumed official relations with the Bolsheviki.

In an article in Humanité Marcel Sembate expresses the hope that M. Noulens may be able to influence the decisions of Trotsky in the direction of forming centres of resistance against the German invasion.

The Journal des Débats throws the coldest of cold water on this view, and points out in a leading editorial that so far all attempts to create any anti-German army or other organizations has failed miserably. Even Alexieff, Kornilloff, Radzianko, and other leaders assembled at Novotcherkask, the writer insists, have been able to arrive at nothing serious, and Alexieff himself has been arrested by the very Cossacks who were expected to drive the Maximalists from power. The Débats is convinced that any effort in this direction will be absolutely useless.

"Unhappily," continues the journal, "they still have some strange illusions in the United States. Washington still takes the Bolsheviki to be the representatives of Russian democracy and continues conversations with them. This only induces the accomplices of Germany to ask help of the United States."

Commenting on a "florid interview" published here between Herman Bernstein, correspondent of The New York Herald, and M. Timiriazef, ex-Russian Minister of Commerce, the Débats says that Timiriazef is pro-German and took a leading part in negotiating the Russo-German treaty of commerce of 1904, which gave Germany immense advantages without compensation for Russia.

"Today," says the writer in the Débats, "Timiriazef pretends to be anxious for a counterweight to the economic influence of the Germans and appeals to the United States for brains and money. Bernstein dilates complacently on the advantages America may draw from this exportation of intelligence and gold to Russia. This may seduce shortsighted people. But the Allies are at the most terrible phase of the war and must devote the last cent and the last atom of intelligence to the effort for victory.

"To bother about the reconstitution of Russia at this moment would be a crime. After the war, and according to the results of the war, the question may be considered, but anything organized in Russia until then will only be used against us. Anything the Allies might do there would be monopolized by the Germans or used against us. Also, don't let us be duped into sending goods of any kind to Russia in order to preserve commercial relations, because the Germans would only buy up all such goods to supply their own needs.

"The best service the United States can render to those Russians who have remained loyal to us," concludes the article, "is to facilitate Japanese penetration of Siberia."

STILL SEES PERIL IN SIBERIA.

London Paper, Repeating Story of Armed Prisoners, Urges Action.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, April 3.—The following note appears in The Daily Chronicle:

"What in Europe the western battle excludes other topics from the public mind, intervention no longer occupies its old place of importance in Japan. This is due to local causes, but it also reflects the hesitancy of Washington.

"'If we cannot be trusted, let us not undertake it,' say some of the Japanese objecters. Others aver that it is not Japan's part merely to obey the Allies' behests. 'We must move, if we move at all, in our own national interests,' they say. Nor does suggested American participation remove any objections. It rather strengthens them.

"The psychological moment for action has passed. The enthusiasm so apparent six weeks ago has largely evaporated. Yet the danger grows. Bolshevist penetration extends to all parts of Siberia—to Tomsk, where the civil administration is in their hands, and to Vladivostok, where they seem to have severed the cables, leaving only the wireless on warships as a means of communication with Tokio. On top of it came the temporary detention of the Japanese Ambassador by Red Guards on the frontier of Chinese Manchuria. Meanwhile 80,000 German prisoners are being organized into army corps.

"If Japan moves, it will probably be in response to direct menace to her national existence; but her difficulties increase with each week's delay."

RUSSIAN SPELLING REFORM.

Elimination of Three Letters Makes Language Easier.

PETROGRAD, Jan. 31, (Correspondence of The Associated Press.)—Russian school children are rejoicing. Not only have the school teachers gone on strike, but the Bolshevik Government has adopted phonetic spelling, which will eliminate some of the difficulties of Russian orthography.

The National Commissioner of Education, with a view to raising the general standard of education, has issued a decree that, from Jan. 1, the new simplified spelling is to be taught in the schools. The reformed spelling consists in the elimination from the Russian alphabet of three letters—yatt, phita, and the simple form of e.

The pronunciation of these letters is identical, respectively, with a, f and the double form of e, and the correct use of the respective letters has always been a test of education. The yatt, a survival of one of the old Slavonic characters, has been a stumbling block to many, not only to foreigners, but even to middle-class Russians.

FIFTY OFFICERS REDUCED.

Pershing's Demand for High Efficiency in France Has Effect.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—General Pershing's reiterated recommendation that only officers who show the highest efficiency be placed in command of troops sent to France has resulted in the reduction of many officers who in the early months of the war were promoted from the ranks of Majors and Captains in the regular army to that of Colonel in the national army.

Army orders today showed that not fewer than fifty such officers had resigned their commissions as the result of reports of officers of the Inspector General's department that the men had failed to attain the standard required.

A large proportion of the officers who have lost their temporary promotions will be tried in other posts for which they are better equipped. The remainder will go back to units of the regular army in their former grade. The vacancies left by this change will be filled largely by temporarily promoting other regular army officers.

While the number of officers who have failed to make good is large, a vast majority of those promoted passed the tests and cases of exceptionally good work have not been uncommon. Two officers who were Majors in the regular army a year ago, and who were assigned to National Guard regiments as Colonels, have been recommended by their division commanders for promotion to Brigadiers.

AMERICANS WIN CROSSES.

Awards to Lieut. C. R. Holmes and Sergeant J. A. Murphy.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, April 3, (by the Associated Press.)—The War Cross has been awarded to Lieutenant C. R. Holmes of South Carolina and Sergeant James A. Murphy.

Lieutenant Holmes is the man who recently captured a German sentry from his post. Sergeant Murphy killed a German while he was trying to shoot an officer.

TRIO OF OUR FLIERS KILLED.

LONDON, April 3.—At the Lincolnshire Airdrome today, in a ground collision between airplanes, Lieutenant S. Hugaenin of the American flying contingent, recently of Wisconsin; Corporal Seisert, and Private Krautman were killed. A fourth man was injured.

AMERICAN TROOPS UNDER GAS ATTACK

ment, no military information will be given to the enemy by articles sent by mail, there can be identification of small groups, as 'New England troops' and 'New York troops.' Reference cannot be made to troops of the National Guard or the national army or regular organization. During this war we have only one army, the United States Army.

"As to individuals, a name can be used whenever a story materially is obviously helped. The determination of this is in the hands of the censor, not of the writer.

Limit Mention of Places.

"Places can be mentioned only to a limited extent. Within the advance zone no sector shall be said to have any American troops in it until the enemy has established it as a fact by taking prisoners.

"Ship movements, real or possible, will not be discussed. Plans of the army, real or possible, will not be discussed. Numbers of troops as a total or as classes will not be discussed, except by communiqué.

"The effects of enemy fire will not be discussed except by communiqué.

"Articles for publication in Europe will be scrutinized carefully to make sure that they do not hold possibilities of danger which the same stories in the United States would not hold. This applies not only to military information, which thus would be in the hands of the enemy within a day after writing, but also to an emphasis on small exploits, which it may be extremely desirable to print in the United States, but quite undesirable to print in Europe. Exaggeration of our activities, accomplished or contemplated, will be studiously avoided because of the bad effect of this on the respect our allies have for our promises.

"Casualties as to numbers will be passed only as indicated in the Communiqué. Individual dead or wounded will be mentioned by name only where it is reasonably manifest to the censor that the facts are correct, and that some definite and good aim, such as offering examples of heroism, will be served by printing.

"In the main it is desirable to print no names of dead and wounded until the department has had time to notify their families, and as notifications comes only through the hospital reports, it is apparent they will be delayed.

"Under no circumstances are there to be reports, as for example, 'That a Major General was killed.' Either the man's name is to be given or he is not to be mentioned at all, whether for military reasons or because such a vague statement would uselessly alarm the families of all other Major Generals in France.

Where Dispatches Must Be Submitted.

"The American censorship is final in articles concerning American troops. Three cases present themselves and are disposed of as follows:

"If American troops are operating in a strictly American sector, the news is submitted to American General Headquarters.

"If the troops are operating in a strictly allied sector, the news must be submitted only at the general headquarters of the allied army concerned.

"If the troops are operating in conjunction with an Allied force, the news of those joint operations must be submuted at either the Field Headquarters of the American Expeditionary Force or the Field Headquarters of the Allied army concerned. In such a case the American officer designated as Field Censor with the Allied Army General Headquarters will examine every mention of American troops in such story. His written signature and the addition of 'controle Americane' will be essential to the passage of that portion of such story.

"In the same way the officer of an Allied army concerned, and designated as Field Censor with the American General Headquarters will examine every mention of Allied forces in such story, and His O. K. will be essential to the passage of that portion of the story."

WAR DEPARTMENT ISOLATED.

Washington Gives Out No News of Our Troops at Front.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—As far as news of what is taking place in France is concerned, the War Department is completely isolated from the American public.

Under the order cabled to the War Department from France by Secretary Baker and promulgated yesterday, nothing whatever concerning the activities of American troops in the war area is to be given out by the department. The order provides that the prohibition applies to "all matters pertaining to events, persons, policies, or operations abroad."

The order, as construed by officials of the War Department and the army, forbids them even to make public the lists of casualties received from General Pershing, the effect of which is to rob those interested in men of the fighting forces of knowledge that these men have been killed or wounded or have died of disease. Today, for the first time, there was no casualty list issued by the Adjutant General.

The order serves also as a ban on the publication of the War Department's weekly review of military operations in the several fighting areas. The French, British, Italian, German, and Austrian War Offices issue daily communiqués concerning what is taking place in localities where their troops are stationed, but the American War Department has never followed the practice, even since American soldiers have been engaged in active trench warfare. Under Secretary Baker's new order there is to be no official news through the War Department in Washington of the activities of American troops engaged with the enemy in Picardy. Such information, with the stamp and seal of the War Department, is not to be furnished to the American people.

With respect to casualties, the next of kin or other designated person will be notified as usual by telegraph that the kinsman or friend has been killed or wounded or has died of disease, but other relatives or friends will not be privieged to learn of the casualty through the newspapers.

Hereafter, according to Secretary Baker's new order, all news of the American expeditionary forces must come from headquartere in France. War Department officials are wondering if this means that the casualty lists are to be telegraphed to American newspapers by their correspondents with General Pershing's army. If that plan is followed, officials believe it will result in considerable distress, for the officials in charge of the casualty lists at General Pershing's headquarters will have no means of knowing when they give the lists to the newspaper correspondents that relatives or other designated persons in this country shall have received the telegraphic notice from the Adjutant General before the names of those killed or wounded are published in American newspapers.

The workings of Secretary Baker's new order were strongly in evidence today. Newspaper men who applied to War Department officials for information of happenings connected with the operation of troops abroad were told that there was no use in visiting officials, as no news could be furnished. The order apparently is being construed so as to prohibit the disclosure of any information whatever, even information pertaining to troops in this country, although the order says specifically that "similar matters affecting forces at home will be given out from the War Department."

That the new order of Secretary Baker is operating to keep the War Department during the Secretary's absence from obtaining information as to what is being done by General Pershing in disposing of American troops to assist the British and French in Picardy is suspected. The War Department was not informed until after it had been told in press dispatches from France that General Pershing had gone personally to General Foch to tender the services of all the American expeditionary forces for the fighting in Picardy. Nor did the department know that this Government had consented to the designation of General Foch as Generalissimo of the allied armies.

The first information department officials had of the designation, other than the news printed that morning in THE NEW YORK TIMES, came through the action of the White House in giving out President Wilson's telegram of felicitation to General Foch. Department officials are hurt over the way in which they have been ignored in military matters directly affecting them, and their feelings have been further lacerated by the order of Secretary Baker.

Germany Won't Coal Holland; May Let Spanish Ships Sail

THE HAGUE, April 3.—Germany has declined to accept the proposal of Holland to continue the supply of coal pending negotiations for a new economic agreement. The exportation of other articles from Germany to Holland, however, will continue on the same basis as heretofore.

MADRID, April 3.—After protracted negotiations between Spain and Germany, it is believed that transatlantic voyages by Spanish ships will be resumed. About 1,000 passengers and more than 2,000 sacks of mail are awaiting departure.

It is reported that Germany will permit the mail and passengere to start, but has forbidden the transport of merchandise.

BRITISH ENTHUSIASTIC OVER AMERICAN COMING

Expect Great Results from Inclusion of Our Battalions in Their Divisions.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN FRANCE, April 3, (Associated Press.)—The announcement that American battalions are to be added to British divisions has created the greatest enthusiasm.

The fact that such a move was to be made had been known for some time by the commanding officers, who look for most important results from it, and accord the highest praise to the Americans for the attitude of self-sacfice they have adopted in thus placing themeselves under a foreign divisional command.

This action means that for the time being the American officers and men may give up much in the way of possible promotion which they might obtain were they fighting under their own command.

The American troops are looked upon as being among the best in thefield, and it is believed that tho will fall immediately into their niches, thereby swelling each British division affected.

CZERNIN EXPECTS PEACE BY FORCE

unrestricted. I do not believe that it will be possible for the States after this war adequately to meet the increased requirements due to the war. I think, rather, that financial conditions will compel the States to enter into a compromise regarding the limitation of armaments.

"This calculation of mine is neither idealistic nor fantastic, but is based upon reality in politics in the most literal sense of the word. I, for my part, would consider it a great disaster if in the end there should be failure to achieve general agreements regarding the diminution of armaments.

"It is obvious that in the peace with Rumania we shall take precautions to have our interests in the questione of grain, food supply, and petroleum fully protected. We shall further take precautions that the Catholic Church and our schools receive the state of protection they need, and we shall solve the Jewish question. The Jew shall henceforth be a citizen with equal rights in Rumania.

Wants Indemnity from Rumania.

"The irredentist propaganda, which has produced so much evil in Hungary, will be restrained and, finally, precautions will be taken to obtain indemnification for the injustice innocently suffered by many of our countrymen owing to the war.

"We shall strive by means of a new commercial treaty and appropriate settlement of the railway and shipping questione to protect our economic interests in Rumania.

"Rumania's future lies in the east. Large portione of Bessarabia are inhabited by Rumanians, and there are many indications that the Rumanian population there desires close union with Rumania. If Rumania will adopt a frank, cordial, friendly attitude toward us we will have no objectione to meeting those tendencies in Bessarabia. Rumania can gain much more in Besarabia than she lost in the war."

Count Czernin said that he was anxious that the rectifications of the frontier should not leave any embitterment behind, and expressed the opinion that Rumania in her own interest must turn to the Central Powers.

"In concluding peace with Rumania and Ukraine," he continued, "it has been my first thought to furnish the monarchy with foodstuffs and raw materials. Russia did not come into consideration in this connection owing to the disorganization there.

Ukraine Food on the Way.

"We agreed with Ukraine that the quantity of grain to be delivered to the Central Powers should be at least 1,000,000 tons. Thirty care of grain and peas are now en route, 600 cars are ready to be transported, and these transports will be continued until the imports are organized and can begin regularly. Larger transports are rendered possible by the peace with Rumania, which enables goods to be sent from Odessa to Danube ports.

"We hope during May to undertake the first large tranfeport from Ukraine. While I admit that the imports from Ukraine are still small and must be increased, nevertheless our food situation would have been considerably worse had this agreement not been concluded.

"From Rumania we will obtain a considerable surplue of last year's harvest. Moreover, about 400,000 tons of grain, peas, beans, and fodder must be transported via the Danube. Rumania must also immediately provide us with 800,000 sheep and pigs, which will improve our meat supply slightly.

"It is clear from this that everything will be done to obtain from the exploitation of the regione which peace has opened for us in the East whatever is obtainable. The difficulties of obtaining these supplies from Ukraine are still considerable, as no state of order exists there. But with the good-will of the Ukrainian Government and our organization we will succeed in overcoming the difficulties.

"An immediate general peace would not give us further advantages, as all Europe today is suffering from lack of foodstuffs. While the lack of cargo space prevents other nations from supplying themselves, the granaries of Ukraine and Rumania remain open to the Central Powers."

Replying to the annexationists, Count Czernin said:

"The forcible annexation of foreign peoples would place difficulties in the way of a general peace, and such an extension of territories would not strengthen the empire. On the contrary, considering the grouping of the monarchy, they would weaken us. What we require are not territorial annexations, but economic safeguards for the future.

Serbian Territory for Bulgaria.

"We wish to do everything to create in the Balkans a situation of lasting calm. Not until the collapse of Russia did there cease to exist the factor which hitherto made it impossible for us to bring about a definite state of internal peace in the Balkans.

"We know that the desire for peace is very great in Serbia, but Serbia has been prevented by the Entente Powers from concluding it. Bulgaria must receive from Serbia certain districts inhabited by Bulgarians. We, however, have no desire to destroy Serbia. We will enable Serbia to develop, and we would welcome closer economic relations with her.

"We do not desire to influence the future relations between the monarchy and Serbia and Montenegro by motives conflicting with friendly, neighborly relations. The best state of egoism is to come to terms with a beaten neighbor, which leads to this: My egoism regarding Austria-Hungary is that after being conquered militarily our enemies must be conquered morally. Only then is victory complete, and in this respect diplomacy must finish the work of the armies.

Not to Go "Begging for Peace."

"Since I came into office I have striven only after one aim, namely, to secure an honorable peace for the monarchy and to create a situation which will secure to Austria-Hungary future free development, and, moreover, to do everything possible to insure that this terrible war shall be the last one for time out of mind. I have never spoken differently. I do not intend to go begging for peace, or to obtain it by entreaties or lamentations, but to enforce it by our moral right and physical strength. Any other tactics, I consider, would contribute to the prolongation of the war.

"I must say, to my regret, that during the last few weeks and months much has been spoken and done in Austria that prolongs the war. Those who the prolonging the war are divided into various groups, according to their motives and tactics. There are, first, those who continuously beg for peace. They are despicable and foolish. To endeavor to conclude peace at any price is despicable, for it is unmanly, and it is foolish because it continuously feeds the already dying aggressive spirit of the enemy. The desire for peace of the great masses is natural as well as comprehensible, but the leaders of the people must consider that certain utterances produce abroad just the opposite effect from what they desire.

"Firmly relying on our strength and the justice of our cause, I have already concluded three moderate, but honorable, peace treaties. The rest of our enemies also begin to understand that we have no other desire than to secure the future of the monarchy and of our allies, and that we intend to inforce this and can and will inforce it. I shall unswervingly prosecute this course and join issue with any one who opposes me.

"The second group of war prolongers are the annexationists. It is a distortion of fact to assert that Germany has made conquests in the East. Lenine's anarchy drove the border people into the arms of Germany. Is Germany to refuse this involuntary choice of foreign border States?

"The Gorman Government has as little desire for oppressione as we, and I am perfectly convinced that neither annexationists nor weaklings can prevent forever a moderate, and honorable peace. They delay it, but they cannot prevent it.

"Almost on the Point" of Parleys.

"The hopes of our enemies of final victory are not merely based on military expectations and the blockade. They are based to a great extent on our interior political conditions and on certain political leadere, not forgetting the Czechs. Recently we were almost on the point of entering into negotiations with the Western Powers, when the wind suddenly veered round and, as we know with certainty, the Entente decided it had better wait, as parliamentary and political events in our country justified the hope that the monarchy would soon be defenseless."

Count Czernin attacked the Czech leaders and Czech troops, who, he declared, "criminally fight against their own country," and appealed to the people to be united against this "high treason."

The Government, he said, was quite ready to proceed to the revision of the Constitution, but this would not be helped by those who hoped through the victory of the Entente to gain their ends.

"If we expel this poison," he declared, "a general honorable peace is nearer than the public imagines, but no one has the right to remain aside in this last decisive struggle."

TEUTONIC KAISERS EMPHASIZE UNION

"Great Tasks Still Await Us," Says Emperor William in Message to Emperor Charles.

AMSTERDAM, April 3. — Emperor William, in telegraphing his thanks to Emperor Charles of Austria for conferring decorations on German Generals at the "conclusion of the great struggle in the East," is quoted in a Vienna dispatch as saying:

"I thank you that at this moment you emphasized anew the necessity of close union for the purpose of solving the great tasks which still await us."

Emperor Charles replied as follows:

"The extraordinary successes of the armies which are victoriously advancing under your command must have filled you with especial satisfaction. May everything which still is to come be accomplished in like measure by God's blessing and a speedy, honorable peace be granted."

Budapest Learns He Had Long Conference with Emperor.

COPENHAGEN, April 3.—It is persistently rumored in well informed circles that Count Czernin, the Austro-Hungarian Foreign Minister, intends to resign as soon as peace with Rumania has been finally secured, says the Budapest newspaper Az Est.

The newspaper reports that Emperor Charles received Count Czernin at a lengthy audience on Sunday.

ARTILLERY RECORD AT DIX.

Three Direct Hits at 2,400 Yards Out of Fifteen Shells.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMP DIX, WRIGHTSTOWN, N. J., April 3.—In their initial appearance on the new Camp Dix range today New York batteries of the 307th Field Artillery, commanded by Colonel E. T. Donelly, registered three direct hits on a target representing an enemy battery out of fifteen shells fired on a 2,400-yard range. The result caused much elation on the part of the ordnance experts. According to them, it has been found necessary on the battlefield to fire an average of 3,000 shells to make the two direct hits necessary to put an enemy gun out of commission.

the war making and production branches of the Government today, and it is understood that ways and means for throwing the full resources of the United States into the conflict this year were talked over.

One immediate step to that end is known to be in contemplation. It has to do with the calling to the colors of the 800,000 men who it already has been announced will be mobilized through the selective service machinery during the year.

The means of housing and training the men are rapidly becoming available and the movements to France have been already greatly accelerated. It was learned authoritatively that, with additional British troop ships available, the War Department now has in sight transportation and supplies for all the men it plans to send under its constantly quickening program.

Figures reaching here as to allied losses in the bitter days just closed in Picardy indicate that the British and French casualties have been unexpectedly light, in view of the scope of the action. One estimate heard, although its accuracy is open to doubt, fixes the total, including prisoners, at 125,000 to 130,000 for the twelve days of ceaseless battle along the fifty-five-mile front.

Czernin made the allegation against M. Clemenceau is attributed to German arrangement, for it is well realized in Berlin that a greater amount of impeccability may be attached to utterances of the Austrian statesman than to anything emanating from a member of the ruling Prussian group which has so often violated its pledged word in dealing with other nations.

Called Sign of Tenton Weakness.

As officials in Washington look upon the effect of the Czernin speech it denotes a sign of German weakness in the great offensive in Picardy. If the drive had been successful, it is argued, Germany would not be putting out peace feelers, but would be better satisfied to drive on until she was in possession of the Channel ports and had separated the French and British armies, as she undoubtedly set out to do. With the allied forces apart, the Channel ports, and perhaps Paris in the possession of German troops, the Prussian ruling group might be willing to discuss peace, but only a "German peace," the peace of the victor.

That Germany, in the midst of the drive, with her object not accomplished, should seek to create the impression that she is once more ready to quit the war, is regarded here as practically equivalent to an admission that the current offensive was intended as the last desperate effort on Germany's part to crush her enemies and that the effort has failed. Prior to the great drive the idea prevailed in some quarters that Germany contemplated making one more supreme endeavor to bring Great Britain and France to terms, and that if this failed there would be a serious situation among the German soldiers and people who had been led to believe that their Government was invincible.

Attempt to Influence Labor.

That Count Czernin's speech in Vienna was partly of German manufacture is to be inferred from his several references indicating that he spoke in conformity with the ideas of the German Government. It was suggested here today that Germany probably thinks that the British laborites will use Count Czernin's statements as a basis for demanding that the British Government explain if the war is being continued merely in order that France may regain Alsace-Lorraine.

Some more or less complimentary references to President Wilson were contained in Count Czernin's address. No statement is obtainable at the White House as to the effect that these produced on the President. They have made no impression elsewhere in official circles, where the opinion is expressed that the attitude of the Austro-Hungarian Government toward Rumania, and the assistance afforded Germany in violation of the Brest-Litovsk peace arrangements with Russia, have put the Vienna Government outside the pale of international decency. It is believed that the President has no faith now in Austrian professions and that he is in full accord with the Allies in the conviction that Germany can be taught to observe her obligations only by the sword.

Nothing has developed to indicate whether the President will officially notice the Czernin speech. The belief prevails that if he should decide to answer the Austrian statesman that answer will be a reiteration of the determination to fight the war to a finish.

LANE SAYS OUR MEN WILL CRUSH KAISER

Tells Americanization Congress Coming Big Casualty Lists Will Rouse the Nation.

FOE'S GRIP ON OUR SCHOOLS

Only German Taught and German Patriotic Songs Sung in Many, Lafe Young Asserts.

GOVERNMENT AID INVOKED

Gathering Urges Federal Co-operation with States in Intensive Campaign of Americanzation.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—Speaking before the Americanization Conference held here today to determine upon means to unify the nation through education, and driva out the German propagandists, Secretary Franklin K. Lane of the Departmient of the Interior voiced the conviction that the forces sent to the battlefront in France by the United States would prove the deciding factor in the war and destroy the power of the Kaiser.

When the lang casualty lists which tha nation must expect during tha great battle now being fought on the western front, were placed before the American people, Mr. Lane said, the talk of early peace would end and the country's will would be fixed to win.

The conference was attended by tha Governars af eightaen States, representatives of the State Council of Defense and of many industrial concerns. There was a determined fight by many of the delegates for active measures to put an end to the practice of permiting the use of any language other than English in schools where elementary subjects are taught, and this was included in resolutions adopted, for the carrying out of which Congress will be asked to pass legislation. The resolutions read:

1. The adoption of the policy that the Federal Government should cooperate with States and through the States with the local communities in carrying on an extensive, intensive, and immediate program of Americanization through education, especially for non-English-speaking foreign-born adults.

2. That the industries employing large numbers of non-English-speaking foreign-born persons should co-operate with local communities, State, and Federal Governments in carrying out this proposition.

3. That adequate appropriations should be provided by the Congress to be expended through appropriate Governmental agencies for the foregoing purpose.

4. That in all schools where elementary subjects are taught they should be taught in the English language only.

Supplemental resolutions recommended that all aliens in the United States who were qualified to do so should take out naturalization papers by July 15, and that all newspapers printed in the German language should be subjected to the strictest censorship.

Lane Points America's Duty.

Secretary Lane spoke at the morning session. He said:

"We are not gathered to speak bitterly of others or to speak boastfully of ourselves. Wa have gathered to talk togethar as to the future of America and how it can ba mada a more perfect nation. We see clearly now what we have not so clearly seen before, that a democracy must have a self-protecting sense as well as a creative spirit. We have lived in the full expression of the most liberal and idealistic political philosophy.

"There has been nothing of paternalism in our government. We have conceived it to be our high privilege to open this continent to those who came seeking the advantages and the beauties of a new land in which the individual mind and heart could have free and full development. The Statue of Liberty Enlightening the World at the main gateway of our country has been symbolic of our national attitude. We have believed, and we still believe, that liberty contains a magic healing power for many of the woes of man; that if wa can turn its rays upon those troubles which have caused bitterness between peoples, the world will be made sweeter, safer, and sansr.

"But in tha estasy of our enthusiasm over the discovery of this curative agent which we had thought a panacea, we have overlooked our own responsibility. We have thought that it was enough to say, 'This is a land of freedom and equal opportunity,' without teaching what these terms meant. Let us keep our hands off, let each man go his own way, let all things be thought, said, and done which each may choose to think or say or do, and sooner or later, by the conflict of minds and acts, truth will prevail. This has bean our attitude, and it is one that in the long run is right. It is only in emergencies, such as that at present, when we realize that this attitude of laissez faire, of a high indifference, or of a auoreme faith is a reason for aelf-reproach.

"The native Americans, those men into whom the traditions of liberty have been sunk by experience of generations, are primarily responsible for whatever indifference has been shown by this nation in the education and enlightenment of those whom they have invited to these shores. If we are to have a nation that has but one conception of this nation's purpose we must have that conception in our own souls in the first instance, and then we must enlighten those who come here as to what that conception is. The suppression of wrongdoing is the work of the State after the act. Courts and jails are, after all, but poor protections to a community. As a nation we are looking for curatives when we should long since have been looking for preventives. Modern medicine is devoting itself now not so much to the cure of ills as to their prevention. Modern statesmanship should follow the same course.

The Crumpling of Russia.

"The greatest disappointment of the year has been the downfall of Russia. And yet the downfall is not the precise word that should be used. The crumpling of Russia is perhaps a better expression, for I cannot believe that Russia is destroyed and that that great nation of 180,000,000 people, with 7,000 miles of straightnway territory, can be crushed out of existenca by the iron heet of the Kaiser like some stray beetle.

"A race that is so near to its beginning cannot be so near to its end. There will be another Russia, some day, a wiser, a more intelligent, a better educated, a moro intensely national Russia. The truth as we now see it is that Russia was not a nation. She had been long held together by the fear of the enemy on her western border and by the domination of a ruling class. She had a love of freedom, but she had no knowledge of what freedom was. Her revolution, from the orderly overthrow of the Czar to the anarchy of Lenine, has been a simple and natural process, because what she wanted was not the kind of independence, liberty, and freedom of which we know and which we cherish. It was not political power thnt her people sought and through which they might express themselves. Within six months after their revotution came they had degenerated into a mob who believed that liberty meant nothing less than the extreme of individualism without a common love for anything excepting a desire to make some material gain at the expense of those who had land and lived in luxury.

"Russia was like a child that reached out of the window after the butterfly, and reached so far that it fell to the ground and was crushed. She abandoned crderly processes within her own country and abandoned her allies on the outside. Because she was young she did not realize that it takes time and a common purpose to make a nation, and she threw her present chance of nationality away. She resigned herself to the control of a group who believed that there was but one thing in the world worth struggling for, and that was the establishment of a new economic order, and this group undertonk to compel that order by methods as ruthless as those that have filled Siberian prisons. Russia broke when her constitutional convention was dissolved by force. Russia was broken because her people did not know that political strength was a condition precedent to economic or social reform.

"Russia was sick of war, and it is no wonder. She had called out twenty million men. All of them did not go to the front. Many of them could not be armed. But she sent wave after wave through Galicia and through Poland and through East Prussia, until six million Russians lay dead. Then her spirit broke. The word went out that a new day had dawned, a day in wh!ch justice would be done, that the land was to be free. The army resolved itself into its individual units, turned its back upon the front of each individual went in search of that piece of land which should be his and which meant, to him, liberty.

The Meaning of It to Us.

"Now what is the meaning af this to us? You say that Russia was tha victim of German propaganda, and that through the hundreds of thousands of German and Austrian prisoners, the control of Russia industries, the sympathy of the Russian property-owning class, through the insidious and devious means of suggestion now being so clearly revealad, there cama Russia's braakup. This may have been true superficially, but not fundamentally. The cause of the Russian disaster, the reason that she haa deserted that eastern front and has thrown the whole burden of supporting civilization upon us in the west, is the ignorance of the Russian people, 80 per cent. of whom cannot read or write, and whom, practically, had ever participated in the affairs of their own country. They did not know Russia aa a nation. They had followed their leaders. They did not know the significance of Russia's position in the world. They did not understand what it meant to have a republican form of Government, through which by their own intelligence, energy, and aspiration they could give Russia whatever form of life they desired she should have.

"Russia was the victim of the ignorance of her people, and out of her ignorance has come her ignominy. Her people were lovable, charitable, kindly; they had the sense of neighborliness, but not the sense of nationality. The Czar was the head of the common church and the Czar was the leader of the people. When he fell they collapsed because they did not have the power to visualize any other teadership. If they had had a Washington he might have saved them, though I doubt it, for behind a Washington there must be a people who have a sense of coalescence and a sense of conservatism which keeps them from destroying themselves while attompting to make themselves.

"If America is not to be Russianized, and there is no fear of that, we must put intosour own hearts a truer appreciation of what we believe America to represent, and when we say represent we imply that we are not the exclusive possessors of Americanism. There are men in Poland, and in Russia, in Spain, and in all the countries of Europe, in Germany herself, who represent the spirit of Americanism, which is, in a word, that each man shall have his chance.

"What is it to be American? We say that it is to love the Stars and Stripes. But a flag is no more than a symbol. It represents hopes and fears, struggles and achievements, something done and something yet to be done. The story of America is not to be told in the landing of the Pilgrim fathers, the fights with the Indians, Bunker Hill and Yorktown, Gettysburg and Appomattox, Santiago and Manila, nor is the story told in the advance of the pioneer from the Atlantic to the Pacific, in the building of great railroads and the conquering of the wilderness, in the searching of the mountains and the establishment of great industries, in the coming of the immigrant, or in the philosophy of Emerson and of James, or the poetry of Whitman and Poe, in the inventions of Whitney or Edison, nor even in the lives of our great leaders. All these are expressions of the American spirit of adventure, of purposeful searching after the thing that is better. It is an expression of a divine dissatisfaction. It may be that this nation, like all others, will come to a period of decline. We cannot expect to live forever. But if we do come to such a period it will be because we rest content.

America's Great Experiment.

"We are trying a great experiment in the United States. Can we gather together people of different races, creeds, conditions and aspirations, who can be merged into one? If we cannot do this we will fail; indeed we have already failed. If we do this we will produce the greatest of all nations, and a new race that will long hold a compelling place in tha world. It is well, therefore, that we come together at such times of stress as this, and we should have come together long since and put our heads to the problem as to what are the initial steps in bringing about that harmony within our country which will give it meaning, purpose and cohesion.

"We should not be moved to this by fear. There is nothing to fear. Our wars have been fought by men of foreign birth—Irishmen and Germans, and Swedes, and Scotchmen. We see their names every day in the list of those who are dead on the battlefields of France. There is no such thing as an American race, excepting the Indian. We are fashioning a new people. We are doing the unprecedented thing in saying that the Slav, Teuton, Celt, and the other races that make up the civilized world are capable of being blended here, and we say this upon the theory that blood alone does not control the destiny of man, that out of his environment, his education, tha food that he eats, the neighbors that he has, the work that he does, there can be an ideal, a spirit, formed and realized, which will master his blood.

"In this sense we are all internationalists.

"Now there are several things which we have come upon recently which seem to those of us who have not been wise to be discoveries. The first is that we have a great body of our own people, five and a half millions, who cannot read or write the language of this country. That language is English. And these are not all of foreign birth. A million and a half are native born. The second is that we are drafting into our army men who cannot understand the orders that are given them to read. The third is that our man power is deficient because our education is deficient. The fourth is that we ourselves have failed to see America through the eyes of those who hava come to us. We have failed to realize why it was that they came here and what they sought. We have failed to understand their definition of liberty.

"To be an American is not to ba the embodiment of conceit as to all things that are fundamental in America, or to ba satisfied with things as thay are or to let things drift. We are taking a leaf out of Germany's book in many ways these days. Our ways of war must conform to her processes of destroying human life. She has made herself a composite, compact, purposeful nation by methods of education as well as by authority. Wa can make ourselves a composite, a purposeful nation, and impose no authority other than the compelling influence of affection, sympathy, understanding and education.

"Out of this conference should come not a determination to make more hard or difficult the way of those who do not speak or read our tongue, but a determination to deal in a catholic and sympathetic spirit with those who can be led to follow in the way of this nation, and as to those others who cannot, other procedure must bo applied. The keynota of this conference is 'our responsibility.'

"It is now a year since wa entered into this war, and our men are standing shoulder to shoulder with Frenchmen on their right and Englishmen on their left, holding the line that is to save civilization. The war is coming nearer and nearer to us esch day. Each morning we turn with anxious and with proud eyes to read the list of our own heroes who have made the supreme sacrifice. In a few days more this list will swell from a few short inches into continuing columns and pages. Then we will first clearly see the horror of this war. And then there will surge through our souls a passion of indignation and outrage that will close our ears to talk of peace and fix our will to win.

"For now almost four years we have been looking afar off at a series of unprecedented battles, in every ona of which more men were killed than all the joint participants in either Waterloo or Gettyburg. There is hardly a stream in Northeastern France, hardly a village, to which has not been given a permanent name in history as the centre of a great battle.

Greatest Battle in History.

For ten days now the Germans have been advancing upon Amiens, another of the historic cathedral towns of France. This tima the Kaisar himself had announced to the world that he would be present ano in supreme command. There has been no such battle before. Let us hope there may never be such another. The determination of the Germans has been shown in their unprecedented recklessnesa of life. Amiens, the great railroad centre leading from Calais to Paris, must be seized. There never has been greater courage shown by men than the Germans have shown in this advanco. Tha men march in solid ranks and are mowed down by rapid-fire guns. As the front lina falls tha rear advances. As it falls, too, another line appears to take its place. And so by increments of death the Kaiser wins his way.

"This is the world's greatest battle. More men are involved. More cannon—they say there is a gun every forty feet along the Western front—more airplanes, more tanks, more lethal weapons of every kind, more poisonous gases and more of hell is seen on that sixty-mile front than the eyes of the angels have ever looked upon before. We call it the world's greatest battle, but the last great battle of this war has not been fought and cannot be fought now. That allied line may bend, but it will not break. Remember, there are Scotchmen there—Scotchmen from Glasgow and from Edinburgh and from the far islands of the North. Scotchmen who never surrender; and Englishmen from Liverpool and Manchester and London, from the soft lake country and from Surrey; and Irishmen from Kilarney, the gallant Irish who are fighting that there may be an Ireland saved to which will come home rule; and men from Australia and New Zealand, Canadians who love war no more than we do, but can make it just as well. There are Frenchmen there, the Frenchmen of Verdun. Need I say more? No more can be said. Those men do not yield. They have not fought for nearly four years that they may crumple up now.

"It is a thin line that holds the Kaiser back, but it is a line in which there is more of spirit and more of resolution than in any line the world has seen, because it has more to live for and more to die for than any group of men ever gathered together, and into this thin line we are weaving our men in khaki. These are but an assurance. More and still more are to follow, until that thin line is made a thick line. Von Hindenburg said a week ago that the first act was over. It is never the first act that tells the story. The climax comes in the closing scene, and in that closing scene America will play her part, and it will be a noble part.

"It is my solemn conviction that when success comes to the allied armies under General Foch it will come because of what we do, because of our men in the field, and the spirit and sacrifice of our men and women and our boys and girls at home. America has never sought to be a world power. She does not now. But America has nothing to live for if Germany becomes the one dominant power of the world. And against that possible day your boys and my boy must give their lives, their ambitions, their dreams, if need be.

"And wa who ara not permitted to fight, what shall be our part? Let it be our resolution that when our sons return they shall find a new spirit in America, a deeper insight into the problems of a striving people, a stronger, firmer, more positive, and purposeful sense of nationality. We shall make America better worth while to Americans and of a higher service to the world."

German Propaganda in Schools.

Sensational charges of the extent to which German propagandists operated through schools where the German language was used in teaching the children were mada at the afternoon session by former United States Senator Lafe Young of Des Moines and R. H. Metcalfa of Nebraska, former Lieutenant Governor of the Panama Canal Zone.

"It is high time," asserted Mr. Young, "for this country to take steps to end the most insidious form of German propaganda, which is bringing up many children in schools where they hear nothing but German — schools where tha session each day is closed by the singing of 'Deutschland iiber Alles,' and 'Die Wacht am Rhein' is much better known than 'Tho Star-Spangled Banner.'

"In thesa samo schools, and there are thousands of tham in tha Northwest, text books are used which paint and advertiso tha German Emperor as a great man. Thero are text books which were printed in Germany and which give the impression that Germany is a great free country like ours, a thing that has not been so for hundreds of years.

"In the Northwest this education of the children in German schools has enabled the foreign politicians to control elections, and mako their influence felt everywhere. If the legislative chambers of this country were freed of men like La Follette it would be of as much benefit as driving back an entire division of German troops on the western front.

"The newspapers published in German are supporting and abetting this insidious propaganda, and if I had my way every publication in that tongue would be abolished immediately."

Mr. Metcalfe spoke of conditions in the schools of Nebraska, where, he said, the German elements had obtained a strong grip. He stated that one of Nebraska's German newspapers gave away on July 4 souvenir spoons bearing likenesses of the Kaiser and Hindenburg. He made the prediction also that after one more year of war newspapers printed in the United States in the German tongue would "be a thing of the past."

Dr. Finley, Commissioner of Education for New York State, was nnother to urge the adoption of educational methods recommended in the resolutions.

Upon motion of Governor Manning of South Carolina this committee was appointed to present to Congress the Americanization program as outlined at today's conference: Governor Stewart of Montana, Governor Manning of South Carolina, Governor Milliken of Maine, Levy Mayer of Chicago, Harold T. Clark of Cleveland, Arthur T. Somers of New York City, Hale Holden of Chicago, Samuel Gompers of Washington, and Robert Newton Lynch of San Francisco.

The Governors who attended today's conference were Hunt of Arizona, Gunter of Colorado, Alexander of Idaho, Goodrich of Indiana, Capper of Kansas, Milliken of Maine, Burnquist of Minnesota, Stewart of Montana, Frazier of North Dakota, Williams of Oklahoma, Brumbaugh of Pennsylvania, Beackman of Rhode Island, Manning of South Carolina, Bamberger of Utah, Cornwell of West Virginia, Houx of Wyoming, Ryo of Tennessee, and Townsend of Delaware.

SEEK RIGHT OF WAY FOR WAR MEASURES

House Leaders Act in Anticipation of Enlarged Plans on Return of Baker.

NEW DRAFT BILL ADVANCED

Will Be Brought to a Vote Early Next Week After Quota Controversy Is Fought Out.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—Administration leaders in the House today took active steps to give military legislation the right of way for the rest of the present session of Congress. The Committee on Rules, after a speech by Representative Kahn of California, ranking Republican on the Military Affairs Committee, reported out favorably a rule providing for early consideration of the War Department's bill authorizing new classifications of men for the second draft.

The strictest rule of the session, as applied to bills involving major subjects, was ordered. It provides for only three hours' debate, to be divided equally between advocates and opponents of the War Department's plan.

The point of controversy between the department and the minority members of the House centres in the method of fixing the basis for drawing the next men. The department plan is that the quotas shall be fixed in accordance with the number of registrants in Class 1 in each district. The minority of the House Military Affairs Committee wishes them fixed in accordance with the total number of registrants of all eligible classes. The department says that its plan is sure not to cripple industry where large numbers of men of military age are engaged in essential war work. Members reply that dishonest boards, by granting deferred classification to many registrants, might insure only a small number of men being called from their districts.

President Wilson has endeavored in vain to settle the controversy, and it will be fought out on the House floor early next week under the rule adopted today by the committee. That time is awaited so as to give Representatives Gordon of Ohio and Shallenberger of Nebraska, opponents of the department plan, time to return to Washington from their districts.

Well-informed members thought they saw a general speeding-up plan by the Administration in the introduction today of a resolution by Representative Dent of Alabama, Chairman of the Military Affairs Committee, calling for priority of military legislation. The resolution is similar in that introduced by Representative Kahn. Leaders of both parties believe that when Secretary Baker returns from Europe he will demand legislation for a vastly increased military establishment, and they look on today's resolutions as probably intended to clear the way for that legislation.

Another Congressional outbreak against officers of draft age in non-draft jobs appears imminent. Representative Anthony of Kansas has introduced a resolution calling on the War Department to report to Congress fully on the circumstances of the recent commissioning of a former private secretary of Franklin K. Lane, Secretary of the Interior, who, Mr. Anthony declared, is of draft age.

Members of the minority, who will oppose tha War Department's draft plans have gathered data on many cases which they say are similar to this, and they will use them in their fight against the legislation the department seeks.

SUPPORT PRESIDENT, IS PLEA OF OVERMAN

Senator Declares Confusion in Some Departments Necessitates Reorganizing.

SHRAP TILT IN DEBATE

Charge of Partisanship Provokes Discussion — Scope of Proposed Law Questioned.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 3. — Senator Overman of North Dakota concluded his speech in the Senate today in support of his bill giving the President authority to reorganize Government agencies in prosecuting the war. He declared that existing confusion in certain departments made reorganization essential and pleaded for support of the President and trust in him.

The Senator also condemned "hamstringing" the President and declared that proposed amendments designed to restrict acts of co-ordination to certain Government bureaus would be an "insult" to the Executive and to the public.

Senator Overman quoted from testimony before the Senate Military Affairs Committee and from speeches in the Senate by members of the committee in substantiation of his contention that confusion exists in Government departments and that a co-ordinating measure is needed. He read from testimony of Willard Catchings of the United States Chamber of Commerce, Walter S. Gifford, Director of the Council of National Defense, and from speeches delivered by Senators Wadsworth and Hitchcock. He then cited as precedents for granting the President broad powers a number of laws granting special powers for special purposes.

"I am going to show that from time to time we have been passing little popgun bills that ought to have been settled without coming to Congress to pass an act," said Senator Overman. "Eight or ten time Congress has been called on to pass bills which, if the President had had authority that this bill proposes would have been unnecessary. Nobody objected to those bill, because all see the importance of them."

Asks About Legal Restraints.

Senator Wadsworth of New York inferred that his colleagues favored taking practically all legal restrainis off the President in wartime.

"Does the Senator from North Carolina contend that the duty of officers of the army and navy should not be prescribed by written statute?" asked Senator Wadsworth.

"No," replied Senator Overman, "I think the Commander in Chief ought to have the right and authority to transfer, not abolish, but to transfer when necessary from one department to another."

"I do not mean to press the Senator unduly," said Senator Wadsworth, "but I will be interested if some time during the discussion he will specify what particular handicap the Administration is now suffering with."

"I will read the Senator's speech, which he sent out as a political document all over the country, charging that there is confusion everywhere," Senator Overman replied. "He told the people of the United States—and I do not know why he should have sent it out as a political document, but he is flooding the country with it, and it looks like they are guilty of some partisanship in this matter by sending it as a political speech. I was in the hope that there would be no partisanship in the discussion of this bill."

"Will the Senator say with entire frankness that the utterances I made upon the floor of the Senate were political in character?" asked Senator Wadsworth.

"No," said Senator Overman.

"Then why does the Senator take occasion to characterize them as political utterances?"

"Why does the Senator send it out as a political document?" countered Senator Overman.

"It was not so sent out," said Senator Wadsworth.

"I beg the Senator's pardon," apologized Senator Overman. "If it was not so sent out. If it was not sent by the Senator, it was sent by the Campaign Committee."

"It may have been sent out, but not for any political or partisan purposes," insisted Senator Wadsworth.

Heard Filibuster Rumors.

Senator Overman said he would accept the New York Senator's word, but insisted that he had heard rumors there would be a partisan filibuster against the bill.

Continuing his reference to criticism of President Wilson for not taking Senators into his confidence, Senator Overman said:

"Now, the President comes here to Congress and takes Congress into his confidence. He did not do as other patriotic Presidents in the past, who did not have the power, but who exercised it anyway. Now, because the President comes here and says to you 'I need this authority; I ask you for it; limit it to the war power if you please,' some Senators will not give him that which he asks. I will ask the Senator from Pennsylvania, [Mr. Knox,] if he thinks the President has full powers without the authority conferred on him in this bill?"

"To do what?" asked Senator Knox.

"To do what the bill proposes the President shall have power to do," replied Senator Overman.

"I think the President of the United States has the power to require every executive officer and every department of the Government to do anything that he wants him to do in order to prosecute this war to a successful conclusion," said Senator Knox. "I think he has the power to delegate from one Cabinet officer to another the discharge of any particular duty that he thinks such a Cabinet officer can discharge better than the one upon whom it would normally be incumbent. I do certainly think the President has all those powers.

"I have the very highest regard for those advising the President, but if that responsibility were cast upon me, so far as I can read the Overman bill, and so far as I can see what it means from its language, and so far as I am informed by those back of the bill, I would not hesitate a second to advise the President to do any one of those things now.

"But that does not include any deduction that one might make as an independent proposition, without the explanations that have been given to me of this bill, as for instance, the right to transfer the Interstate Commerce Commission to the Treasury Department, of the right to transfer the Federal Trade Commission or the Federal Reserve Board to some other branch of the Government. I take it that those are not executive or administrative offices; that they are in a sense legislative offices, and are carrying out the policies provided by Congress, and that to the extent that this bill should undertake to do that which has been denied to me by those who are proposing the bill, I will say as a matter of course no such power existed."

Senator Lodge in Doubt.

Senator Lodge asked whether it would be possible for the President under the pending bill to take from the Interstate Commerce Commission the valuation of the railroads and transfer it to some Treasury bureau. Senator Knox declared that would depend on the definition of the sort of agency the commission was.

Senator Overman said in his opinion the commission was neither executive nor administrative, but was a "Congressional agency."

Senator Knox pointed out, in support of his contention that the President already has all the power he needed to delegate duties of one department or bureau to another, the case of Colonel E. M. House on diplomatic missions.

"I do not see why you bring in Colonel House," said Senator Overman. "Now, if the President had the power to do what Senator Knox says he can do, why should he be coming to Congress to ask it for authority?"

"Within my own experience I have known of hundreds of cases where the President has designated to one Cabinet officer the functions or duties of another in a specific case," insisted Senator Knox.

The bill finally was laid aside to permit passage of the Bond bill. When discussion is resumed tomorrow Senator Smith, (Georgia,) leader of the opposition, is expected to outline the objections to the measure in its present form, and to state what sort of bill will be acceptable.

TWO DETECTIVES ACQUITTED

Trial Commissioner Finds They Did Their Best in Ruth Cruger Case.

Two detectives accused of negligence in the Ruth Cruger case were put on trial before Deputy Police Commissioner Goff yesterday. The charges against both were dismissed because the Commissioner believed they had used their best judgment.

Lieutenant William Browne said the alarm for the missing girl had not been sent out immediately because it was the custom to hold the alarms for a few hours, so that the person might have reasonable time to return home.

Detective Sergeant Francis McGee, who was acquitted of the charge of neglect of duty in Justice Goff's court on Feb. 18, was exonerated by the Trial Commissioner, who is a son of Justice Goff. McGee told of his suspicions that Alfredo Cocchi had some part in the disappearance, but said he thought he had given the cellar a thorough search for the body.

LENROOT PLURALITY NOW EXCEEDS 10,000

Wisconsin Patriots Concerned Over Berger's Heavy Vote in Senate Election.

SOCIALIST GOT OVER 96,000

La Follette Rebuked by the Defeat of His Candidate for the State Supreme Court.

Special to The New York Times.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., April 3.—Returns from yesterday's election, which are incomplete but cover all except three of the seventy-one counties in the State, give Congressman Irvine L. Lenroot, the Republican candidate in the three-cornered fight for the late Paul O. Husting's seat in the United States Senate, a lead of 10,324 over Joseph E. Davies, who led the Democratic fight and had been indorsed by President Wilson. Victor L. Berger, Socialist, ran third, but received a vote which on the basis of present estimate will approximate 100,000.

With about 200 precincts missing out of a total of 2,283 in the State, the vote stands:

Irvine L. Lenroot, Republican, 142,527.
Joseph E. Davies, Democrat, 132,203.
Victor L. Berger, Socialist, 96,802.

Thus Lenroot has now a plurality of 10,324 and a margin of 45,725 over Berger.

Daniel W. Hoan, Milwaukee's Socialist Mayor, has been re-elected by a majority of 2,210 over Percy Braman, nonpartisan. Mayor Hoan ran far ahead of his asociates on the Socialist city ticket. The nonpartisan candidates for Treasurer, Controller, and Attorney have been re-elected by majorities over the Socialist candidates ranging from 10,000 to 7,700. Of the six Aldermen at large, the Socialists have elected three and the nonpartisans three. Of the twenty-five wards in the City of Milwaukee, nine elected a Socialist representative on the Board of Aldermen. This is a net gain of one in the Socialist strength on the board.

The Wisconsin soldier vote will be counted on Friday. It will not be big enough materially to affect the result. At Camps Grant and Custer, where the bulk of men who have entered the military service from Wisconsin are stationed, only 2,036 votes in all were cast.

Rebuke to La Follette.

A rebuke was administered to Senator La Follette through the election of Marvin B. Rosenberry to the State Supreme Court by a vote which, when complete returns have been received, is likely to approximate Wisconsin's normal Republican majority of 75,000. At that Charles H. Crownhart, La Follette's candidate for the place, received many Socialist votes both in this city and elsewhere.

The "treachery" of La Follette is being denounced on every side by Republican "stalwarts" after perusing the returns for Congressman Lenroot from some of the La Follette strongholds up State. Before election Lenroot supporters, who had fought La Follette's candidate, James Thompson of La Crosse, in the Republican primarics, spoke in terms of affection of the former leader and stoutly maintained that if he should be removed by the United States Senate and come before the voters of Wisconsin for vindication he would sweep the State. There is not the slightest doubt that "Stalwarts" with long memories will not forget yesterday's election if such an occasion should arise.

"Let the United States Senate attend to La Follette in Washington and we will attend to him at home," said a prominent "Stalwart," grimly in discussing the matter with THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent today.

Of the Stalwarts who flourished under the leadership of Senator John C. Spooner there are only about 50,000 or 60,000 left, who have never subscribed to the La Follette doctrine or followed the La Follette fortunes. This vote, however, is regarded as more than enough to prevent Senator La Follette from winning vindication at the polls from his own party in the State.

The tremendous increase in the Socialist vote, estimated at 280 per cent., was the topic of dazed comment at the political headquarters today. It is likely that when complete returns are in Berger's vote will be 100,000 or better. In 1916 the vote for Richard Elsner, the Socialist candidate for the United States Senate, was 28,008.

Berger carried the city and County of Milwaukee and eight other Counties—Calumet, Dodge, Manitowoc, Marathon, Ozaukee, Sheboygan, Taylor, and Washington, according to all indications. He ran second in fou rother counties—Burnett, Greenlake, Lincoln, and Waupaca. The German vote did it.

Concern Over Socialist Vote.

While the Socialist vote fell far short of the total of 180,000 that Berger had predicted he would poll, it nevertheless far surpassed pre-election estimates from either Republican or Democratic sources. Not only the politicians but the patriotic element in general, already chafing under the charges that have brought the loyalty of Wisconsin into question, are seriously concerned over the showing made by the Socialists.

To the politicians the Socialist total indicated that they would be compelled to reckon with that element as a factor of greater importance in future elections. Some, to be sure, discount the Berger vote on the ground that it was not wholly Socialist but was reinforced by pro-German and disloyal votes of every variety.

The same element, however, made itself felt in the Congressional elections in this State two years ago in very much the same localities. Politicians here have no doubt that in the Congress elections this Fall the election of loyalist candidates will be imperiled as a result of the showing made by Berger yesterday.

Berger in his paper tonight made boastful assertion that on the strength of the vote polled yesterday the Socialists should be in a position to win in more than one-half of the Congressional districts in this State—the second and fourth in Milwaukee County and the fifth, sixth, eighth, and eleventh. The eleventh is now represented by Congressman Lenroot. The Socialists expect to begin their fight there, should a special election be ordered to fill the vacancy when he takes his seat in the Senate.

The patriotic element in Wisconsin is aroused as a result of the election of Mayor Hoan and the big vote cast for Berger. There is talk tonight of action in court to prevent Hoan from taking his seat, but no one here believes that anything will come from it. Wheeler P. Bloodgood, Vice Chairman of the Milwaukee County Council of Defense, who recently declared that Hoan's election would be the signal for establishing military law in Milwaukee, came out this afternoon in a statement saying that the question of preventing him from serving a second term would "receive most careful consideration." Mayor Hoan is to be sworn in on Friday.

Hoan's Anti-War Plank.

The special ground of objection to Mayor Hoan is his indorsement of the following plank in the Socialist platform:

"The American people did not want and do not want this war. They were plunged into this abyss by the treachery of the ruling class of the country—its demagogic agitators, its bought press, its sensational photoplays, its lying advertisements, and other purchasable instruments of public expression."

Joseph E. Davies, the Democratic candidate, made a good showing throughout the State, even though he ran several thousand behind the vote which elected Senator Husting in 1914. Lenroot ran slightly ahead of Francis E. McGovern, who was the Republican candidate for Senator against Husting. Where Davies lost votes was in the "German" counties. In Calumet, for instance, the 1914 Democratic vote of 1,565 fell off to 663. In Dodge it fell from 4,877 to 2,835, in Fond du Lac from 4,770 to 3,440, in Jefferson from 3,289 to 2,495, and in Washington from 2,283 to 1,311, on incomplete returns.

As a whole these counties did well for Lenroot, though the Republican managers assert that the pro-German vote that was cast for his opponent, Thompson, in the Republican primaries shifted to Berger in yesterday's election.

The "wet" and "dry" question was a factor in the election against the Republican candidate. The brewers kept their hands off, but "the hard liquor" interests gave their support to the Democratic candidate. Lenroot in the House of Representatives voted for the referendum on national prohibition. There were local option elections in half a hundred cities and towns, with the "wets" and "drys" about dividing honors.

The election of Lenroot will add one vote to the woman suffrage strength in the United States Senate. He voted in the House for the amendment to the Federal Constitution providing for nation-wide enfranchisement of women.

Joseph E. Davies tonight sent the following message of congratulation to Mr. Lenroot:

"The returns indicate your election; please accept my personal congratulation upon the great opportunity afforded to you for service to our State and to our common country in these serious and momentous times."

Wisconsin Behind President.

"There is no doubt that Wisconsin and the country as a whole are behind the President of the United States," said Mr. Davies, after sending the message. "Mr. Lenroot's strong appeal, and that which brought him most of his support from the loyal citizens of Wisconsin, was his profession that he would support the President in all those measures which are necessary to win the war.

"This is the big thing, after all. My party and my friends and many men whom I did not know gave most generous support in the cause for which I stood."

Berger made the following comment on the election in an editorial in his newspaper, The Leader:

"The Wilson Administration met with a stinging rebuke. The combined Lenroot-Berger vote will show that the State stands about two to one against the Administration, although Mr. Wilson came out with a personal letter in favor of Davies, and in spite of the President Marshall's vituperations against Lenroot and Marshall's characterization of the Thompson-Berger vote as 'sewage.'

"The Administration succeeded in intimidating the German press, however. For example, the Milwaukee Germania-Herold, a rock-ribbed Republican paper, came out for Davies and licked the hand that smote it.

"There can be no question that if the Socialists had had a little more time and a little more money, they might have gotten 'over the top' notwithstanding the incredible obstacles and the wall of 'barbed wire' put up by the Administration and by the profiteers.

"Let us hope that our monarchic Administration in Washington has learned the lesson from the outcome of this election. Let us hope that it will change its course and be more in accord with the republican form of Government to which we have been accustomed in this country for over one hundred years."

STRESS LOYALTY ISSUE.

Not a Time for Partisanship, Maine Democrats Say in Convention.

PORTLAND, Me., April 3.—Maine Democrats in convention today adopted a platform for the State and Congressional campaign, laying stress on indorsement of the National Administration and the need of united effort by all as Americans, rather than as partisans, to win the war.

Bertrand H. McIntyre of East Waterford announced his candidacy for Governor. He is Vice President of the Federal Farm Loan Bank, at Springfield, Mass., and was formerly Chairman of the State Board of Assessors. Four years ago he was defeated for the Gubernatorial nomination by Oakley C. Curtis, who was elected.

SEES IN WAR CRISIS SPUR TO LOAN DRIVE

Gov. Strong Says Those Seeking Security for Flesh and Blood Won't Withhold Money.

PLEA FOR STRICT ECONOMY

T. W. Lamont and G. W. Pepper Also Stir Patriotism of Workers Who Fill Carnegie Hall.

The tremendous crisis on the battle-front in France, the increasing number of Americans engaged, and the expected call for a million or more soldiers, which will give so many additional families a direct stake in the war in the lives of their own sons and relatives, are the great factors which will figure in the coming Liberty Loan campaign, according to Benjamin Strong, Governor of the Federal Reserve Bank at New York, who spoke last night at Carnegie Hall, which was filled with Liberty Loan workers.

The meeting was called to outline to Liberty Loan workers the plans which had been laid down for carrying on the third Liberty Loan campaign. Governor Strong patiently went into many technical details to make absolutely clear the financial basis on which the Government is appealing for $3,000,000,000 or more, but the true source of power of the call to Americans was expressed as follows: "Those who are seeking security for their own flesh and blood will not withhold their dollars that are needed to secure victory."

This sentiment was cheered by the gathering, which included many of the most prominent financiers in the country. Some of those on the platform were George F. Baker, J. P. Morgan, Jacob H. Schiff, James S. Alexander, Allen B. Forbes, Gates W. McGarrah, Walter E. Frew, Seward Prosser, Charles L. Sabin, Frank A. Vanderlip, Martin Vogel, James N. Wallace, Albert H. Wiggin, and William Woodward.

Mr. Strong said:

This loan is to be placed with our people at the same time that the most sanguinary and the most momentous battle that has ever been fought is raging on French soil. So long as the outcome of that contest remains undecided everything that we love is at stake and hangs in the balance.

"You have read in the press of those long streams of dust-covered, mud-covered troops and transport wagons and artillery and ammunition wagons that are trailing across the plains of Picardy. They are our boys. The knowledge of the presence of those troops moving to the battlefront has sent a thrill through this country. We are in fact developing intense anxiety as to the outcome of that battle—a personal interest in the result far beyond anything that has been felt in this country so far since we became engaged in the war. For the first time we are actually conscious that we are at war. For the first time we have become conscious that we have indeed a human blood relative interest in the war.

"One million eight hundred thousand families in this country, and shortly possibly another million families, have contributed sons and husbands and brothers to this army. Throughout every part of the country military developments in France are being awaited with breathless anxiety. Those who are seeking security for their own flesh and blood will not withhold the dollars that are needed to insure victory. This, ladies and gentlemen, must be the keynote, the spirit of our campaign for this loan. It is, of course, desirable that intending subscribers to the loan should understand precisely its terms. In previous loans, doubtless due to the enthusiasm of those who were handling the bonds, occasionally some misunderstanding has arisen in regard to conversion privileges or tax exemptions, or rather, provisions of the law under which the bonds are authorized."

Calls for Accurate Information.

Mr. Strong gave a warning that it was essential to describe everything relating to the bonds to purchasers with entire accuracy, for the reason that dissatisfied bondholders, who believed that the terms of their investment did not agree perfectly with what Liberty Loan salesmen had represented, were an injury to future bond campaigns. On the other hand, he said that the investing public today was not so greatly interested in the proceeds of their patriotic investment. To illustrate this he read a letter from a bank in a town which had been given an allotment of $116,500. The bank alone in an initial request for bonds asked for nearly twice as many as had been allotted to the whole town and wrote:

"We herewith tender you subscriptions to the amount of $221,850 for the Third Liberty Loan, subject to the terms as outlined by the Secretary of the Treasury, whatever they may be."

Referring to the differing opinions which had been expressed as to the interest to be borne by the new bond issue, the speaker said:

"I do not think that the people of this country in this time of national peril are going to permit their patriotism to be measured by the premium or discount on a bond of the United States Government that bears the name 'Liberty.' I hope you will not allow the notion to become prevalent that buying Liberty bonds is entirely a financial transaction between the subscriber and the Government. It is far more than that; it is an actual contribution of war materials and of the labor required to produce war materials in order to enable us to win this war."

Governor Strong announced that Liberty Loan workers in this campaign were not to concentrate their efforts merely on the sale of the bonds, but were to appeal to the people in their districts to carry out every part of the program, including sacrifice of luxuries, lopping off needless industries, helping war industries, and practicing strictest economy, in order that the weight of the country's resources might be put directly behind its fighting forces. He said:

"We must bear in mind that in placing these great loans we are not simply raising the money for the Government, but we are enlisting great armies of people as bondholders in the service of the Government. Every additional bondholder becomes an addition to the war spirit of the country. Let none escape. Questions have likewise been asked as to the attitude of the Liberty Loan organizations to depositors in savings banks. The answer to this question presents no difficulty. It is not our intention or desire that depositors in savings banks be asked to withdraw their deposits.

Asks Savings Banks to Invest.

"The savings banks should themselves buy the bonds. Subscriptions made by those who ordinarily deposit their savings in those institutions will necessarily for a time interrupt the flow of new deposits into savings banks, but it has not been the experience of Canada or abroad that this involved any reduction in the deposits in that class of institutions which is dangerous or hazardous to their welfare. Our own experience is similar."

Governor Strong said that one drawback had been the failure to engrave the bonds on time, a delay due to the necessity for holding back the engraving until the legislation on the subject was completed. He added:

"We hope, however, before the campaign has progressed so far that complaints arise, to have an ample supply of bonds for delivery."

Thomas W. Lamont of J. P. Morgan & Co. emphasized the great waste of the world's productive resources and made a moving appeal for this country to limitate in thrift the example of France and England. He said:

"I tell you, if you preach thrift in its right way, in its large way—not in its sorimpy way, it will have such an effect upon this community, and upon the country, that afterward, when the war is over, we shall be living on a higher scale, just as they are living in England.

Millions Out of Productive Endeavor.

"Do you realize that there are twenty million men in the fighting line today? There were twenty million men before America came into the war. There were ten million killed not all of them men. No, some of them were women and children, in Belgium and on those bloody plains of Poland. Ten million killed, another ten million maimed for life—that'a forty million—and another forty million behind the lines making munitions back in England, back in France, contributing directly to the war and to nothing else. That is eighty millions of people taken out of the productive endeavor of this world, let alone the small children. When you realize those figures, friends, your realize what a gap you have got to fill and why it is up to you to save in goods and in services, that the soldiers need over there to win this war."

Referring to an allusion by Governor Strong, Mr. Leonard added:

"Governor Strong, you have alluded to the fact that I have but recently returned from the other side. Yes, over there they practice thrift. They do not talk very much about it; they have something more to talk about over there in England and in France. In every home there is a tragedy or a glory, the glory of some departed spirit, some brother or son lying in a shallow grave on the Marne.

"But over there in England and in France they are fighting the battle of the war with this thrift, and they are fighting it in high places and in low places, the same spirit everywhere. You see there women of title, of position, of wealth, doing household drudgery as they should do, doing it gladly and nobly and splendidly. You see the poor people—the poor people in England, clinging to their poor jam there, their wretched bread, and their weak tea, doing it all uncomplainingly, without a thought, marching on in a way that has never been thought of in this country as yet; but it will if the war keeps up."

George Wharton Pepper of Philadelphia stirred the audience with a patriotic address. Company C, 49th, U. S. Infantry, marched down the centre of the hall and took its position on the stand as an escort to the speakers. Selections were played by the 15th Coast Artillery Band. David Bispham sang several pieces and patriotic songs were sung by a chorus of Four Minute Men.

The rain did not deter many men and women last night from appearing at the Academy of Medicine, where the first of a series of meetings to further the loan was addressed by speakers who included former Attorney General George W. Wickersham, Dr. E. H. Lewinski-Corwin, Dr. S. S. Goldwater, Professor Robert M. Haig of Columbia University, and Dr. William B. Guthrie of City College.

ANNOUNCE NEW BASIS FOR LOAN PAYMENTS

Five Per Cent. Must Accompany Subscriptions, Followed by Three Installments.

The Third Liberty Loan campaign which opens on Saturday morning, will continue for four weeks, closing on Saturday, May 4. Although Secretary McAdoo has announced that the loan would be for $3,000,000,000 and that the rate of interest would be 4¼ per cent., he has not determined on the maturity. It was learned yesterday that all subscriptions would have to be accompanied by a 5 per cent. payment, which is to be followed by three additional installments: 20 per cent. on May 28, 35 per cent. on July 18, and 40 per cent. on Aug. 15.

The Liberty Loan Committee announced yesterday the appointment of a committee on commercial banks and trust companies under the chairmanship of Charles E. Mitchell, President of the National City Bank. This committee will endeavor to have all the banks establish a uniform rule in respect to required margins on loans secured by Liberty bonds as collateral, and also a uniform interest rate on such loans. The margin proposed is 10 per cent.

Mr. Mitchell's associates are: J. Howard Ardrey, Vice President of the National Bank of Commerce; H. B. Baker, Vice President of the National City Company; Theodore Hetzler, President of the Fifth Avenue Bank; Thomas Hildt, Vice President of the Bankers' Trust Company; D. B. Sherer, Vice President of the Corn Exchange Bank; Francis H. Sisson, Vice President of the Guaranty Trust Company; Ernest Stauffen, Jr., Vice President of the Liberty National Bank; E. B. Sweesy, Vice President of the First National Bank; E. R. Tinker, Vice President of the Chase National Bank; J. Y. G. Walker, Vice President of the Union Trust Company, and Albert Chambers of A. L. Chambers & Co., Secretary.

There has also been named an Advisory Committee on Banks, the same consisting of George F. Baker, Chairman of the First National Bank; Walter E. Frew, President of the Corn Exchange Bank; Charles H. Sabin, President of the Guaranty Trust Company, and Martin Vogel, Assistant Treasurer of the United States. It will be the aim of the committee to advise the banks to urge their clients to subscribe to the Liberty Loan in an amount commensurate with their worth and income.

The Knights of Columbus will work in the interest of the Liberty Loan through a general committee headed by Judge Victor J. Dowling. Represented on this general committee are the forty-two councils of the order in Manhattan and the Bronx.

Besides this general committee there will be a District Deputies' Committee of ten Grand Knights and a Grand Knights' Committee made up of forty-one Knights.

Charles Scribner, President of Charles Scribner's Sons, has been selected as Chairman of a committee representing book publishers, booksellers, job printers, &c. He will be associated with George P. Brett, President of the Macmillan Company; G. A. Plimpton of Ginn & Co., and Joseph H. Sears, President of D. Appleton & Co. The periodical branch of the industry will be in charge of A. C. G. Hammesfahr of P. F. Collier & Son, while the booksellers' branch will be headed by Charles E. Butler of Brentano's. The bookbinders will be represented by R. E. Bayles of the Eugene C. Lewis Company. The general field of printers, photoengravers, &c., will be under the supervision of John Clyde Oswald, editor of The American Printer.

The Liberty Loan Committee of the New York Stock Exchange will be headed by William H. Remick. The other members are:

The publicity department of the Liberty Loan Committee made known yesterday its plans for the rolling of a huge push ball by bond buyers from one end of the State to the other as the symbol of the rolling up of subscriptions in this district. The ball will start from Buffalo on Saturday morning and will conclude its journey on May 4, the windup of the campaign, at Madison Square Garden. The ball is expected to make an average progress of sixteen miles a dey.

As part of its contribution to preparations for the third Liberty Loan, the Bankers Trust Company yesterday issued a pamphlet entitled, "What is My Share of the Cost of the War?" In which a carefully worked-out effort is made to estimate how many Liberty bonds, based on the total income, each individual or family ought to buy. The calculations were made by the statistical department of the company and based upon estimated necessary expenditures for the second year of the war amounting to $15,000,000,000.

It is assumed that of this amount about $1,500,000,000 can be realized from customs and excise taxes, and $3,500,000,000 may be fairly apportioned to the banks of the country to be taken up by them. The next step is to assess $2,750,000,000 against the corporations and other strictly business enterprises of the country, to be contributed in corporation and excess profits taxes and bond purchases for corporations' account, as a matter of fact, it is estimated that the excess profits tax alone may realize as much as this.) This leaves $7,250,000,000 to be contributed by family groups and individuals.

Contributions by Families.

Family Income Group.	Amt. Contributable by Each Family Under.	No. of Families in Group.	Total Contributable by Families.

*Mostly individuals.

In order for any individual to calculate how much of an investment he may be fairly expected to make in Liberty bonds he has only to find out the group in which his income places him, take the amount placed opposite it in the second column, subtract therefrom his income tax, and the remainder should be his bond subscription.

BURTON PLEADS FOR UNITY.

Tells Bankers All Resources Should Be Mobilized for War.

In an address at the fifth annual dinner of the Forum of New York Chapter of the American Institute of Banking, at the McAlpin last night, Theodore E. Burton, President of the Merchants' National Bank, urged unity of purpose, mobilization of the nation's resources, and loyal support of the third Liberty Loan.

Romaine A. Philpot of Lazard Frères, was toastmaster, and at the tables were 900 New York bank officers.

"If any one asks me how long this war is going to last," Mr. Burton said, "I will answer frankly, I don't know, but if Heaven rules, it must last until might gives place to right. In winning the war, nothing is more essentiat than unity among our people. We must all stand by the President, and I am especially glad to say this as I am a Republican."

In conclusion, Mr. Burton urged that Japan be permitted to intervene in Siberia in order to save that part of Russia from German domination.

LOAN DRIVE TO START WITH IMMENSE SUMS

Workers, with Honor Flag Impetus, May Make Opening Day, Saturday, the Record.

19,000,000 BONDS ENGRAVED

Final Legislation, Today or Tomorrow, Will Start Presses—Distinguished Speakers for Campaign.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—Tremendous subscriptions to the third Liberty Loan next Saturday, the opening day of the campaign, are forecast by all loan organization reports reaching headquarters here. Although officially the campaign will not open until 9 o'clock Saturday morning, local time, actually it is already under way, with workers soliciting pledges for subscriptions to be recorded when the books open. The first hour thus may be the record-breaking hour of the whole campaign.

The first completed bonds will be turned out by the Government Bureau of Engraving and Printing within a half day after the bond bill is finally enacted, and a limited supply will be available next week. They will be finished at the rate of 500,000 a day and distributed to all parts of the country for outright sale by stores and loan workers. Already 19,000,000 bonds have been engraved, with omission of only the text bearing the rate of interest and maturity terms. The bureau will concentrate at first on bonds of $50 and $100 denominations.

The length of the campaign, the dates for installment payments, and the bonds' maturity will be announced by Secretary McAdoo as soon as the bond legislation is completed, which probably will be tomorrow or Friday.

Senate Passes Loan Bill.

In record-breaking time the Senate late today passed the Liberty Loan bill, authorizing $4,500,000,000 more war bonds, additional loans of $1,500,000,000 to the Allies and increase of Treasury indebtedness certificates from $4,000,000,000 to $8,000,000,000. The measure already has been passed by the House, and slight differences now will be adjusted in conference if the House, indeed, does not accept minor amendments and make a conference unnecessary.

As approved by the Senate without a roll call and after less than an hour's perfunctory debate, all important provisions of the House measure were retained. All Congressional leaders agree that the bill must be law before the new Liberty Loan campaign begins Saturday, and it is hoped to send the measure to the President tomorrow.

During today's debate, Chairman Simmons of the Finance Committee said that, with enactment of the bond legislation, all Treasury needs could be met this year, and that further war revenue legislation would not be necessary until the session of Congress next December. Similar views recently were expressed by Democratic Leader Kitchin of the House.

Should the war continue for a long period, and should it become necessary to send three or four million men across the seas, Senator Simmons said, the expense of the Government of course would be increased, and there would have to be some increase in taxes.

Senator Simmons said Secretary McAdoo felt that it would be unnecessary to increase the future interest rate on bonds. Replying to a question by Senator Lewis of Illinois, he said there was nothing in the bill to prevent the Allies from spending money loaned them outside of the United States if that was shown to be necessary.

To Clear Investment Field.

To help clear the investment field for the third loan the Federal Reserve Board's Capital Issues Committee announced today it had adopted a resolution "to recommend the postponement wherever possible of the issue or public offering of securities of every kind during the pending campaign for the Liberty Loan, this recommendation not applying to cases where securities must be sold or offered to provide for maturities."

The committee further explained that "in cases of issues already passed upon by the Capital Issues Committee, but not as yet made or offered for sale, it is hoped that such issues, wherever practicable, also may be postponed and that the sub-committees will use their influence to that end." The sub-committees are located in each Federal Reserve district.

President Wilson will speak for the loan, making the initial speech at Baltimore on April 6, the opening day of the campaign. On that date Vice President Marshall will speak at St. Louis, Secretary McAdoo at Philadelphia, and Secretary Daniels at Cleveland.

The list of speakers who will appeal to patriotic sentiment in the countrywide campaign will include William H. Taft, Josephus Daniels, Governor Simon Bamberger of Utah, United States Treasurer John Burke, James W. Gerard, Dr. F. W. Gunsaulus, Thomas B. Love, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury; Major Gen. E. E. Swinton, Assistant Secretary of the British War Cabinet; Samuel Untermyer, Carl Vrooman, Assistant Secretary of Agriculture; Alex T. Vogelsang, Edwin F. Sweet, Assistant Secretary of Commerce, and Hugo Wintner, a New York attorney.

The Treasury today announced the following Liberty Loan speaking dates:

Secretary Daniels, April 5, Baltimore; April 6, Cleveland; April 7, Cincinnati; April 8, Detroit; April 9, Buffalo; April 10, Chicago; April 18, New Haven, Conn.; April 19, Boston; April 20, Manchester, N. H.; April 21, Providence, R. I.

William H. Taft, April 18, Baltimore; April 20, Boston; April 25, Philadelphia.

James W. Gerard, April 6, Indianapolis.

Honor Flag Competition.

It will be when the campaign opens at 9 o'clock Saturday morning that the competition for the honor flags will start. Necessity for setting a definite time was increased by the determination of a number of cities to be the first in the United States to subscribe their quotas and win the honor flag. The ranking of competing towns will be based on the time of filing their telegrams announcing the completion of their quotas.

Director General McAdoo today issued this circular:

"In order to encourage officers and employes to subscribe to the third Liberty Loan, carriers may take such amount of the bonds as may be necessary to care for such subscriptions, and current operating revenues may be used as far as necessary in paying for such bonds. Officers and employes may be permitted to pay in installments covering a period of not exceeding ten months. In case they have not completed payments on prior subscriptions, and in order to avoid making payments on both subscriptions at the same time, payments on new subscriptions may begin not later than three months from now, in which event the ten months shall date from the time payments shall begin on the new subscription.

"The Regional Directors have been requested to organize Regional Committees to promote these subscriptions. In addition, it is hoped that the various carriers will co-operate heartily with the Federal Reserve Banks in organizing committees of officers and employes to canvass the matter."

ALLIED INDUSTRIES

658 prominent concerns have made inquiry regarding our plan for selling American-made merchandise in the 70 markets of the world.

Negotiations with executive heads of these concerns are being completed as quickly as possible, but the overwhelming interest caused by the announcement of the Allied plan has delayed us in making definite appointments with many manufacturers.

We are moving to larger quarters on April 11th, and will be prepared to quickly take up each inquiry with all possible dispatch.

Executive Offices of the Allied Industries Corporation—151 Fifth Ave. (12th Floor) After April 11th

Export Salesroom with permanent exhibit of Allied manufacturers' samples—151 Fifth Ave. (3rd Floor) After April 11th

Allied products will also be permanently exhibited in our own salesrooms in London, Paris and other strategic trade centers of the world

The Allied Industries Corporation will represent responsible manufacturers and sell their goods (under their own trade marks) in suitable foreign markets at a selling commission based on the amount of goods sold and shipped, plus a bonus on a guaranteed minimum sale.

In each case the commission and bonus will be determined through conference, and will be based on the class of goods, the average selling price, the manufacturing profit desired, and the adaptability of the goods to various markets in competition with similar goods of other countries, etc., etc.

For the first group of manufacturers there will be no advance selling charges or fee. This company is financed to take the initial risk and burden of expense. It is organized and operated by men who have already sold millions of dollars' worth of goods to the same buyers to whom your goods will be offered.

The Company's strong financial connections enable it to extend credits to responsible Foreign Buyers when necessary, at the same time securing for you immediate cash payments for merchandise at a fractional discount.

All details of insurance, routing, clearances, port-of-entry procedure, etc., will be handled by the Company, leaving the manufacturer free to devote his entire time to the production of merchandise.

APPEALS TO WILSON TO END STEEL DELAY

Senate Commerce Committee to Take Hog Island Complaint to the President.

BALDWIN PLACES BLAME

Declares Materials Are Held Up by Lack of Co-ordination — Defends Stone & Webster Arrangement.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—Striking testimony before the Senate Commerce Committee today that delay in the arrival in steel was impeding the entire shipbuilding program at the Hog Island plant, prompted the committee to adopt a resolution empowering its Chairman, Senator Fletcher of Florida, to call on the President and urge him to facilitate steel shipments.

This action was taken after George J. Baldwin, Chairman of the Board of Directors of the American International Shipbuilding Corporation, had told the committee that twenty keels could have been laid two weeks ago had steel been available.

Lack of co-ordinstion among various agencies was responsible for the delay, Mr. Baldwin asserted. He emphasized the importanco of placing steel on the first priority list instead of where it now is.

"There is just a little delay all along the line," Mr. Baldwin explained. "The lack of a single authority explains this condition I think. I do not mean to imply that the various agents are not doing their best."

"I wish to call attention to this state of affairs as an argument for the Overman bill," interrupted Senator Nelson of Minnesota.

Mr. Baldwin said the fabricating concerns had been unable to obtain steel from the rolling mills. Some of the delay he said waa undoubtedly due to transportation.

"We are now 55,000 tons behind on our steel shipments," he said. "We need 60,000 tons a month to live up to our program. Unless these shipments arrive promptly we are bound to experience delays. I urge the members of this committee to do everything in their power to have steel given a first place rating in the priority list. There is no nse to manufacturo a vast store of munitions and supplies unless we have the ships to transport the manufactured goods."

May See the President Today.

Members of the committee showed great interest in Mr. Baldwin's recital. After the meeting Senator Fletcher announced that he would see President Wilson at the earliest possible moment, probably tomorrow. Chairman Hurley of the Shipping Board is to be present at the conference.

Mr. Baldwin was the only witness at the hearing. He read a statement from Frederic W. Wood of Baltimorfc, a shipbuilder of wide reputation, who was unable to be present. This statement related to the work accomplished in building the plant. It was highly favorable.

"The construction work is an evidence of the great efficiency on the part of your organization," the statement said, "the output of ships depends entirely on the question of the delivery of material."

The fifty-way plan in vogue at the yard, which has been the subject of considerable criticism, was defended by Mr. Wood in his report. "The ten-way plan would have resulted in delays," his statement said.

Before making his statement relating to the steel shortage, Mr. Baldwin read a prepared address relating to the nature of the contracts for the work and what had already been accomplished.

"We are loyal American citizens who cannot afford to have their loyalty questioned, nor their integrity, nor their business capacity," he declared in a plea for fair play. "I hope, gentlemen, that you will come at your conclusions promptly. There is nothing more fatal to good work than that of working under suspicion. It detracts from the spirit of every man at the yard. It is the same spirit that is necessary to run a good race. Lack of such a spirit detracts from the speed."

The Stone & Webster Case.

Referring to the affiliations of the American International Corporation and Stone & Webster and the New York Shipbuilding Corporation, Mr. Baldwin said:

"Instead of the fact that some of the officers of the American International Corporation were allied with and connected with Stone & Webster and the New York Shipbuilding Corporation being a detriment, it was considered by the officers of the Shipping Board to be to its bonefit, so that when the contract was in fact entered into by and between the Shipping Board on one part, it was understood by parties thereto that the contract was made only with the American International Corporation, in spirit and intent it was made with all the above-named organizations.

What we contend in the matter is:

"1. That thn scheme in its entirety was the only proper and practical way in which the Government could speedily have its ships.

"2. That the contract in its entirety was an honest and a reasonable one, not burdeusome upon the Government, and in the light of past events a contract which we ourselves would have made for the Government had we been representing it.

"3. That from a commercial standpoint we would not undertake to perform the services and do the work which we are doing in this matter for the fee which we are to receive. We probably would require twice as much.

"4. The transaction in question is a simple one between the Government on one part and the agent on the other part, the agent comprising all the various corporations above named, and there is no interlocking of directorates of various corporations mixed up in profiteering at the expense of the Government.

"5. That there has been no delay in the program and that the work has been faithfully, honestly, speedily, and efficiently carried out, and that the United States Government will soon have a completed and efficient yard and the best organization of men in the world for the efficient production of ships in hitherto undreamed of quantities.

"6. That the agent who was employed to do this work was the most competent and the best equipped organization of any existing in the world.

"7. That the site was the only one that could have been selected, made with the joint approval of the agent and the Shipping Board, that the purchase price paid was paid by the agent and, whether high or low, the Government could not possibly suffer therefront.

"8. That no purchases are being made by the agent from any affiliated corporations, so that the charge of profiteering cannot be made in that direction.

"9. That the contract in question is not between tho Government as the owner and ourselves as a contractor, but one between the Government and ourselves as principal and agent, we having been employed by the agent of the Shipping Board to carry out for the Government certain parts of its work, and that in performing these services we are in fact a portion of the Shipping Board and an arm of the Government.

"10. That we are loyal American citizens who cannot afford to have their loyalty questioned, nor their integrity, nor their business capacity, nor can we afford to have the people feel that we, as American citizens, we have imposed a contract on the Government and the more we have the Hog Island Investigated the more will be seen that there is no wrong doing and that there has been and is nothing to criticise."

CURBS GERMAN PLAN TO BUY SHIPS HERE

Senator Fletcher Offers Two Bills Aimed at Enemy Investments in Tonnage.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—Large extension of Federal powers over shipbuilding, ships, shipping rates, docks, and terminals has been asked of Congress by the Shipping Board and is proposed in two bills introduced today by Senator Fletcher of Florida, Chairman of the Commerce Committee, after conferences with Chairman Hurley.

One bill authorizes the President to prescribe through the Shipping Board charter and freight rates and to take over ships, docks, wharves, and terminal facilities. The other measure, amending the law creating the Shipping Board, would extend its authority over ownership and transfer of vessels, existing or under construction. Both bills have been referred to the Commerce Committee.

In explaining the new legislation today, Senator Fletcher said the Shipping Board had discovered and thwarted attempts of German capital to obtain control of vessels owned or under construction in the United States, for present profit as well as to provide Germany with a merchant fleet after the war. To enlarge the powers of the board to deal with such attempts is one of the chief purposes of the proposed laws.

Besides authorizing the President to prescribe "rates, terms and conditions" under which American vessels may be chartered, one of the bills would authorize him to disapprove existing charters, prohibit chartering of any specified class of vessels; prescribe freight rates for American vessels, coastwise or oceangoing; to prescribo in any United States port "rates, charges and terms for dockage, wharfage, stevedoring, handling, and bunkering of vessels and rentals of docks and terminal facilities. It also would empower him to prescribe priority of wharfage service, priority in which cargoes may be carried, and direct the routing of American vessels or foreign ships under charter to American citizens. Another clause of the bill would empower the President to regulate "voyages, courses, and use of protective devices and any other matters affecting navigation, equipment, fueling, painting and arming" of American vessels, and to exclude vessels from danger zones.

American citizens and others within American jurisdiction would be prohibited from chartering any foreign vessel without the Presidents approval or to import or export goods exceeding 1,000 tons in weight on terms requiring the seller and buyer, respectively, to pay transportation costs.

The President's powers under the bill would be limited to six months after the war, or, if he should deem shipping shortage warranted, for an additional year. Heavy penalties—five years imprisonment and $5,000 fine—are proposed for violation of the President's regulations.

The second Fletcher bill, relating to ownership of vessels, would penalize during the war sale, transfer, lease, or charter of vessels owned in whole or part by American citizens without approval of the Shipping Board. It also provides that all ship construction contracts must receive the board's approval and prohibits clearance of American built vessels without its consent. Transfer of shares of stock in shipping concerns also would be subject to the board's censorship. Senator Fletcher said this provision especially was designed to prevent German capital obtaining interest in American ships.

GOVERNMENT TO BUILD BIGGER CARGO VESSELS

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—Plans to increase the capacity of shipping under contract for the Emergency Fleet Corporation and to add further to the output by building concrete ships and large steel cargo carriers at yards on the Great Lakes will be put into effect by the Shipping Board if a survey which is being made shows that it will be possible to obtain the necessary engines, boilers, and other equipment without causing a serious delay in the program.

As an initial step in this direction the corporation today authorized the construction of four 7,500-ton concrete ships at a Pacific Coast shipyard. This action was taken as a result of a report on the trials made with a concrete ship, the Faith, which was built in San Francisco by private capital.

The tests were sufficiently satisfactory to warrant going ahead with the work on a larger scale pending the opportunity for a more severe tryout. Three other concrete ships of 3,500 tons each also are being built at other yards. When the data is complete in regard to the availability of such vessels for overseas service, it will be submitted to Congress with a request for an appropriation to extend the industry.

R. J. Wig, an agent of the Emergency Fleet Corporation, who made a careful inspection of the Faith and watched the tests, has expressed the belief that the new cargo carriers will prove practical.

The construction of more wooden or steel ships of 3,500 tons also is to be abandoned under the new program and the capacity of these vessels increased to at least 5,000 tons each. This plan is now practical in the building of wooden ships because of the decision to alter the plans first prepared, so that smaller timbers can be used. There is little or no delay expected because of the necessity for lengthening the ways on which the ships are constructed.

About 25 per cent. of the ships contracted for under the present program are of not more than 3,500 tons, and the addition of 1,500 tons capacity to each ship would add a large tonnage to the new fleet. It is estimated that the vessels can be constructed in practically the same length of time.

Contracts for most of the steel construction of not more than 3,500 tons were placed with shipyards of the Great Lakes, the limit being placed upon the size of the ships in order to get them through the Welland Canal to the Atlantic. It is now proposed to increase the tonnage of most of these vessels to 5,500 and deliver them in two sections which can be assembled at an Atlantic port. F. A. Eustace, who has been making a survey of the ability of the Great Lakes yards to turn out big ships, has submitted a plan for the construction of cargo carriers of 10,000 tons each. Experts have stated that these hulls could be sent through the canal by cutting them in two and floating them on their sides.

The ability to obtain the mere powerful engines and other equipment necessary without causing delay is apparently the only obstacle confronted by the corporation in adopting all of the developments now recommended to obtain increased tonnage output.

The Jersey City Explosion Shows the Danger of "Curiosity" Telephone Calls

During the first hour after the explosion in Jersey City Tuesday afternoon, March 26th, the flood of "CURIOSITY" TELEPHONE CALLS was so great that the telephone trunk lines between New York and New Jersey and between different central offices in New York City became seriously congested. Calls for the newspaper offices blocked their lines so that they could not obtain the facts.

Most of these additional calls were UNNECESSARY and were made merely to ask where the explosion was.

As it is impossible for our operators to distinguish between necessary and unnecessary calls connections were established irrespective of their importance as fast as trunk lines were available.

The congestion of lines caused by thousands of "curiosity calls" at such times may have serious consequences. Calls for physicians, for the police, for fire apparatus, for ambulances and HIGHLY IMPORTANT CALLS that may mean the saving of life and property, may be delayed because of the unnecessary "curiosity calls."

It is appreciated that in these times public tension, due to war conditions, may cause an undue amount of curiosity calling when something unusual happens UNLESS the public understands that such calls may seriously delay important calls.

You can render great service to yourself, to other telephone users and to us, who are responsible for maintaining the telephone service, by practising and preaching

ASK HEAVY PENALTY FOR SWIFT COMPANY

Hoover Urged to Prohibit Packers from Dealing in Eggs Here for Thirty Days.

REFUND TO THE RED CROSS

Food Administrators Recommend That Zinn & Co. Also Be Suspended.

Chairman of the Federal Food Board John Mitchell and Federal Food Administrator Arthur Williams sent a telegram to United States Food Administrator Herbert Hoover yesterday recommending that Swift & Co., one of the largest wholesale packing and produce concerns in the country, be prohibited from buying or selling eggs from its New York branch for a period of thirty days; that the company be also required to refund through contribution to the Red Cross a total of $8,000 obtained in excess charges on eight carloads of eggs, and that Zinn & Co., brokers, who acted for Swift & Co. in this particular transaction, be also suspended from doing any egg busines in New York for a period of thirty days.

Officials of the Federal Food Board declared that these recommendations represented the most drastic step that has thus far been taken to suppress profiteering in food supplies. The telegram to Mr. Hoover read as follows:

Herbert Hoover, U. S. Food Administrator, Washington, D. C.:

In Swift case recommend suspensions of all selling and buying and other egg transactions from New York branch for period of thirty days beginning Monday April 9. Recommend that Zinn & Co. be likewise suspended from all egg transactions for corresponding period. Further urge that Elmer Wood Company and C. A. English of Iowa be brought to a speedy trial on charge of profiteering in egg transactions. Further, that Swift & Co. refund, through contribution to Federal Government war effort such as Red Cross excess charge to public amounting approximately to $8,000 resulting from violation of food regulations.

MITCHELL.
WILLIAMS.

Say Eggs Were Scarce.

The Elmer Wood Company mentioned in the telegram is the Western concern from which Zinn & Co., acting as brokers, purchased for Swift & Co. 150,000 dozen of eggs at 48½ cents a dozen, or 3 cents more per dozen than was allowed by the Food Administration regulations. C. A. English acted as agent for Elmer Wood Company in the transaction. Zinn & Co. made no more than its legitimate brokerage on the transaction, although it operated from an illegitimate price. Likewise, Swift & Co. made no excessive profit on the resale, but the high purchase price paid by them for the eggs originally compelled them to sell at a price of from 51 to 53 cents a dozen.

The officers of the company said in their defense that eggs were scarce in the market when the transaction took place. In order to supply their trade they were compelled to find eggs wherever they could and get them at the lowest possible price.

The testimony showed that Zinn & Co., acting as brokers, tried for several days to get the Elmer Wood Company to reduce the price of eggs, but failed. They finally purchased the eggs for Swift & Co. at Wood's prices, thereby assisting and aiding the Western profiteers in defying the regulations of the United States Food Administration.

Swift & Co. is regarded as one of the largest produce dealers in the country. Its egg business alone goes into many millions of dollars a year. The recommendations of the Food Board, however, will affect only the business transacted from the New York branch, because it was at this branch that the violation was committed. Alan Fox, head of the Bureau of Licenses of the Federal Food Board, in summing up the case of Swift & Co. and C. H. Zinn & Co., yesterday made the following statement:

Charges Act Was Deliberate.

"Swift & Co. and Zinn & Co. were perfectly familiar with the regulations put forth by the Administration. Knowing the regulations, knowing the wishes of the Food Administration, Swift & Co., with the aid of Zinn & Co., deliberately and openly disregarded the requests and directions of the Government. Swift's only defense was that they needed the eggs. No other excuse was offered. It is therefore difficult to escape the conclusion that both Swift and Zinn deliberately and knowingly violated the wishes of the Government.

"They do not seem to have understood that especially in a time of national crisis such as the present, directions of the United States Government are for the purpose of being obeyed and not lightly disregarded at the convenience of any dealer who sees fit to disregard them. If such firms fail to realize that the directions of the Government must and shall be obeyed, then the Government must bring home to such violators this important truth and make them and all other dealers throughout the country realize that no dealer, be he large or be he small, can, for the sake of personal gain disregard those directions of the Government, which are made solely in the interest of all the people."

In the case of Taxin & Shapiro, North & Daizell, and R. C. Williams & Co., involving the resale of 114 cases of canned peas, the Federal Food Board decided yesterday that no resale transaction can take place until an understanding is reached between the seller, the broker, and the purchaser that the entire transaction, including the brokerage shipment, will be conducted within the limit of a single and reasonable percentage of profit.

Augustin McNally, head of the Publicity Bureau of the Federal Food Board, gave out the following statement last night:

"The Food Board in making public a statement that it had not authorized anybody to issue an order to bakers that they shall discharge their German employes had no thought of repudiating the very good work of the Food Protective Committee, which committee is a part of the Food Board, and it does not now understand that any member of that committee authorized beyond the meaning of the words, 'That no enemy aliens should be employed in bakeries or bakery establishments.'"

Superintendent De Woody of the Department of Justice declared yesterday that the Brooklyn case of a little girl who had cut her mouth upon a bit of glass that was concealed in her bread was still under investigation. Up to the present time, Mr. De Woody said, the investigation of complaints of this character has revealed no indication that the glass, or whatever the foreign substance happened to be, had been introduced into the bread for any malicious purpose.

To Open Community Stores.

Dr. Jonathan C. Day, Commissioner of Markets, announced yesterday that he would begin soon the opening of scores of stores at which the city would undertake to supply the public with potatoes, butter, and eggs at cost prices. He expects to open more than 100 of such centres of distribution, all of them in the poor and populous parts of the city.

In view of the Government's suspension of wheatless regulations in its relation to the consumption of matzoths during the Passover season, Rabbi Isaac Landman of Temple Israel of Far Rockaway, in his sermon on the last day of Passover yesterday, suggested that the Jews of the country make up for the amount of wheat which they consumed in their matzoth during the festival season by imposing upon themselves a "wheatless week." He said:

"Our Government acted sympathetically with regard to our ritual requirements at this season. The Food Administration regulated the price of matzoth. It even permitted matzoth to be served in hotels for three or four days after the strictest wheatless months had been inaugurated. As an appreciation of the Government's attitude in this matter, as an expression of our gratefulness to God for having permitted us to celebrate the Passover so far from the seat of war, and as an evidence of our readiness to make additional sacrifices for the common cause, I suggest that the Jews of America impose upon themselves a "wheatless week," from April 14 to April 20, inclusive."

ARREST GERMAN CANDY MAN

Sailor Reports He Found Ground Glass in Confectionery.

United States Marshal James M. Power last night detained Edward Waller, the proprietor of a candy store at 167 Myrtle Avenue, Brooklyn, and his clerk, Henry Willems, upon the suspicion that they were dangerous enemy aliens, after William Lewis, a sailor in the navy yard in Brooklyn, had reported to the police that he had found ground glass in candy sold in the store. Examination by the police of the Adams Street station showed a substance in the candy that resembled ground glass, and it was sent to the Department of Health for analysis.

Waller denied that the candy had been made in his shop, and asserted he had bought it from a jobber, who, according to the labels, had purchased it from a manufacturer in Trenton, N. J. Waller said the substance might be crystallized sugar. He was born in Germany, and has been in the United States nine years. He told Marshal Power that he had taken out his first papers in citizenship. Willems is a German citizen, and had worked in the candy store only two days.

Several cases of particles found in bread and believed by the complainants to be ground glass were reported to the police and the Food Board yesterday. Samuel Martin of 1,682 East Thirteenth Street, Brooklyn, reported that his 3-year-old daughter had become ill; and his investigation showed a powder resembling ground glass mixed in the bread. Similar cases were reported by Mary B. Whiting of 1,670 Seventy-first Street, Brooklyn; William B. Flaherty of 367 East Twenty-third Street, Brooklyn, and Frederick Kuitz of 241 Clark Street, Jersey City. Theodore W. Marion of 1,935 Third Avenue reported to the police of the East 104th Street Station that he had found a substance resembling glass in candy bought in a Third Avenue store.

GARDEN WEEK FOR JERSEY.

Governor Edge Calls on Citizens to Begin Planting on April 8.

TRENTON, N. J., April 3.—Governor Edge issued a proclamation today designating the week beginning Monday, April 8, as a period for all citizens to plant vegetables in every available piece of ground. He asserts that "every empty lot or backyard should be a patch of American patriotism.

He points out that the planting of home gardens will not only lower the cost of food, but will release for the transportation of munitions many freight cars ordinarily used in carrying food. The proclamation also calls upon all public officials to aid citizens in getting public lands as garden plots.

REJECT $2.50 WHEAT.

House Conferees Refuse to Accept It —Senate May Recede.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—Senate and House conferees began work today on the Agricultural Appropriation bill with little prospect of an agreement on the Senate amendment increasing the Government guarantee on wheat to $2.50 a bushel. It was tentatively agreed to have the House managers report a disagreement on the amendment, and if the House again rejects it, Senate leaders thought the Senate would recede, avoiding a deadlock on the measure.

In settling minor differences on the bill the conferees agreed to eliminate the House amendment proposing to lengthen the work day of Department of Agriculture employes from seven to eight hours.

WILL GET FOOD TO SWISS.

United States to Permit Them to Get Grain Through France.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—In endeavoring to protect neutral European nations from the consequence of the German ruthless submarine warfare the United States is preparing to go even further than its original promises to keep Switzerland supplied with food, and if necessary will allow that country to take grain through France. The grain supplied from France would be replaced by the United States.

Switzerland has failed to get Germany's consent for grain to be landed at Cette for transfer to her needy population. The grain is ready and ships have been provided. In view of the needs of the Swiss and of the attitude of Germany the United States will try to carry out the agreement by other means. The German attitude has delayed the program of shipments to Switzerland by approximately 90,000 tons.

Desperate attempts to prevent commercial agreements of any kind between the United States and European neutrals are being made by Germany, according to information received here.

WOULD TAKE MEAT PLANTS.

Resolution for Federal Control Presented in Senate.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—A resolution providing for the taking over and operation by the Government of packing houses was introduced today by Senator Thompson of Kansas and referred to the Agriculture Committee.

Senator Thompson charged that "monopolistic control" by the packers has greatly increased the cost of foodstuffs to the army and navy as well as to the people. He declared that the Food Administration's limit of the packers' profits to from 9 to 15 per cent. on their investment gives them too much.

A WAR PLAY COMES HOME TO ROOST

'The Man Who Stayed at Home' Is 'The White Feather' Americanized.

ENGLISH SPY VS. GERMAN

We Get One Step Further Into the War — A Very Able Company.

THE MAN WHO STAYED AT HOME. (The White Feather,) a melodrama in three acts, by Lechmere Worrall and J. E. Harold Terry. At the Forty-eighth Street Theatre.

Whatever the case with the war, America has entered very effectively into the war play. Thanks to the valorous pen of Max Marcin, we broke into "Seven Days' Leave," appropriating to ourselves most of the heroic deeds there accomplished. And now we have conducted ourselves with similar success in the case of "The White Feather." Two years ago when it appeared among us as a plain Anglo-British spy play, it was received with moderate favor; but now that it has acquired an "American" background to its action, together with a new title, it bids fair to roost among us for some time. "The Man Who Stayed at Home" is the war play that came back.

As in the play at the Park Theatre, we hear much of American forces going through England to the front. And there is a plot to torpedo their transports in the channel. The said plot is most fortunately foiled, and the submarine is duly potted by big guns that boom off stage with the full majesty of a bass drum. But here the likeness between the two plays ends; in the total effect they are quite different.

This is a drawing-room melodrama. Its deeds of derring-do take place in a single scene—a hotel sitting room which the program calls private, but which is used as a general lounge by all the guests. Outside the French windows is the harbor, on which the larger action is supposed to occur. The hero is a member of the British Secret Service who "stayed at home" to do his bit, and is taunted with the white feather. His antagonist is a youth of Prussian descent who is employed by the British Admiralty, and transmits stolen secrets by means of a wireless plant installed in the chimney.

The story is ably told in alternating moments of comedy and drama. It runs a bit thin in the first scene of the last act, but makes full amends by ending in a passage of clever and thrilling melodrama. Throughout are sprinkled allusions to America's part in the war, which last night's audience applauded vociferously. A toast to the Kaiser was hissed with a fervor as if from the Bowery.

Our hero, to disguise his real character, plays the silly ass with a monocle and thus deceives all the people on the stage, including his fiancée—to the great delight of the audience, which is uniformly of vastly superior intelligence. It is a sure-fire stage character and situation, and Albert Brown carries it off with considerable skill and humor, not missing the just note of heroic fervor in the final scenes of melodramatic intensity.

The cast is able throughout. John L. Shine is a rumbling, bumbling M. P., several shades sillier than our hero at his silliest, (as is the way of M. P.'s on the stage,) and is incessantly amusing. Katharine Kaelred is the running mate of our English spy and is very charming and capable in assisting his deeds of wit and valor. A. H. Van Buren, as the young scion of Prussia domiciled in Admiralty circles, and Amelia Bingham, as his mother, are vigorous and capable.

DONNELLY LEAVES FORCE.

Detective Was Demoted by Commissioner Enright to Patrolman.

After twelve years in the Police Department, the last five of which he had been head of a vice squad, Patrick H. Donnelly, recently reduced by Commissioner Enright from the rank of a first-grade detective to that of patrolman, yesterday resigned from the department. Donnelly had been looked upon as one of the most fearless and honest men in the department. As head of a vice squad he had a roaming commission, with twenty detectives under him.

One of Donnelly's specialities was visiting other cities and getting acquainted with "runners" for New York gambling houses. He would give them the impression he was the son of a wealthy horse dealer and was planning to go to New York to buy horses. He thus succeeded in getting letters of introduction to gambling house keepers here. Donnelly's demotion meant a reduction from $2,500 to $1,500 a year. His friends say he will take a position with a private detective agency.

FRENCH ACT LITTLE PLAYS.

A Strange Farce the Feature of Comedy Bill by Copeau's Players.

Three short plays given Tuesday night at the Théâtre du Vieux Colombier introduced the last bill of the season for this now well established French company.

From Molière the versatile company passed to the modern comedy and a farce that in less capable hands would have been anything but funny. But so successfully was the spirit of Gallic humor passed over the footlights that the curtain fell on a death scene with the audience in unrestrained laughter.

This strange farce is "Le Testament du Père Leleu," by R. Martin du Gard. Père Alexandre is dying, and his faithful but not disinterested servant, La Torine, learns to her dismay that all his goods are to go to his friend, Père Leleu. She succeeds in influencing Père Alexandre to make her his heir, but at that moment he dies. Père Leleu, whose resemblance to the dead man is perfect, appears, and La Torine, not to be cheated of her fortune, induces him to pose as the dying Alexandre, whose body is stowed away in a chest. The notary arrives and writes the will, but at the last moment Leleu names himself as the heir to Alexandre's earthy possessions. The double rôle of Alexandre and Leleu is played by Charles Dullin, recently come from the trenches in France to join the Vieux Colombier company.

The two comedies are light and modern. "La Paix Chez Soi," by G. Courteline, played by two characters only, is a pleasing curtain-raiser. "La Chance de Françoise," by G. de Porto-Riche is more pretentious and brings on the strong characters of the company—M. Copeau, M. Gournac, and Mlle. Bing and Mlle. Bogaert. In the opening piece Louis Jouvet and Valentine Tessier divide the honors. Jane Lory appears to advantage in the broad comedy rôle of the servant in the farce.

GALLI-CURCI TO SING AGAIN.

To Resume Tour Halted by Treatment for Abscess in Teeth.

Mme. Galli-Curci is to resume her concert tour next week, according to the singer's manager, Charles L. Wagner, who returned to town yesterday after an absence in Washington. The cancelling of concerts in Philadelphia tonight, as well as in Baltimore and Washington tomorrow and next day, was owing to Mme. Galli-Curci's unwillingness to appear before new public when not at her best, Mr. Wagner said, just as was the case last Winter when she halted for a time the plans for her opera début in New York.

The prima donna sang in Chicago last Sunday rather than disappoint an audience of old friends, her manager said. She then went to Minneapolis for treatment for an abscess affecting two teeth, from which she had suffered great pain. She expected to sing next week in St. Joseph, Kansas City and St. Louis; the following week in Nashville, Columbus and Cincinnati, and later in Indianapolis, Dayton and Louisville. After engagements in Boston, Albany and Philadelphia, the month of May was to take her to California and back, closing June 3 in Toronto, Canada.

$150,000 GIFT TO CRIPPLES.

Mrs. F. S. Coolidge Adds to Fund for Pittsfield Home.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSFIELD, Mass., April 3.—Mrs. Frederick S. Coolidge of New York has given $150,000 for establishing an educational and industrial home for crippled children in this city.

Last Autumn Mrs. Coolidge gave her handsome country place on West Street and $50,000 toward this work.

"The Barber of Seville" Sung Again.

"The Barber of Seville" was sung for the third time at the Metropolitan last evening, with Mme. Barrientos as Rosina and Messrs. Carpi, De Luca, and Mardones in other rôles, Mr. Papi conducting. The Verdi Requiem is to be repeated next Sunday, opening the last week but one of the season. The opera bills include next Monday, "Mme. Sans Gene"; Wednesday, "Shanewis" and "Pagliacci"; Thursday matinée, "Madame Butterfly"; Thursday evening, "Marta"; Friday, "Maroufi"; Saturday matinée, "Cavalleria" and "Coq d'Or," and Saturday night, April 13, "Thaïs."

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Laurette Taylor and the company to be seen with her in scenes from Shakespeare at the Criterion tomorrow afternoon will go to Scarborough today to give a special performance in Frank A. Vanderlip's private theatre for the benefit of the Red Cross. Scenes from "Romeo and Juliet," "The Merchant of Venice," and "The Taming of the Shrew" will be presented both today and tomorrow.

The East West Players will give "Winter" and "Night" by Sholom Asch, "The Shadchen's Daughter," by Abraham Reisin, and "Pawns," by Percival Wilde at the Lenox Little Theatre this evening, tomorrow, and Saturday.

Weber and Fields have engaged June Walker for the part of Laora in their production of "Back Again."

The Shuberts announce that the name of their new musical piece by Frances Nordstrom and Joseph McManus has been changed from "The Gay Lothario" to "Quack! Quack!"

The Globe Theatre reports that more than 73,000 soldiers and sailors have seen Fred Stone's "Jack o' Lantern."

Augustus Thomas, author of "The Copperhead," will make an address before 1,000 members and guests of the Economic Club of New York at the Waldorf-Astoria tonight.

SUNDAY SHOW BILL PASSES ASSEMBLY

Motion Picture Measure Wins on Second Roll Call After Being Defeated.

WOMEN GAIN A VICTORY

Bill Providing for Their Enrollment Is Adopted in the Assembly and Goes to Governor.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., April 3.—Assemblyman Clarence F. Welsh's bill which puts motion picture exhibitions under local governing bodies, was finally passed by the Assembly today after one of the hardest fights of the session. It was at first defeated by one vote, 75 members favoring the measure to 74 against. Immediately a motion for reconsidering was passed and the question put to a vote again. This time, the measure obtained the requisite 76 votes. Assemblyman Peter A. Leininger, Democrat of Queens, leaving the opposition and voting for the measure on the second roll call.

Assemblyman John W. Slacer, Republican of Erie, led the attack on the bill. He said it was being railroaded through the Assembly and was an attempt to inject the movie question into local politics as well as to "commercialize Sunday." Assemblyman George H. Wiltsie, Republican of Cortland, declared the passage of the bill meant the Legislature would be "stamping God's word as of no effect." He said that the measure meant amending for the first time the laws written by Moses. In the controversy New York City's manner of Sunday observance came in for criticism at the hands of some of the up-State members.

In defense of the measure, Minority Leader Donohue of New York declared that at least the people in New York had not had their rights denied them.

"Moses was an organization Democrat," declared Assemblyman Donohue. "He wrote some other things besides those referred to by Mr. Wiltsie, and one of them was 'Don't covet other people's rights.'"

Assemblyman Martin McCue, Democrat of New York, was also a vigorous defender of the bill. He declared he had a letter from an American soldier in France saying that it was his wish that there be enough ammunition left when the troops return "to line up against a brick wall these lying, slandering, hypocritical people for preventing persons from enjoying a real Sunday, and use it on them."

The Democrats and the Socialists lined up for the bill with the exception of Assemblyman Parsons of Schoharie County. Assemblyman Raymond T. Kenyon, Republican of Essex County, who was not recorded on the first roll call, voted for the measure on the second. Assemblyman Kenyon is a brother of Doris Kenyon, the motion-picture actress. Assemblyman Barra of New York, who voted "aye" the first time, was not recorded in the final call. The Welsh bill has a good chance to pass in the Senate.

Senator Walters's bill providing for the enrollment of women this Spring passed the Assembly today. It now goes to the Governor for his approval. The bill represents the first victory for the suffragists, as it was passed in amended form to prescribe personal enrollment on May 18 in places of 5,000 or more population.

In the Senate an attempt on motion of Minority Leader Wagner to bring from committee the Wagner bill providing for a commission to investigate the proposition of a minimum wage was defeated. The measure has been buried in the Committee on Labor and Industries, and Senator Wagner told the Republican Senators that the women voters would defeat their party next Fall unless they gave some heed to progressive legislation.

CLASH ON 'PEG O' MY HEART'

Morosco, Producer, and Manners, Author, Differ Over Stock Rights.

Oliver Morosco, producer, and Hartley Manners, author, started a Spring drive yesterday for the stock company rights to "Peg o' My Heart," the play in which Laurette Taylor became a star on Broadway. This was not their first legal battle over "Peg," an earlier difference having arisen in the play's first year, when Mr. Morosco wanted to send out the usual No. 2 and 3 companies, while Mr. Manners wished to keep the title rôle exclusively for his wife, the star.

Mr. Morosco said yesterday that he won that first lawsuit in the West, and that he had now sent for Levy Mayer of Chicago to confer with William Klein of this city as to his rights in Mr. Manners's play. Mr. Morosco notified the American Play Company and other agencies through which "Peg" was about to be booked over the Poli circuit that he should hold them for full payment under his present claim.

GERMANS IN 'THE FROG KING'

Henry F. Urban's American Comedy Given Its First Performance.

There was a premiere performance at the Irving Place Theatre last night of "Der Froschkönig," (The Frog King,) a new American comedy by Henry F. Urban, who has long enjoyed a reputation in German circles here and in Europe as a portrayer of the comic in American life, particularly in his earlier comedy, "Dollarika." The playwright, who came to New York to attend the opening performance of the piece, was the guest of Director Rudolf Christians at the Irving Place Theatre last night.

The play gives a modern setting and interpretation to the old legend of the Frog King, in which a Prince who had been turned into a frog was restored to himself by the love of a wonderful Princess. The story is about Prince Ottokar Frosch von Seeburg, who, reduced to poverty in his native country, emigrated to America and became a frog—the shipping clerk for a wealthy shoe manufacturer, an American King, whose daughter, of course, was a Princess. The frog loved the Princess; the Princess loved the frog; and so the Prince was a frog no longer.

The play was staged under the direction of Heinrich Marlow, and the cast included Flora Arndt, Clairette Clair, Aranka Eben, Marie Kierschner, Annie Rub-Foerster, Hertha Schoenfeld, Bertha Walden, Henry Falk, John Feistel, Ernst Holznagel, Eugen Keller, Ernst Robert, Gustav Paul Schuetz, and Hanns Unterkircher. Bruno Schlegel as the shoe king pleased with excellent character acting.

The play will be given each evening this week and at a matinée on Saturday.

MUSIC NOTES.

Albert Lindquest will sing in Verdi's Requiem with the New Choral Society at Carnegie Hall tonight owing to the illness of Arthur Hackett.

The Community Chorus will perform Handel's "The Messiah" at the City College this evening and again at the Brooklyn Academy next Wednesday.

Ruth Cramer and Janet Jackson at the Princess Theatre this afternoon will dance an Easter program especially for children.

Margaret Matzenauer will give the proceeds of her recital at Carnegie Hall tomorrow to the fund of the National War Savings Committee.

AN APOLOGY

It is with the greatest regret in the world that Mr. D. W. Griffith begs to extend a sincere apology to the thousands of friends and well-wishers who have applied to him in the last 48 hours for tickets to witness the private showing of his latest and greatest achievement, "Hearts of the World," at the Forty-Fourth Street Theatre tonight.

The Forty-Fourth Street Theatre only seats 1,400 people, and in view of the peculiar circumstances under which this great story was screened on the battle-fields of France, the first invitations went to the representatives of the British and French armies, public officials of the United States, and other distinguished citizens who aided Mr. Griffith in the making of this great work.

Now, at the last moment, Mr. Griffith has been overwhelmed with a tidal wave of requests, many from close personal friends. Much as he would like to accommodate them, the actual capacity of the Forty-Fourth Street Theatre has already been taxed to the utmost. He regrets his inability to comply with the requests of all who have written him.

(Signed) D. W. Griffith

BRAND WHITLOCK in EVERYBODY'S MAGAZINE says:— About the Horrible Sacking of Louvain—

"All over the city the soldiers began firing wildly at the facades of the closed houses; the people ran to their cellars in terror; the soldiers beat in the doors, turned the people into the street, shot them down, set fire to the houses. There were riderless horses galloping about; a mad, a blind, demoniac rage seemed to have laid hold on the Germans, and they went through the streets, killing, slaying, burning and looting, torturing and massacring, and for three terrible days the vast and awful tragedy was enacted.

The people were assembled in tragic groups between the tottering walls of burning houses; marched through choking, suffocating streets that were strewn with the dead bodies of men and of horses, the women and children weeping, screaming, imploring, and the soldiers compelling them to walk with their hands up, or making them kneel, or run, or kicking them, or striking them with their fists or with the butts of their guns, herding them through the streets, in the midst of the smoking ruins; while other soldiers, with wine bottles under their arms, went reeling past, crying out at the captives: "Hund; Schwein; Schweinhund!"

—and this is the mad brute who stands behind it all. He's "THE KAISER" The Beast of Berlin"

—who is exposed in all his hideousness three times daily in the most sensational moving picture ever made—"THE KAISER"—"The Beast of Berlin," at the BROADWAY THEATRE AT 41st STREET. THE REALIZATION

Two years, three months and seven days ago, on the morning of December 30th, 1915, at seven minutes after 11 o'clock, D. W. Griffith was reading the Los Angeles Herald in his bungalow near Pasadena, California, when the germ of a wonderful idea was conceived in his brain.

An obscure item in the morning paper first gave the impetus to a movement which carried him thousands of miles, across the seas, to the battle-fields of France, to those high in the councils of the Allied nations, of France, of England, of America.

That idea, which had its origin in a news dispatch from the war zone, directed his activities from that very moment until he was able to realize the achievement of his hopes, his dreams, and his greatest ambition.

For more than two months he labored unceasingly upon his idea, which grew, developed and expanded under his guiding hand into an accomplishment which bids fair to establish new standards in the wonderful art wherein the name of D. W. Griffith stands supreme.

Tonight, in the Forty-fourth Street Theatre, before a specially invited audience of distinguished public officials, officers of the United States and the Allied Armies, prominent citizens, and guests, Mr. Griffith will witness the actual REALIZATION of the idea which he conceived so many months ago in his bungalow in California.

That idea is his new and beautiful love story, "HEARTS OF THE WORLD," a simple and wonderful tale, told amid the scenes of carnage and battle, with the great war as a background.

Knowing all that the public of America and of the civilized world would expect of him after his triumphs with "The Birth of a Nation" and "Intolerance," Mr. Griffith put forth renewed efforts to make "HEARTS OF THE WORLD" his masterpiece.

Instead of merely trying to stage battle pictures, Mr. Griffith has struck the BIG HUMAN NOTE in his latest work, presenting in the simplest and the most appealing manner a LOVE STORY of the kind which will live through all the ages.

TONIGHT, at the 44th Street Theatre, then, D. W. Griffith will sit in a box at the private showing of his latest work, and see in actuality THE REALIZATION OF HIS DREAM.

No tickets whatever are on sale for the invitation showing tonight. THE GENERAL PUBLIC will have its first opportunity to see "HEARTS OF THE WORLD" tomorrow (FRIDAY) night. Thereafter it will be shown twice daily, 2:15 and 8:15. Seats are now on sale at the box office.

NEW YORK, THURSDAY, APRIL 4, 1918.

THE DELUSIONS OF COUNT CZERNIN.

Count CZERNIN, the Austro-Hungarian Foreign Minister, has too high an opinion of President WILSON's statesmanship to suspect him of any desire "to separate Vienna from Berlin." And then he himself makes a bald and undisguised effort to separate France from her allies. He informs us that "a short time before "the beginning of the offensive in the "west M. CLEMENCEAU inquired of me "whether and upon what basis I was "prepared to negotiate." Count CZERNIN replied that he was ready to negotiate, in agreement with Berlin, and that as regards France he "saw no "other obstacle to peace than France's "desire for Alsace-Lorraine." There is no subtlety in that; it has not even the merit of shrewdness. The thought in the Foreign Minister's mind obviously was this—that if he could persuade the allies of France to believe that the restoration of Alsace and Lorraine was the only obstacle to peace they would probably inform France that they must refuse to continue the war for the sake of her lost provinces and, leaving her to shift for herself, they would begin the negotiations.

Count CZERNIN deludes himself. Not only have the Allies repeatedly made the redemption of Alsace and Lorraine a condition of peace, but they have never regarded Alsace and Lorraine as chief among the issues which the war must decide. It is one of the issues, a most important one, but there are many others the just and final settlement of which are indispensable to the conclusion of peace. If Chancellor HERTLING and Foreign Minister CZERNIN announced today that they would agree to the return of Alsace and Lorraine to France, that would by no means end the war. Count CZERNIN is very ill-informed if he supposes that the Allies would consent to discuss any terms of peace that would leave Germany in her present position, with the whole vast East in her control, free to repair her fortunes and rebuild her military power for another assault upon the freedom of nations.

This speech simply fulfills a hundred prophecies. It had been foreseen that when the new offensive came to a halt in failure the Central Powers would begin to talk about peace again. That has been their practice, it has become a habit. This fresh resort to the familiar methods of peace intrigue is a confession that the drive has failed. It is something more than that, for the Foreign Minister in spite of himself again discloses the wretched plight of Austria and makes it plain that, whatever professions she may make of undying loyalty to Germany, she would rejoice to the very bottom of her soul if peace could come at once. He surmises that the President looks upon Vienna as "more favorable soil for "sowing the seeds of a general "peace;" "he has perhaps said to "himself that the Austro-Hungarian "monarchy has the good fortune to "have a Monarch who genuinely and "honorably desires a general peace, "but that this Monarch will never be "guilty of a breach of faith." The appeal could hardly be made in plainer terms. Our good Monarch desires peace; we must have peace, for we are bankrupt, suffering, starving. Won't President WILSON have the kindness to open negotiations without delay? That is one meaning of the Count's speech to the deputation of the Vienna City Council. But it is also plainly another of the often repeated attempts to secure by negotiation a peace which the Teutonic Powers know they can never secure by arms.

Count CZERNIN again says that President WILSON's four conditions of peace would be a satisfactory basis for negotiations. With the march of events those four conditions of peace have been placed in the archives, where they need not be troubled again. They were in truth a statement of principles, not of conditions, and every one of the principles set forth by the President has been most flagrantly violated by Germany and Austria in their treaties with Russia, the Ukraine, and Rumania. It is useless at this time to talk about a basis of peace which Germany and Austria have openly rejected. There is a more recent statement by President WILSON of the conditions of peace which has probably escaped the attention of Count CZERNIN. When Bishop HENDERSON inquired the other day whether Mr. WILSON's unwavering purpose was expressed in his declaration that "the German power, a thing without "conscience, honor, or capacity for "covenanted peace, must be crushed," and that nothing could turn us aside until we have accomplished our immediate task of winning the war, the President replied that the words quoted by the Bishop expressed his "unaltered thought and unbroken purpose," and that professions of a desire for peace from the enemy mean nothing unless they embody "a com-"plete and convincing program for "justice upon which a lasting peace "can really rest." The President added that we have as yet had no evidence that their peace proposals mean anything of that kind.

It is possible that Count CZERNIN does not know that the terms of peace forced upon Russia and accepted by Russia through what we must now conclude was the collusive influence of LENINE as an agent of Germany, that the settlement they made with the false representatives of the Ukraine, and the agreement reached with Rumania, leaving that unfortunate country at their mercy, put a stop to all talk of present peace in the countries of the Allies. Even the most convinced pacifists have been silenced, shocked, and appalled by this evidence of Germany's persistence in her original aim in the war—the conquest and subjugation of territory enough to make her master of the world. Where political principles and territorial readjustments were not long ago discussed, as they have been discussed in former wars, now the fact uppermost in all consideration in the problems of the war is the danger to the world should Germany be permitted to make peace on terms which would leave her standing where she stands today. The German power must be crushed, said the President. That is the unalterable resolve of the Allies. It is the purpose from which neither their Governments nor their peoples will draw back until it has been accomplished. When Count CZERNIN as a representative of Austria-Hungary is willing to talk of a peace that will leave Germany powerless to destroy the peace of the world and renew its assaults upon the independence of other nations, his words will receive attention in the allied countries, but not until then.

WISCONSIN.

From 1896, except in the Progressive troubles of 1912, Wisconsin has been carried by the Republicans in every Presidential year. In 1916 it gave a plurality to Mr. HUGHES, elected a Republican Governor and Senator, and a "solid" Republican delegation to the House of Representatives. In spite of divers independences, eccentricities, roving, temporary political alliances, and all the strange habits and inheritances of La Follettism, it is "normally" Republican. So the election of Mr. LENROOT as a Senator in Congress was to be, and was generally, expected.

His Democratic opponent, Mr. DAVIES, made a strong canvass and is but a few thousand votes behind. Both he and Mr. LENROOT stood for unswerving loyalty to the United States and the most vigorous support of the war. Mr. LENROOT is pledged to sustain the President in all measures essential to the winning of the war. The election of Mr. LENROOT is no mere partisan success. It means, as the election of Mr. DAVIES would have meant, as the great vote given for the two means, the Americanism, the patriotism of Wisconsin, sufficiently shown heretofore by her acts, however belied by her La Follettes and Bergers.

A regrettable large vote, nearly 100,000, was cast for the Socialist VICTOR BERGER, who demanded "the "withdrawal of American troops from "the invasion of Europe," a Bolshevist "peace, an immediate armistice and "peace conference." The vote for ELSNER, Socialist candidate for Senator in 1916, was a little less than 29,000. The Berger gain is not due to the growth of socialism, but to the sullen opposition of many Germans and of La Follettian irreconcilables or dupes, full of blind suspicion of whatever the Government does, unconscious anarchists, certainly not loyal to the United States. In this country, as in Germany, the majority Socialist Party is still the obedient servant of Kaiserism. In Wisconsin Mr. BERGER, as a candidate for Senator, has received the support of not only the regular Socialists, German in principle and sympathy, but of all the malignants from other parties, of all the professional or incurable Germans and Germanophiles, of the straitest sect of La Follette devotees and cranks.

There are too many of them, but they are all counted at last. We know that Wisconsin; full of isolated foreign communities, little Germanys, ravaged by German socialism, dizzled and bedeviled for twenty years by the everlasting spinning and buzzing of the La Follette teetotum, is sound of head and heart, American, and by much more than 3 to 1, or whatever this morning's latest figures may show.

Wisconsin is all right. As for Mr. LA FOLLETTE, doubtless he will take good pains to stay in the reservation hereafter. He has had his warning from Legislature and people.

AN INEXPLICABLE ORDER.

In suspending publication of the daily list of casualties in France, General MARCH, Acting Chief of Staff, is governing himself by the strict letter of Secretary BAKER's announcement by cable that "all mat-"ters pertaining to events, persons, "policies, or operations abroad will "only be officially given out from "the headquarters of the American "Expeditionary Force in France." This may refer only to statements about movements of troops, tactics and operations, censored by direction of General PERSHING. It seems to be a pure assumption on the part of General MARCH that the order forbids War Department officials at Washington to continue to give out the meagre casualty list, which could not possibly convey any information to the enemy.

To keep the American people, who are thousands of miles away from the battle zone, in complete ignorance of what is happening to the units of their army would be a shortsighted and incredibly foolish policy. It would prove, as time went on, something of a strain on patriotism. That would be most unfortunate, for it should be the judicious endeavor of the Administration to see that the interest of the people in the war and their concern about the fortunes of their armies were always maintained.

To suppress legitimate news and to hide or withhold losses, denying relatives even the names of those who fall in battle, would be to foster apathy about the cause for which America is fighting, to provoke sedition among enemy aliens, and to encourage the pacifists to renew their agitation for a negotiated peace. There is one thing that the most patriotic Americans will not stand—an arbitrary and stupid censorship.

CHAIRMAN HURLEY'S MESSAGE.

In its issue of March 11 the Emergency Fleet News, published by the United States Shipping Board, estimated the deliveries of steel ships in March at twenty-three. Seven of them were to be tankers, two colliers, and the rest cargo vessels. It was the expectation that more than one steel ship would be launched "per day during the month." That was the statement of DANIEL H. COX, manager of the division of steel ship construction, at a monthly dinner on Feb. 28. According to the "hurry up" telegram sent on Tuesday by Chairman HURLEY to the manager of every shipyard under contract, twenty-one, not twenty-three, steel ships were delivered in March, the tonnage being 166,700; and thirty steel ships of a tonnage of 219,586 were launched. Mr. HURLEY says that the tonnage of steel ships delivered should have been 197,075, or 30,375 tons greater than reported; but in regard to launchings he fails to include an estimate of the tonnage counted on. "We are keenly disappointed," he says, speaking for the Shipping Board.

The difference of two ships between the estimate (a minimum, by the way) and the actual performance may not appear so important as to justify keen disappointment; but, unfortunately, the failure in production was continued from February, for which month eighteen deliveries had been promised and only fifteen were made. If the deficiency should become a habit with the shipyards, the execution of the board's program would be more and more of a disappointment as 1919 approached. Twelve times 30,375 tons (the shortage in March) would come to 364,500 tons, and General Manager PIEZ of the Emergency Fleet Corporation has been dealing with minimum estimates. There is no room for optimism when production falls below the minimum. The situation, therefore, calls for plain speaking. "If you fail," says Chairman HURLEY to the shipyard managers, "to maintain your "schedule of production, which sched-"ule the country is expecting you to "meet and which we must have you "meet to win this war, the country "will charge you and us with not doing "our part." And with good reason, for Chairman HURLEY, speaking to the National Marine League on March 27, reported that on March 2, 1918, the number of men employed in the shipyards was 236,000, as compared with 45,000 at any time in 1916; and he said, with warrant for his optimism:

> It took Germany forty years to build up her mighty military machine. In less than eight months we have built up a shipbuilding machine which, when it gets into full swing, will defeat the military machine of Germany.

The American people, therefore, can see no reason why performance should not run ahead of rather than behind promise, if the contractors and shipyard workers are as thoroughly in earnest about the building program as Chairman HURLEY and his associates are. It will be a deplorable pass if production is steadily below minimum estimates while the curve of submarine havoc rises, as has been the case for the ten weeks up to the good report of the week just ended. "Are the major-"ity of your men doing a full day's "work?" asks Chairman HURLEY in his telegram. "Are you working "overtime? Are you running a night "shift, or planning to do so?" These questions must be answered in the affirmative if the "full swing" spoken of by Mr. HURLEY is ever to be more than a rhetorical figure.

There is no lack of workers to break all shipbuilding records; behind those now employed stands a great army of volunteers awaiting the call to service. If materials, steel plates and lumber, are always available in sufficient quantities, the men will be inviting defeat in the war and ruin to the industries of the country by failing to do a full day's work every day, and by refusing to work overtime, in three shifts if necessary.

A DRY VICTORY.

Ratification of the prohibition amendment by the Massachusetts Legislature is a considerable Dry triumph. A great industrial Eastern State, containing a large and diversified population, a Commonwealth rich in sizable cities, Massachusetts is in a far different class from any of the ten States that have preceded her in forcing this curious "concurrent" amendment. That Southern States, with their local and racial reasons for adherence to a Federal assumption of authority so contrary to the State rights doctrine, should go "dry" is natural enough; and the proposed concurrent authority of enforcement may be a salve to tender consciences. It is natural that some small States, some simple agricultural States, should cling to the amendment. It would be possible for States containing a minority of the population to thrust prohibition upon mighty communities, nations in themselves, like New York. The action of Massachusetts shows that a populous manufacturing State, whether or not fairly represented by its Legislature, may adopt a fashion which has deeply troubled the tribe of politicians.

It is to be remembered that the Great and General Court of Massachusetts has had no mandate to decide the matter; and that a lively jealousy of Boston is a rooted habit of the rural, and especially the Western Massachusetts, mind. There was talk of a referendum, consultative of the legal effect, of course, to the voters at the next State election. Governor MCCALL waved that proposal away as sternly as our own WHITMAN. His declaration was accepted as a foretaste of ratification. The news columns of The Boston Transcript contained this statement illuminating the political aspects of the case:

> There have been rumors for the past few days to the effect that some of the most powerful leaders in the Republican Party had decided that it would be better to have the amendment ratified at once, and it was assumed at the State House today that the action of the Governor was in line with the agreed policy of his party at this time.

The next day the Senate ratified by a vote of more than two to one the amendment previously accepted by the House. Who are "some of the most "powerful leaders in the Republican "Party" that decided that it was good party policy to plump for the amendment without delay? Not Senator LODGE and Senator WEEKS, who voted against submission of the amendment. Whatever political finesse or hope underlies the course of the Republicans in the Massachusetts Legislature, they have given Federal prohibition an impulse and a boost that should make the friends of State rights and initiative stir their stumps.

FEDERAL TAX INSTALLMENT PAYMENTS.

Secretary MCADOO has found a way to relieve Federal taxpayers without the objections which have been made to other bills for the same purpose. That the Treasury needs the money appears from Representative KITCHIN's lament that the tax collections will not be half of the nation's expenses in this first war year. Without calculating our advances to our allies, including only expenditures for our own army, navy, and civilian establishments, the Government will spend seven billions this year, and will collect less, it is estimated, by at least four billions. The Treasury has issued certificates in anticipation of income, and must redeem considerable sums before it closes its account at the end of June.

But the total of the expected tax receipts grows with each new estimate, and as it grows the discomfort of those who must pay in the funds grows also. Some of them are passing or reducing dividends in order to find tax money. All of them will find their accounts as much disarranged as the Treasury's if they are not allowed to carry over into the next fiscal year the payments due before July. Accordingly there have been several bills for payments of taxes in installments, and they have been approved by the business world with one consent. The trouble has been to find a plan which should enable the Treasury to claim the funds for its credit balance, yet without collecting them from the taxpayers.

Secretary MCADOO solves the puzzle by leaving the funds in the banks to the credit of the Treasury. The banks, therefore, would be provided with funds to lend to the taxpayers and could collect interest for what they would not be required to keep reserves against, or to pay over without due notice. If any taxpayers preferred not to pay interest to the banks, they could pay their taxes from their own funds without feeling any grievance. The collection of billions of busy money to remain idle in the Sub-Treasuries is both a hardship and an absurdity, which would count for much at a time when it is proposed to disestablish the system born in distrust of all banks, and due to "go" when the Federal Reserve system is ready to displace it.

That the Treasury will need all its funds before the calendar year is out is not open to doubt. The growing army, the needs of the navy in its fight against the submarines, the speeding up of the building of ships and airplanes, will total more than Congress has voted. It may be hoped that it will be collected under a less objectionable tax system than the present.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

They Take Dogs Into Battle.

There is a larger significance than appears at first thought in the fact that PHILIP GIBBS, in the dispatch printed yesterday, referred again, and for the second time within a week, to a habit the drivers of the army transport wagons have of keeping a dog on the seat beside them as they do their desperately dangerous work. Mr. GIBBS himself, as all readers of his reports are well aware, does not lack appreciation of the seriousness of the events he chronicles and the scenes he describes. He knows, none better, that he is watching a battle on which the fate of liberty and civilization hangs not too securely, and he would be the last man at such a time to divert his attention from really important matters to those that are trivial or merely sentimental.

Evidently he thinks, therefore, or perhaps he only realizes without thinking about it, that there is true importance in this revelation of affection and gentleness by men whose days and nights are passed in the immediate presence of death. And, whether it is thought or realization, he is right.

We have heard much, and too much, about the brutalizing effect of war on those participating in it. That war has that effect, sometimes and on some, is probably true, in the sense that it brings out innate brutalities by affording opportunities for their safe, or comparatively safe, display. But from a thousand sources we have also learned that war brings to perfect flower in common men, as well as in those who are uncommon, qualities of the very highest sort—the forgetfulness of self and self-interest that marks the hero and the saint.

And everybody, in these latter days, must have noted the peculiar consideration for the rights and convenience of others that is shown by the uniformed men on our streets and in our public conveyances. As always, there is enough of pushing, of ruthless taking, of indifference to a neighbor's greater need; but it is next to never that these things are done by soldiers or sailors. It is more than credible that these hard fighters and eager slayers of the public enemy love dogs—that they are glad to earn, even in the midst of battle, the love of the one animal that values and responds to human care and caresses.

"Curiosity Calls" Condemned.

These are times in which the legitimate and proper use of the telephone is of such vital importance to so many people in the conduct of necessary public and private business that the responsible heads of the telephone company were more than justified in issuing something between an appeal and a demand that subscribers and tollpayers alike refrain from making what the company's advertisement characterizes—and condemns—as "curiosity calls." By that term is meant calls made for the sake of getting information as to the cause of any unusual happening or sound, and of getting it at once, regardless of the trouble that may be caused by making hasty inquiries over the wire, instead of waiting for the sure arrival of the news through other channels.

The instance cited is the latest explosion and fire on the Jersey City river front. There were enough people with a special and helpful interest in that disaster to strain the facilities of the telephone service, but in almost innumerable cases they found the wires not at their disposal because they were in use by other people whose interest, instead of being special and helpful, was the quite different one of merely wanting to know the origin of a startling sound.

The telephone company cannot discriminate between the necessary and the unnecessary calls; it must give connections in order as they are asked. Therefore, the remedy for an abuse that is likely at any time, now, to have serious consequences is for the public to show wisdom, a regard for existing conditions, and a willingness to wait for news that is never long in arriving.

The company might also have complained of another grave abuse—the employment of the telephone for long conversations of a more or less "social" sort—substitutes for visits, as it were. These are all wrong—as wrong as it is to have somebody called to the telephone and then to keep him or her waiting there till the caller is ready to go to the instrument. That comes near to being the height of discourtesy, and every victim of it has a right to resent the inconvenience thus imposed.

Considering School Luncheons.

Members of the Board of Education are continuing to discuss, and to hear discussion of, the question whether or not the city should provide luncheons for the pupils in the public schools. Sentiment in favor of doing this seems to be increasing among the members of the board; and it is thought likely that the adoption of the plan so often proposed will not be long delayed.

The affirmative arguments rest on the results of investigations that show many of the children in the public schools to be insufficiently or improperly nourished, and that the number of whom this is true is increasing. Such children, of course, cannot take anything like full advantage of the educational facilities provided for them, and thus there is a real and large waste of school money. It is undeniable, too, that the consequences of malnutrition are as dangerous to the body politic as are those of illiteracy. They persist to a greater or less extent all through life, and the underfed child's chances of becoming either a good or an efficient adult are appreciably diminished.

On the other hand, it can be argued, and is, that even a partial feeding of children at the public expense relieves parents of a responsibility they ought to bear, and is sure to confirm some of them in wrong ideas as to what they have a right to expect from the Government." The relative weight of these contrasting evils is still a matter of dispute.

The advocates of the scheme should consider more than they do the difficulty, not of providing luncheons—that is a mere matter of money—but of providing luncheons that are at once reasonably cheap and fairly good. It is easy enough to make out elaborate tables of "calories," but that doesn't go far toward making school cooks either careful or skillful, and in not a few schools that already offer luncheons to their pupils, the latter complain constantly and bitterly and justly of their quality.

QUARTERMASTER RECRUITS.

John Kendrick Bangs Defends Them Against Mr. Cannon's Shafts.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

With the assistance of that distinguished humorist, J. G. Cannon of Illinois, certain newspapers in this land are endeavoring to make the insignia of the Quartermaster's Department a reproach to those who wear it. It is my privilege to know many of the young men who have been assigned to that branch of the service, and there is not one of them who is in it as a matter of choice. They are there because they have been put there, and the majority of them are cursing their luck, since they would infinitely have preferred to serve in some capacity that would insure their going into the trenches along with those whom they consider more fortunate.

Many of them are young men with families to support, who have given up gainful occupations and are now doing a hard day's job, day after day, inconspicuously, at a stipend that is inadequate to provide the barest necessities of life. I know a dozen of these young men, volunteers, who endured all the hard preparatory training of the camps, hoping to make themselves fit to "go over the top"; who have made themselves fit to go "over the top," but have received orders to take up the duties they are now performing, and, though resentful in their very souls of the nature of their duties, yet, like the good soldiers they are, performing them with unquestioning obedience. It is a poor return to slur their bravery and to sneer at them as slickers or slackers. If there are any slickers or slackers among them it is a safe guess that they are the very ones that easy-going Congressmen have aided in securing what they would consider the safe and easy berths.

The work of the Quartermaster's Department is important. It is at the very foundation of the fighting man's efficiency. It has got to be done, and it is being done by thousands of splendid young men who if they had their way would be in the fighting line; and it is a matter for every loyal American to resent that the value of their service should be minimized, their courage questioned, and their motives aspersed.

As for the Congressional humorist, J. G. Cannon, who has done not a little with his so-called wit to aid in this assault, I have taken the trouble to look up his war record, and I find in Who's Who that at the beginning of the civil war in 1861 Mr. Cannon was 25 years old—a very Hotspur of an age—and that from 1862 to 1868 he practiced law in Illinois, with his name on the public payroll—as usual! A valiant service during the nation's peril, but, alas, I cannot find that although admitted to the bar at that early age Mr. Cannon wore any either upon his shoulders or upon his sleeve; and it is a sad fact that if his heels were guilty of spurs their guilt has faded away into such airy nothingness as to leave behind them no record either of their existence or of his achievement in winning them.

Of such is the Kingdom of Criticism!

JOHN KENDRICK BANGS.

Daniel Moynahan.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The city has suffered a very serious loss by the death of Daniel Moynahan. For about eleven years he was the Collector of Assessments and Arrears. During all of that time I saw him often and valued greatly the official and personal relations which we sustained.

Mr. Moynahan made a splendid record for the efficiency with which he enforced payment of arrears of taxes and assessments. The great success which attended the enactment of the unique method of collecting real estate taxes by the sale of tax liens was due to him.

Mr. Moynahan was much more than efficient. He made friends for the city and for the administrations of the city by the intelligent, considerate, helpful way in which he treated those who had business with his office.

All who knew him have suffered a great personal loss. LAWSON PURDY.

Preparedness Under Roosevelt.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In your editorial article in today's issue, under the caption "The Colonel Down East," you make reference to what the Colonel did not do during the seven years of his administration in the line of "preparedness." There was nothing to warrant anything more than a perfectly normal state of preparedness during that period. The Americans who labor under the impression that, from the moment of the threatened invasion of Belgium, this country would not have been simply humming with its preparation to attack the common enemy, had the Colonel been President then, I think you will find about as difficult to locate as hens' teeth.

Wanted, a Recipe.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Can a TIMES reader give directions for making a Spanish dish of rice, tomatoes, and salt codfish? It is an excellent dish and would be a welcome addition to the menus of these conservation days.

AMERICA IN ARMS.

Let us who come so late into the war
Go quietly, and keep a humble heart,
Praying that we may bear a worthy part
In the great task with those who went before.

Firm is our faith in these, our nation's youth.
Let us not wrong them by the idle word.
Nor let our eyes be blinded to the truth
By all the brightness of an untried sword.

Ah, let them go, with wonder and with prayer,
Into the fields of war. What can be said,
Truly, by us? They shall encounter there
The eloquent presence of the silent dead.

If victory be ours, as we believe
It shall be ours at last, then we shall know
It is not ours indeed, but we receive
This gift from those who were the first to go.

Theirs is the victory. This our only pride:
In the same cause we served, endured, and died.

ACTRESSES SELL STAMPS.

Marines at Library Fire Salute in War Savings Drive.

Several thousand dollars worth of saving stamps were sold in front of the Public Library at Forty-second Street and Fifth Avenue yesterday during an enthusiastic war savings rally held there, with Miss Julia Arthur, Jane Grey, and Marie Dressler as the speakers. Miss Virginia Hylan, Mayor Hylan's daughter, again attended as one of the workers. Among the others who assisted were Mrs. T. G. Patten, Mrs. L. S. Chanler, Mrs. Bourke Cockran, and Mrs. George J. Gould.

Although it was raining, a great crowd collected to hear the speakers and to buy stamps. Several squads of marines from the Brooklyn Navy Yard and the Metropolitan Life Band assisted in the demonstration, the marines attracting special attention by firing several volleys of blank cartridge shells over the heads of passersby on Fifth Avenue.

When the rally was at its height the British recruiting bus drew up to give Joe Taylor a chance to speak.

"How the hell do you intend to win this war, if you don't do something," he shouted. "Every one of you between the ages of 15 and 65 would be in uniform if you were in Germany, Austria, Hungary or Turkey, so you ought to be right glad that you are living in the United States, where all you are asked to do is to lend your money to the Government."

DEDICATE NEW CHAPEL.

Memory of Dr. W. R. Huntington Honored at Cathedral.

A chapel to commemorate the memory of the Rev. Dr. William Reed Huntington, who died nine years ago, was dedicated to St. Ansgarius, the patron saint of Sweden, at the Cathedral Church of St. John the Divine yesterday morning. This is the last of the seven Chapels of the Tongues which surround the ambulatory of the cathedral.

The Chapel of St. Ansgarius is completed with the exception of the windows, which are to be of an early English type. The building was designed by Henry Vaughan, and is pure English fourteenth century Gothic.

Services of consecration began with the reading of the psalms by Bishop Greer, which was followed by a hymn. Bishop Greer in his address said that Dr. Huntington in his day was a great church builder with a great vision, and could fittingly be compared with St. Ansgarius.

CONFER ON RELIGIOUS UNITY

Camp Pastors Meet Here to Plan Work Among Soldiers.

Unity among religious workers in camps was emphasized at an all-day conference of camp pastors at the Russell Sage Building yesterday. Similar conferences have been held by the General Wartime Commission of the Churches at Atlanta, Ga., and at Fort Worth, Texas, and others are planned for Chicago and the Pacific Coast. Some three hundred camp pastors will be represented at these conferences.

A letter from General Johnson, commanding Camp Upton, was read, in which he said: "Ministers who have been sent to this camp are strong men, and their personality and work are of great value. I very heartily approve of their work and appreciate it, since there is no denominational feature about it, for all are working in unity and for all the men."

ART NOTES.

Work of French War Painters and Other Exhibitions.

At the Ralston Galleries for two weeks is an exhibition of selected works by French soldier painters. Charles Hoffbauer, who was at work on the decoration of the Thomas Ryan Confederate Memorial Hall of Richmond when the war broke out, contributes a number of competent water colors—one showing a comfortable "souterrain" near Rheims, with soldiers reading and rifles hanging on the walls; another showing a trench in the cemetery at Soissons, with a cool trickle of blue uniforms flowing through the deep cut in the ground, and above the pitiful tawdriness of wreaths and crosses of mourning, and three beautifully painted views of the Château de Coucy, in which the painter's erudition and dedication to ancient architecture bear rich fruit. Three little paintings by J. Duval show the smoke and gases of the modern battlefield; there is a small portrait of King Albert of Belgium by Lucien Jonas, the only one for which King Albert has posed since the outbreak of the war; there are a number of cartoons by Jonas and three paintings by M. Chaineux. In most instances the subject interest is far above any awakened by the intrinsic merits of the work. A curious paralysis of emotion has attacked nearly all the painters who do their work within the actual theatre of the war. Their pictures reflect, perhaps, the prevailing mood better than more emotional renderings of war themes.

Paintings by Hayley Lever.

At the Daniel Gallery there are recent paintings by Hayley Lever, who displays his pronounced virtues and also to a certain degree his mannerisms. Repetition in line and spot inveigles him still. Better even than twisting reflections he loves objects seen in numbers—a fleet of sails, a fleet of masts, a fleet of skyscrapers, a fleet of little buildings on the harbor shore. Often these are charmingly rendered with gayety of color and the fillip of unexpectedness in the arrangement; but in a group it is agreeable to find such exceptions as the fine composition called "Winter," with its irregular patches of house and shed, or "The Seaside Garden," with its clumps of flaming bloom and the banner of smoke flung to it from a passing tugboat. The picture called "The Boats" makes on the whole the pleasantest impression, however. Here the repetitions of line are cleverly varied and the numerous elements of the scene simplified. The planes of water and sky are closely observed, and the whole picture has got away from the suggestion of pigment and communicates the sentiment of the scene—a beautiful scene and a beautiful interpretation.

Designs for Greenhouses.

It is announced that plans are rapidly progressing for the erection of the Central Display Greenhouse and the Orchid Greenhouse in the New York Botanical Garden, Bronx Park, the new structures having been made possible by a $100,000 donation from Daniel and Murry Guggenheim. The designs have been executed by Brinley & Bird, landscape engineers, selected by the Board of Managers. The Avery Architectural Library of Columbia University is exhibiting today, and will continue to exhibit throughout April, a series of attractive water color paintings representing these designs and designs for other structures planned. Amounts donated for the additional buildings include gifts for the Garden School Shelter by Mrs. Frederick F. Thompson and for the Rose Garden Stairway by Mrs. Robert F. Westcott. Dr. N. C. Britton is director of the garden.

APPOINTS SOLOVEI TO A CITY OFFICE

Assistant Corporation Counsel Named by Mayor Seeks Draft Exemption.

LONG HYLAN'S CLOSE FRIEND

Mayor Declares That Lawyer Called Counsel for Pickpockets Merely Gave Aid to Unfortunates.

Mayor Hylan yesterday appointed Joseph A. Solovei an Assistant Corporation Counsel in charge of the Bureau of Street Openings, Brooklyn, at a salary of $5,000 a year. Mr. Solovei is a Brooklyn lawyer whose practice has been largely confined to the criminal courts. He has been known in Brooklyn as counsel for pickpockets in court proceedings. It was because of this that Police Commissioner Burgher refused to appoint him Deputy Police Commissioner, although the Mayor urged the appointment.

Mr. Solovei has been a close friend of Mayor Hylan for several years, and when the Mayor was elected it was generally understood that he would receive an appointment. During the Mayoralty campaign Mr. Hylan made many campaign trips in Mr. Solovei's automobile, and on one occasion the Mayor referred to him jokingly as his "Commissioner of Transportation." Just previous to his selection as the Democratic candidate last Summer Judge Hylan and Mr. Solovei were together at Saratoga. Since the first of the year Mr. Solovei has been a frequent visitor at the Mayor's office in the City Hall.

The Mayor showed considerable anxiety to have Mr. Solovei appointed a Deputy Police Commissioner, but Commissioner Bugher protested strongly against it. Shortly afterward the disagreement between the Mayor and Commissioner Bugher occurred which ended in the latter relinquishing his office. Later Mr. Solovei was mentioned as a candidate for other offices, but each time he insisted that he did not want a political appointment. The Mayor did not announce the appointment of his friend yesterday, but the fact became known through Brooklyn sources.

When confirmation of the appointment was sought at the Mayor's office, Grover A. Whalen, the Mayor's Secretary, admitted that the appointment had been made, but would make no comment upon it. No statement was obtainable from the Mayor. It was said, however, that the Mayor believed that Mr. Solovei had been unjustly attacked and that he had been a friend of the unfortunates who had been in trouble with the police. Mr. Solovei had no comment to make upon his appointment.

The place for Mr. Solovei in the Corporation Counsel's office was made by the appointment of J. Grattan MacMahon as City Magistrate to succeed Magistrate Albert Van Brunt Voorhees, who earlier in the day resigned his Magistracy to receive the appointment at the hands of the Mayor as a Justice of Special Sessions in Brooklyn to succeed Edwin L. Garvin, who resigned recently. The appointments of both Voorhees and MacMahon were announced at the Mayor's office, but although Solovei was appointed to succeed MacMahon at the same time, nothing was said about it.

McCooey Was Not Consulted.

Although John H. McCooey, Democratic boss of Brooklyn, was not consulted about the appointments of Voorhees and MacMahon, he said both men would have the approval of the Brooklyn Democratic organization. Mr. MacMahon's appointment as a Magistrate came as a surprise, as it had been rumored that Mr. Solovei was in line for the Magistracy. Mr. MacMahon was made head of the Brooklyn Street Opening Bureau by the Mayor three months ago. He has long been an active figure in Brooklyn Democratic politics. As City Magistrate he will receive $7,000 a year and serve out the unexpired term of Justice Voorhees. The term does not expire until Dec. 31, 1919, and the chances of Mayor Hylan reappointing him for a full ten-year term are considered excellent.

The Bureau of Street Openings in Brooklyn is considered to be one of the most important in the Corporation Counsel's office. The head of the bureau will handle all condemnation proceedings and pass upon matters involving large sums of money.

Mr. Solovei is 28 years old and lives at 69 Thatford Avenue in the Brownsville District of Brooklyn. He was born on the lower east side of Manhattan. At one time he was an aspirant for the Democratic nomination for Assembly in the Twenty-third (Brooklyn) Assembly District.

Solovei Claims Exemption.

It became known yesterday that Mr. Solovei, whose questionnaire was filed with Local Board No. 86, in East New York, had claimed exemption from the draft. He was in classification 3B, which includes one who has received deferred classification and has dependent parents. After the questionnaire was filed it was asked for by the Federal appeal agent, William R. Conklin, who said yesterday that Mr. Solovei's claim was "under advisement" and had not been reached in the regular course of taking up the questionnaires. He added that no decision had been reached as to whether to appeal it or not.

Mr. Solovei said yesterday that he had claimed exemption on the ground that he was the sole support of his sister, mother, and father.

"My mother has been ill for years," he said, "and my father has also been in poor health for a long time. I have paid all their bills, and in addition paid the tuition of my brother in college. He is a Lieutenant in the United States Army. If I could scrape together enough money to be sure that my relatives would be taken care of while I am away I would go myself. It is merely a question of leaving them in the proper financial circumstances."

Dr. Samuel Solovei, brother of Joseph, is in the Reserve Corps, and expects to get an assignment soon to Georgia. In the neighborhood in which they live the Soloveis are reputed to be well to do. It was said that they owned the Post Office building at 70 Thatford Avenue, across from their home, and other real estate in the neighborhood.

'MAKINGS' FOR THE FRONT.

Soldiers and Sailors to Have Entire Output of Bull Durham.

To many thousands of cigarette smokers accustomed to "roll their own" the war will be brought home in a new way by the action of the Government yesterday in taking over the entire output of Bull Durham, a product of the American Tobacco Company, which has been one of the most widely advertised of its specialties. It was explained that on the part of men in service, particularly abroad where American "tailor-made" cigarettes are not readily obtainable, the demand for "the makings" in the familiar muslin sacks has grown enormously, and the authorities felt that the soldiers and sailors should be supplied, even if civilians had to go without.

At the local office of the American Tobacco Company it was said the Government had acted on its own initiative, notifying the company that the mills at Durham, N. C., had been taken over. It is understood the Government will pay the same price the concern has been receiving from jobbers. Advertising of this brand will be stopped and stocks now in the hands of jobbers will be disposed of through retail stores.

WARNS OF SHORTAGE OF PUPIL NURSES

Roosevelt Hospital Superintendent Urges Cutting of Training Course.

SAYS TWO YEARS WILL DO

Asks Academy of Medicine to Recommend to Surgeon General That Hospital Units Be Used as Schools.

Unless the Red Cross and other agencies charged with the recruiting of nurses for the armies lower their rigid requirements to meet the needs of war there will be a great shortage of nurses for several years. Dr. Charles B. Grimshaw, Superintendent of the Roosevelt Hospital, pointed this out yesterday in a letter to Dr. G. D. Stewart, Acting President of the Academy of Medicine, urging that the training course for nurses be reduced from three to two years.

In speaking of recommendations for increasing the number of nurses, Mr. Grimshaw says that "all of them are totally inadequate, to furnish but a small percentage of the small number required." One of the recommendations was that the number of nurses in training in the schools be increased to the full housing capacity, but Mr. Grimshaw says that plan would add only 2,700 pupils, "who, if they are satisfactory, will in three years add, beside the normal output, about 3 per cent. to the 65,000 nurses now registered in this country." He adds that Jane A. Delano, director of the Department of Nursing in the American Red Cross, and all other agencies had estimated that the army alone will need 35,000 nurses this year.

Mr. Grimshaw says that in the larger hospitals "the rates to the private patients for special or individual nurses have been increased to $5 for each twelve hours, or $10 for day and night nursing, and that physicians are having great difficulty in getting nurses for patients of moderate means." He adds that the two-year course of training has proved satisfactory in the Roosevelt Hospital. He urges the acceptance of all graduates of reputable schools even if they are not registered, the cutting of the training course from three to two years, and the founding of schools for practical training at all camp and base hospitals here and abroad. He writes:

"These methods would make available nearly enough nurses to meet the urgent requirements. The greatest possibility, however, for meeting all demands for the present and the near future lies in the potential elements contained in the base and camp hospital units and in the great number of trained and experienced physicians and nurses in charge of them. If these units were to organize practical training schools now, free from the red tape of any repressive organization, starting with four or five pupils to each graduate nurse—the average maintained by most schools—a concentrated course of training, not a medical education, in surgical technique and asepsis, and some symptomatology could very readily be given. For the present they could pass over the volume of the theory that gives the professional halo, which, if needed, could be acquired later, and within a short time a class of nurses, recruited from the ranks of nurses' aids, Young Women's Christian Association, and other organizations of high class intelligent women, would be giving our soldiers the best nursing that any hospital or any country affords, and a few nurses would be left to meet the imperative needs at home."

He urges that the Academy of Medicine make recommendations to the Surgeon General of the Army, and that the program be carried out by a "committee of physicians and nurses who are in sympathy with and will develop rather than obstruct it."

WEDS MAJOR CHANCELLOR.

Mrs. Charlotte Thorne Lewis Marries U. S. Officer in California.

Major Phillips Chancellor, U. S. A., stationed at Camp Kearny, and Mrs. Charlotte Thorne Lewis, widow of Major Birdseye Blakeman Lewis and a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Oakleigh Thorne of Thorndale, Millbrook, N. Y., and this city, were married yesterday in Santa Barbara, Cal., by the Rev. Dr. George F. Weld in the presence of immediate relatives and a few close friends, at Las Vegas, the estate where the Thornes, with T. Pearsall Thorne and Mrs. Lewis, have been spending the Winter.

The engagement was announced to relatives in New York several weeks ago, and the wedding date was then set. H. C. Chatfield Taylor of Chicago was Major Chancellor's best man. He met his bride a year ago when she was at Coronado, Cal.

Mrs. Chancellor's first husband, Major Birdseye Blakeman Lewis, was in the aviation section of the Signal Corps, U. S. N. A. of New York, having enlisted, and died suddenly in France on Nov. 3, 1917. The army report showed that he committed suicide. He was noted as one of the most daring of American amateur horsemen and follower of hounds.

MISS RUTH WESSELS WEDS.

The Bride of Gregory H. Starbuck of Cleveland at Her Parents' Home.

Miss Ruth Katherine Wessels, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward John Wessels, and Gregory Harte Starbuck of Cleveland, Ohio, were married at 7 o'clock last evening at the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward John Wessels, 308 Central Park West. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Edward S. Wolle, an uncle of the bride, under a canopy of Spring flowers. The altar and rail was also made of flowers, with white floral posts marking off an aisle.

The bride wore a gown of white chiffon crêpe and a veil of tulle caught up by sprays of orange blossoms. Her only ornament was a pendant of diamonds. Mr. Wessels gave his daughter in marriage.

Mrs. Harold E. Starbuck of Schenectady, N. Y., was the matron of honor. She wore a gown of cloth of gold draped with green tulle. Donald A. Starbuck of Chicago acted as best man.

A supper followed the wedding, after which there was dancing.

Later the couple left on their honeymoon trip. They will reside in Cleveland.

Lieut. Scott Marries Mrs. Schuller.

Lieutenant Eli Thomas Scott of the Engineers' Reserve Corps, of Trenton, N. J., and Mrs. Ada Schuller, whose home is 20 West Sixty-ninth Street, New York, were married at 10 o'clock yesterday morning in old St. Paul's Church by the Rev. Levis E. Christian. Lieutenant Scott was in the first Plattsburg camp, and expects to leave shortly for service abroad, and the wedding was therefore a hurried one.

CARDINAL GIBBONS AIDS PEACE LEAGUE

Tells W. H. Taft He Has Asked Catholic Clergy to Take Part in Convention.

Cardinal Gibbons has written a letter to William Howard Taft, President of the League to Enforce Peace, asserting his sympathy with the cause to "win the war for permanent peace," and declaring that the clergy of the Catholic Church has his recommendation to aid in the aims of the organization and in the convention to be held in Philadelphia beginning May 18. The letter given out by the officers of the league reads:

Cardinal's Residence,
408 N. Charles Street,
Baltimore, March 29, 1918.
Hon. William H. Taft,
New Haven, Conn.

My Dear Mr. Taft—The convention on "Win the War for Permanent Peace," to be held in Philadelphia, May 16 to 18, about which you have been so good as to send me a message, is one that excites my lively interest. It is to emphasize, as I understand it, the necessity of overthrowing the spirit of military despotism which threatens to supplant the benign constitutional government under which we live, and also the need of a rudimentary organization between the nations to provide the machinery by which that peace can be maintained. I do not hesitate to recommend to the clergy of the Catholic Church active participation not only in the convention, but in the work of the League to Enforce Peace, which, under your leadership, has developed such a sane program accompanied by such high aims. Personally I feel that the inauguration of such a league as you plan is essential at this stage in the world's history, otherwise we are likely to see retrogression instead of further progress in human affairs.

With sentiments of esteem, I am,
Faithfully yours,
J. CARDINAL GIBBONS.

Officers of the league said last night at the headquarters, 70 Fifth Avenue, that they were greatly pleased with the support given them by Cardinal Gibbons. Plans for the convention include speeches by prominent members of the Catholic clergy who had taken an interest in the aims of the league.

MISS FAHNESTOCK A BRIDE.

Wed to Sylvanus Stokes, Jr., in Washington—The Attendants.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—The marriage of Miss Margaret Fahnestock, daughter of the late Gibson Fahnestock of New York and Newport and this city, to Sylvanus Stokes, Jr., formerly of Richmond, took place this afternoon at the Episcopal Cathedral of St. Peter and St. Paul in the presence of a large and fashionable congregation. The Rev. Dr. Ernest M. Stires of St. Thomas's Church, New York, officiated.

Sinclair-Morrell.

Henry Victor Sinclair, a son of Mrs. W. T. Wilson of Washington, D. C., and Miss Florence E. Morrell were married last evening at the home of the bride's parents, Captain C. N. Morrell and Mrs. Morrell, 437 Central Park West, the Rev. Dr. Robert Watson of the Second Presbyterian Church officiating. The bride, in white satin and Irish lace, was attended by Mrs. W. M. Groshon of Philadelphia as matron of honor, and the Misses Gladys Morrell of Yarmouth, N. S., and Mabel McGill of this city as bridesmaids. W. W. Williams of Trenton, N. J., was the best man, and the ushers were the bride's brother, Harold Morrell, and Percy Neal. Mr. and Mrs. Sinclair will live at 437 Central Park West.

Miss Janet Weir Weds R. F. Weeks.

Miss Janet Weir, daughter of Mrs. James Weir, Jr., of Brooklyn, and Richard Franklin Weeks, son of Justice Bartow S. Weeks of 240 West Seventy-third Street and the late Mrs. Weeks, were married yesterday at noon in the chapel of St. Bartholomew's Church. The Rev. Dr. Frank M. Townley officiated.

On account of mourning there were no attendants, and only the immediate families witnessed the ceremony.

The engagement of the couple was announced last October. Mr. Weeks is a graduate of Princeton, class of '10, and is connected with the War Trade Board.

Hamlin-Todd Engagement.

Professor A. D. F. Hamlin of Columbia University and Mrs. Hamlin of 105 Morningside Avenue announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Louise Hamlin, to Lieutenant Leonard C. Todd of Essex, Mass. Miss Hamlin is a graduate of Vassar, class of '15. Lieutenant Todd is a graduate of Clark University, class of '15, and is at present stationed at the Quartermaster's Depot in this city. No date has been set for the wedding.

Miss Sullivan to Wed Lieut. Riddell.

Mr. and Mrs. George Meade Sullivan of 536 West 113th Street announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Aimee Louise Sullivan, to Lieutenant John Fletcher Riddell, Jr., U. S. N. A., of this city, son of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Riddell of Amsterdam, N. Y. Lieutenant Riddell was graduated from Yale, class of '13, and is at present in the Gas Defense Service, located at Lakehurst, N. J.

Miss Florence Smith Engaged.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew A. Smith of 69 East Ninety-first Street announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Florence Smith, to John Henry Shine, son of James Shine of Cohoes, N. Y. Miss Smith made her début two seasons ago and is a graduate of the Convent of the Sacred Heart. She is a sister of Miss Helen Smith. No date has been set for the wedding.

Miss Annie Gilbert Betrothed.

Mrs. Miles Riley Gilbert of 563 Park Avenue has announced the engagement of her daughter, Miss Annie Gilbert, to Donald Fairfax Cammann, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry J. Cammann of Lawrence, L. I., and brother of William C. and Oswald N. Cammann of New York and Henry H. Cammann of Pasadena, Cal. He is a member of Squadron A. Miss Gilbert, who made her début several years ago, is a member of the Junior League, and a sister of Mrs. Edwin Norman Hickman. No date has been mentioned for the marriage.

Taylor of 16 East Seventieth Street is receiving applications for tickets. Among the patronesses are Mrs. Nina Duryea, Mrs. Charles H. Ditson, Mrs. J. Fred Pierson, Mrs. Herbert Satterlee, and Mrs. Edwin W. Morse.

FIFTH AMERICAN VICTIM OF SHELL

Miss Mullen, New York Buyer, Among Those Killed Good Friday in Paris Church.

BOMBARDMENT IS RESUMED

Church Disaster Intensified French Resistance to Ruthless Foe, Sharp Reports to State Department.

PARIS, April 3.—The Germans again began to bombard Paris at 9:50 o'clock this morning.

Miss Emma G. Mullen of New York was killed in the church which was struck by a German shell on Good Friday. This increases to five the number of Americans who lost their lives in the church.

Miss Mullen's body was identified today at the morgue. She was born in Fox Lake, Wis., in 1881, and came to Europe in May of last year as buyer for a New York firm.

Before the body of Miss Mullen was identified in the morgue the body of her secretary, Mlle. Madeleine Floch, had been found in the ruins of the church.

Miss Mullen, accompanied by Mlle. Floch, left her residence at about 3 P. M. on March 29. Until today the hope was entertained that she had merely been injured, and perhaps might be in a hospital, unable to send word to her relatives.

Most Deadly Shell of the War.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—Secretary Lansing has received from Ambassador Sharp at Paris a report on a visit he made to the church in Paris which was wrecked by a shell fired from a German long-range gun on Good Friday. Ambassador Sharp tells of the great destruction caused by the shell. He says a hundred mangled bodies lying in the morgues of Paris measure the toll of human life exacted.

This statement was given out by the State Department today:

"The Secretary of State has received from Ambassador Sharp in Paris a graphic report of his visit to the scene of the horrible tragedy which occurred on the afternoon of Good Friday in a church by the explosion of a German shell projected from far back of the enemy lines a distance of more than seventy miles. The appalling destruction wrought by this shell is, as the Ambassador remarked, probably not equaled by any single discharge of any hostile gun in the cruelty and horrors of its results.

"In no other one spot in Paris, even where poverty had gathered on that holy day to worship, could destruction of life have been so great. Nearly a hundred mangled corpses lying in the morgues, with almost as many seriously wounded, attested to the measure of the toll exacted. Far up to the high, vaulted arches, between the flying buttresses well to the front of the church, is a great gap in the wall, from which fell upon the heads of the devoted worshippers many tons of solid masonry. It was this that caused such a great loss of life.

"As the Ambassador entered the church, where but a few hours before had been gathered the worshippers, he could easily picture the scene that followed the explosion. The amount of debris, remaining just as it fell on the floor, covered the entire space between the lofty columns supporting the arches at each side. Only a miracle could have saved from death or serious injury those who escaped the falling mass. The scene was that of some horrible shambles, and it was not until well into the night that all the bodies were recovered. Upon the floor in many places could still be seen the blood of the victims, among whom were many prominent and well-to-do people.

"The Ambassador called to express his sympathy to his Swiss colleague, whose lifelong friend, the Secretary of the Swiss Legation, was killed while leaving the church. The Minister was deeply affected as he spoke of the great loss to him through the Secretary's death. The Secretary was well known in Washington, where he served with the Swiss Legation from 1902 to 1904, and was very highly esteemed by all who knew him.

"In conclusion, Mr. Sharp says that the exceptional circumstances under which this tragedy occurred, both as to the sacred character of the day and the place, have greatly aroused the indignation of the people of Paris toward an enemy who seeks to destroy human life without regard to the immunities prescribed by the laws of civilization and humanity, and, instead of terrorizing the people, the shells of the great cannons, as well as the bombs dropped from the German airplanes, only serve to strengthen the resolve of the French to resist, to the last man, if necessary, the invasion of such a foe."

BERNE, April 3.—The German Minister today visited the Foreign Office and expressed his Government's sympathy in the death of H. Strohelin, Counselor of the Swiss Legation in Paris, who was killed during the recent bombardment of the French capital by a German long-range gun when a shell hit a church in which he was at worship. The Minister said the event would be sincerely regretted throughout Germany.

GERMANS SUPPRESS HEAVY RAID LOSSES

Great Damage Done by Aviators in Rhenish Cities Cause Peace Demonstrations.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, April 3, (via London.)—Information reaching THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent from Germany reports that damage done in Rhenish cities by recent air raids is much more extensive than has been hitherto admitted. Places where bombs actually fell are described as "unrecognizable."

Of the bombs dropped at Coblenz in the last air raid eight did considerable damage. One fell upon a station, one fell amid a company of soldiers going to get food, and others practically destroyed half of the barracks where French prisoners were confined in 1870. In Cologne a branch factory of the Baden Aniline Works was partly destroyed and a number of people were killed and wounded. Great damage also was done at Mainz. It is also reported that much damage was done at Düsseldorf. After the raids the authorities made every effort to clear up the wreckage as rapidly as possible, and the town was made to resume normal life immediately.

Despite precautions taken to prevent the people from learning the colossal extent of the casualties the facts gradually are getting out. It is reported that peace demonstrations took place in Frankfurt before large Red Cross sheds where stretcher cases were being collected. It is now confidently asserted that Germans themselves will refuse to go through another war Winter. Men at the front fully expect a strong German peace as a result of the present offensive.

U-BOAT MASSACRES MEN IN OPEN BOATS

Shells Lifeboats Containing Crew of Torpedoed British Ship—Greek Steamer Also Sunk.

LONDON, April 3.—The steamer Conargo was torpedoed in the Irish Sea Sunday morning, according to The Evening News today. The vessel was a British steamer of 4,312 tons, and was owned by the Commonwealth of Australia.

At about the same time, the newspaper says, the Greek steamer Salaminia, of 3,112 tons, was sunk by gunfire.

About fifty men are reported missing from the two vessels.

The Conargo's crew of fifty men got away in the boats, the account says, but two of the boats were sunk by gunfire. The third boat, containing fifteen men, was picked up. It is feared the others are lost.

From the Salaminia fifteen members of the crew are missing.

DISABLED NEW SUBMARINE.

Leith Shipmaster Won Fight, Then Amputated Leg of Steward.

LONDON, March 21, (Associated Press.)—How a Leith shipmaster fought a new German submarine to a standstill was related to King George when the mariner was decorated recently at Buckingham Palace.

The British vessel exchanged shots at two miles with the submarine, which withdrew out of range after firing a torpedo. The smokeboxes on the steamer then caught fire, and the submarine commander then resumed the chase. He overhauled the steamer and a fierce fight followed. The submarine's aftergun was put out of action, but enemy shells rained over and around the steamer, and one of her passengers and a steward were wounded. After two hours' fighting the submarine ceased firing without submerging, presumably having been damaged severely by the Britisher's guns.

Putting on full speed, the British Captain soon left the German, who did not take up the chase, far astern. The Captain then went below and gave medical attention to the passenger and steward. He amputated the steward's leg.

BRITISH DESTROYER SUNK.

Loss Resulted from Collision—All on Board Were Saved.

LONDON, April 3.—A British torpedo boat destroyer was sunk April 1, as a result of a collision, according to an official statement issued by the Admiralty tonight. All on board were saved. The statement says:

"One of his Majesty's destroyers sank April 1 as the result of a collision. All hands were saved."

NOYON CATHEDRAL BURNING

Berlin Report Says It Was Set on Fire by French Shells.

AMSTERDAM, April 3.—The Cathedral at Noyon is afire, according to a semi-official statement from Berlin. The blaze is attributed by the Germans to the French bombardment.

The Cathedral at Noyon is one of the most beautiful French examples of the Transition style of architecture of the eleventh and twelfth centuries. A portico was added in the fourteenth century, and the chapels of the nave were built in the fourteenth and sixteenth centuries. Round and pointed arches are used throughout the building, and the two western towers, which are unfinished, are 200 feet high.

MISTRUST MEN OF ALSACE.

Germans Bar Lorrainians Also from the First Line.

PARIS, April 2.—Documents found on prisoners taken by the French show that the German commanders have no illusions as to the sentiments of men from Alsace and Lorraine.

Large numbers of these troops have now arrived in France with units from the Russian front, in which they have been incorporated, and the German Crown Prince has found it necessary to issue confidential orders to his subordinates not to put Alsatians or Lorrainians in the first line nor to employ them as clerks, as officers' servants or in other positions where they are likely to have access to information.

AMERICANS WIN WAR CROSS.

Four Members of Ambulance Service Honored by the French.

PARIS, April 3.—Corporal Elmer Narlund and Private Raymond Hunter of Section 645 of the United States Army Ambulance Service and Privates Perin H. Long and Ethelbert W. Love of Section 638 have won the French War Cross. Section 629 has been commended in the divisional orders.

Reports from the front say the American Ambulance Service has been doing excellent work in the big battle. There have been but few losses in the many sections engaged.

William Andre Cotter.

William Andre Cotter, a prominent member of the New Jersey Bar, died at the Presbyterian Hospital yesterday. Mr. Cotter lived in this city at 148 West 122d Street. Mr. Cotter was born in Canada in 1845, and came to this country when a boy and served in the civil war. After the war he went to Mexico as a correspondent for The New York World, and reported the fall of Maximilian. Later he became a member of the Kentucky Bar and served as a Magistrate in Louisville. For thirty years Mr. Cotter was a member of the firm of Voorhees & Cotter, lawyers, in Newark, N. J. He was formerly President of the Sagamore Club in this city.

Frank Wedekind Dead.

Frank Wedekind, German playwright and actor, who was at one time imprisoned for ridiculing the Kaiser, died in Munich on March 9, according to word received here. Wedekind was noted for his satirical sense of humor, which displayed itself so strongly in a lampoon which appeared in Simplicissimus, directed against the imperial family, that he was convicted of lèse-majesté and sent to prison for several months. In most of Wedekind's plays advanced ideas in regard to love and matrimony were expressed, and his characters were remarkable for a certain weirdness with which he surrounded them.

William R. Warren Found Dead.

William R. Warren, a prominent business man with offices at 115 Broadway, was found dead yesterday afternoon in the offices of the Warren-Burnham Company, 327 Fifth Avenue. Mr. Warren lived at the Hotel Devon, 70 West Fifty-fifth Street. He was born in 1861 and was educated at Harvard University. He was noted as an expert on cement, and was often called to lecture at Harvard on that subject. Mr. Warren was a member of the Century and Harvard Clubs of this city and the University Club of Boston. He is survived by two sons who are both in military service.

Dr. Irving Allison Watson.

Dr. Irving Allison Watson, Secretary of the New Hampshire Board of Health, died at his home in Concord, N. H., yesterday. Dr. Watson was born at Salisbury, N. H., in 1849, and was educated at the Newbury Seminary and Collegiate Institute. Later he studied medicine at the Dartmouth Medical College. Dr. Watson was several times a member of the New Hampshire House of Representatives. He was President of the International Conference of State and Provincial Boards of Health in 1903. Dr. Watson was the compiler of "Physicians and Surgeons of America." He was a member of the Société Française d'Hygiène of Paris and the Medico Legal Society of New York.

WOMEN'S HOSPITALS GET $111,598 IN DRIVE

Workers Moved to Tears by Relation of the Needs of Women in France.

The Drive of the American Women's Hospitals to raise $200,000 to send women physicians to France had brought in a grand total of $111,598 yesterday. The returns for the day were $22,300. Mrs. Cleveland H. Dodge made yesterday's largest contribution, $5,000, and a check for $2,500 was received through Mrs. Edward H. Cross from an anonymous donor. Mrs. Andrew Carnegie gave $1,000. It was announced that through the efforts of Gwathmey & Co. of 20 Exchange Place, $6,000 had been received from a small group of business men.

Dr. Elize Taylor Ransom, head of a maternity hospital in Boston, stirred the members of the forty-eight teams working in the drive to tears in her recital of the needs of the women of France at the daily luncheon at the Biltmore. Dr. Ransom will sail in a few days to do maternity work in France and will take with her more than 5,000 baby layettes which she has prepared with the aid of members of her family.

"I have just received official information from Versailles," said Dr. Ransom, "that in the last three months more than 3,000 French women prisoners have been released by the Germans and have made their way to Paris after undergoing unimaginable hardships. The majority of them have children of German fathers. There are literally no doctors in Paris to take care of these poor, suffering people, to say nothing of the tens of thousands of other women and children throughout the war-torn districts. All the doctors in France under 75 years are at the front. We women doctors must get over there as soon as we can, and it is the overpowering obligation of every American woman to help us do so. The men are busy fighting and it is up to the women to save the children upon whom the world of tomorrow must depend. I should like to have the women between 16 and 60 drafted to do the woman's work in winning the war. There are many minor tasks now being performed by able-bodied women which might be done by minors or women from 60 to 80." Dr. Ransom made a contribution of $100 to the women's hospitals at the conclusion of her remarks.

Mrs. Frederick Hill, wife of a Major on General Pershing's staff, gave $500 for a hospital bed yesterday. Booths to receive contributions have been opened at the Washington Irving High School and in several hotels. The feature of these booths is a bowl of brilliant red poppies supporting a white cross with the words: "On Flanders field the poppies grow." Miss Louise Home, members of the Junior League, and nineteen girls from "Flo Flo" are to start a Wall Street drive on Friday, when they hope to sell $10,000 worth of poppies to brokers.

COL. T. ALLSTON BROWN.

Theatrical Historian and Veteran Manager Dies at 82.

T. Allston Brown, theatrical historian and retired manager, died at the home of his niece in Philadelphia on Tuesday. Colonel Brown, as he was known to his friends, was born at Newburyport, Mass., on Jan. 16, 1836, and at the time of his retirement in 1906 was probably the oldest theatrical manager in America. In the earlier part of his career Colonel Brown was the advertising agent for several circuses and was in 1860 manager of the famous Blondin, who crossed Niagara Gorge on a tightrope.

During his long connection with the stage Colonel Brown was editor of several dramatic publications. In 1858 he founded The Tatler, in Philadelphia, a weekly paper devoted to the theatre, and was dramatic editor of The New York Clipper from 1864 to 1870. From 1870 to the time of his retirement Colonel Brown was the manager of a dramatic agency in New York. At one time he was the manager of Dion Boucicault.

Colonel Brown's first book, which appeared in 1869, was entitled "History of the American Stage." His last book, "History of the New York Stage from 1732 to 1904," is said to be one of the most complete accounts of the development of the stage in America that has been written.

Colonel Brown was a member of Amity Lodge, F. and A. M., and Mecca Temple. He was one of the oldest Elks.

ALEXANDER AND ROSENBAUM HAVE NARROW ESCAPE IN TENNIS TOURNEY

DOUBLES CHAMPIONS HAVE A CLOSE CALL

Alexander and Rosenbaum Hard Pressed in National Indoor Tennis Tournament.

INJURY HANDICAPS FORMER

Plays in Last Set with Sprained Ankle—Gallon and Gatcomb Beaten at 8-6, 3-6, 6-3.

Several times during the course of the national tennis championships have the leading men been hard pressed to maintain their places of supremacy. It was no different yesterday except that the element of surprise made itself manifest in the doubles event rather than in the singles where heretofore it has been most at home. The near victims in yesterday's play were the national champions themselves, Frederick B. Alexander and Dr. William Rosenbaum, and it was the team of W. J. Gallon and R. B. Gatcomb that nearly brought their downfall. Alexander and Rosenbaum managed to nose out a victory after three sets with the score 8—6, 3—6, 6—3.

It was a stirring bit of play that finally clinched the honors for the title holders, and it was to the work of Alexander that the victory can mostly be traced. At the start of the third set Alexander and Rosenbaum set forth to conquer, and to do it quickly. They played some sparkling tennis both in the deep court and at the net, and romped off to a lead of 3—0. It was just at this point that Alexander in endeavoring to make a return wrenched his ankle, and with the accident it appeared as if the chances of the team had gone glimmering into oblivion. Alexander limped as he endeavored to cover court, and his speed was slowed up to such an extent that it appeared as if the rival pair would be able to take full advantage of his misfortune and play safely through his side of the court.

Rosenbaum at this point was none too steady, and the team was wabbling close to the brink of defeat. Gallon and Gatcomb, a pair of tennis players of undeniable proficiency, carried the attack against their rivals with spirit, and point after point fell to them until they had brought the score to 5 all.

Then there was to be a quick change. Alexander, although it was plain to be seen that he was suffering agony from his injured ankle, steadied, and, husbanding his reserve strength in critical moments, played through some brilliant shots for aces. Rosenbaum, too, was doing better. He brought off an occasional crashing drive that hummed away from the rival pair or caught them out of position for a return, and in all backed up Alexander well. By dint of real tennis strategy Gatcomb and Gallon, already knocking on the door of victory, were denied admittance. The title holders succeeded in running off two games to their credit. Alexandsr's fascinating and effective low volley being largely a factor. In the ninth game Alexander was called upon to serve, and as it was his left ankle that had been injured, the effort was one that caused him much pain. He could not get speed into his stroking of the ball, but he placed the service cleverly so that the loss in severity was somewhat made up for by accuracy. Alexander followed his service in a short distance and Rosenbaum covered close to the net. Both made some pretty shots in this game and Gatcomb and Gallon were forced to defeat.

In the singles tournament three players advanced to the semi-final round, so that all four semi-finalists have not been determined. William T. Tilden having advanced to the semi-final round in Tuesday's play. The three who made their way forward yesterday were Frederick B. Alexander, S. Howard Voshell, the national indoor champion, and King Smith, many times holder of the Seventh Regiment championship. The national indoor doubles team had to be split by rivalry before Alexander could secure his advance position. His opponent was his doubles partner Rosenbaum, and the latter gave the famous internationalist a hard struggle in the first set, which he succeeded in winning at 8—6. This, however, was as far as Rosenbaum's effectiveness carried, for Alexander cut loose with some of the prettiest tennis of the day and fairly romped through the next two sets, Rosenbaum getting only one game in. The scores were 6—0, 6—1. Alexander was aided somewhat in the victory by Rosenbaum's tendency to unsteadiness as the match wore toward its close.

Voshell met with stern opposition from H. H. Manchester before he could accept congratulations. The first set was somewhat deceiving to Voshell, who won at 6—3. In the next set Manchester came forth with an array of strokes that made him a formidable contestant right up to the close. For a time it appeared as if he would secure the set for his own. He led Voshell for a while, but after the set had gone to deuce, Voshell's defense was strengthened at a critical moment. Manchester on his own service in the eleventh game was leading at 40—0 when the title holder steadied his play, and not only brought the game to deuce, but won it. In the next game Voshell was in command from the start, his severe service working to his advantage.

King Smith's victory in the fourth round was earned at the expense of H. L. Bowman, who relinquished his chances in the tournament under the persuasive score of 6—4, 6—4.

The summaries:

SINGLES.—Fourth Round—Frederick B. Alexander defeated Dr. William Rosenbaum, 6—8, 6—0, 6—1; S. Howard Voshell defeated H. H. Manchester, 6—3, 7—5; King Smith defeated H. L. Bowmen, 6—4, 6—4.

DOUBLES.—First Round—C. A. Anderson and C. Chambers won by default from G. G. Green and partner; S. R. MacAllister and H. L. Bowman won by default from S. Kaahlo and Herold Taylor.

Second Round—F. B. Alexander and Dr. Rosenbaum defeated W. J. Gallon and R. B. Gatcomb, 8—6, 3—6, 6—3.

KLINGER MEETS DEFEAT.

Loses to Lewis in Poggenburg Memorial Billiard Tournsy.

Jacob Klinger lost his first game in the final round robin event of the Poggenburg Memorial handicap tournament at the Brooklyn Billiard Academy last night, being defeated by Claude R. Lewis with the score 115 to 230. Klinger was called upon to play 250 points and seemed in a fair way to accomplish this object, when Lewis ran out his string with an unfinished cluster of 25. During nearly three-quarters of the match Klinger was averaging above 10. Later his play fell off a bit, but he finished with an average of slightly better than 7.

In the afternoon game the victor was George Spear. He defeated Louis A. Servatius by a score of 115 to 97. In the middle of the game Servatius was ahead for a short time, but was forced to sacrifice the lead when Spear put together several good-sized clusters.

The scores:

SCOFIELD WINS HANDILY.

Defeats Phillips by 8 and 6 in Title Golf Play at Pinehurst.

Special to The New York Times.

PINEHURST, N. C., April 3.—All of the nine sixteens in the North and South amateur championship tournament disposed of their first match round at Pinehurst today. D. L. Scofield of Stamford, the medalist, won his match against H. G. Phillips of Pinehurst by the safe margin of 8 and 6. Irving S. Robeson of Rochester came through in the same bracket by defeating Guy A. Miller of Detroit, 4 and 3.

The summary in the championship sixteen follows:

D. L. Scofield, Wee Burn, beat H. G. Phillips, Moore County, 8 and 6; R. O. Tunstall, Norfolk, beat H. C. Fownes, Oakmont, 3 and 1; Walter M. Crooke, Mt. Everett, beat F. S. MacLaughlin, Ekwanok, 3 and 2; Irving S. Robeson, Oakhill, beat Guy A. Miller, Detroit, 4 and 3; Leslie Deane Pierce, Ekwanok, beat Franklin H. Gates, Moore County, 4 and 3; Arthur Yates, Oakhill, beat Allen Lard, Chevy Chase, 8 and 6; Donald Parson, Youngstown, beat H. M. Markwell, Lake Shore, 2 and 1; R. A. Stranahen, Inverness, beat Dr. C. H. Gardner, Rhode Island, 4 and 3.

CHARLEY MITCHELL IS DEAD.

Former English Middleweight Boxing Champion Passes Away.

Yesterday's cable dispatches carried the news that Charley Mitchell, the former English middleweight boxing champion and the greatest boxer England ever produced, had died at his home at Brighton. This adds another to the large list of noted professional boxers who have died within a year, and it is a peculiar coincidence that the famous English boxer did not long survive the man against whom he made his greatest fight, the late John L. Sullivan.

Mitchell gained worldwide glory for himself in this battle. It was held at Chantilly, France, March 10, 1888, and at the end of thirty-nine rounds the seconds of both fighters agreed to call the affair a draw. The game little Englishman surprised those who were permitted to witness the fight, and particularly Sullivan and the latter's backers, with his unexpected display of dogged courage in the face of Sullivan's bull-like rushes, and his ability of stand off the American champion. Mitchell was smaller in every physical respect than Sullivan, but despite this he managed to hold off Sullivan for a period of thirty-nine rounds. Both boxers subsequently had difficulties with the authorities of France because of the battle.

Later, on Jan. 25, 1894, James J. Corbett knocked out Mitchell in a championship fight in three rounds. This contest was held at Jacksonville, Fla., and was for a purse of $20,000 and a stake of $10,000.

Mitchell and Sullivan were supposed to have been bitter enemies as a result of the rivalry between them for heavyweight championship laurels. In addition to their Chantilly match, the men boxed twice in this country, and none of the meetings resulted decisively. Sullivan and his ring rival held a re-union in the Sullivan home at Roxbury, Mass., April 9, 1904, and patched up their differences. In 1910 Mitchell paid a visit to this country and was introduced from the ring at Madison Square Garden at a bout held there in August of that year. He was then landlord of the Mitchell House, Hove, Sussex, England.

COL. MILLER LEAVES TOWN.

Willard's Partner Goes Without Having Decided on Scene of Bout.

Colonel J. C. Miller, the Bliss (Okla.) oil producer, who is co-partner with Jess Willard in the promotion of the latter's championship match with Fred Fulton, scheduled for July 4, left this city unexpectedly yesterday, and without giving any inkling of the location where the bout would be held. The Oklahoman came to this city ostensibly for the purpose of deciding on a fighting ground for the heavyweight championship contest, but, although several offers were reported received by him, Colonel Miller failed to select a State or city where the bout could be held.

The Westerner did intimate, however, that the contest would finally be awarded to Colorado, although he later qualified this assertion by saying that the East was not altogether out of the running yet. Colonel Miller left for Chicago, where he will probably consult with Willard on details of the proposed bout. From Chicago the Oklahoman expects to go to his ranch in Bliss, where his business interests require his attention.

TENDLER WINS ON POINTS.

Has Slight Margin of Advantage Over Cline in Six-Round Bout.

PHILADELPHIA, April 3.—Lew Tendler, the Philadelphia lightweight, had slightly the better of the six-round bout with Irish Patsy Cline of New York here tonight. The fight was fast and hard from start to finish. Tendler showed superior boxing ability and stopped many of Cline's savage rushes and landed heavily time and time again.

Tendler started out like a whirlwind, but Cline managed to hold him safely. Tendler had the better of the first and third rounds, while Cline shaded the Philadelphian in the fourth. The other rounds were about even.

AMATEUR BOXERS IN RING.

Four Champions Appear in Exhibitions at Friars' Club.

Four amateur boxing champions competed in the ring at the Friars' Club last night in the first set of boxing exhibitions held in thetheatrical organization's club house. Two of the titleholders were successful and the other two were eliminated in the preliminary contests. Sam Selger, Rutgers Place Gymnasium, New York State champion at 108 pounds, was the most consistent performer, winning two bouts.

His first he won by a knockout and in his second trial Selger received the judges' award over Dave Kamins, Clark House A. A., metropolitan district champion. James Sullivan, Union Settlement A. C., metropolitan district 145-pound champion, was another successful boxer, scoring in two rounds over C. Meysrowitz of Rochbank in their bout in the 145-pound class. Referes Jimmie Britt halted this contest when it was apparent Sullivan outclassed his rival.

In the 115-pound class a surprise came when James Tomasulo, national champion, now a member of Uncle Sam's naval forces, was defeated in three rounds by Jack Cronin, Trinity Club. Cronin received the judges' award.

The final bouts will be held tomorrow night.

MOON RESIGNS HIS POST.

Withdraws from the Presidency of the N. A. A. B. P.

George T. Moon, Jr., has resigned as President of the National Association of Amateur Billiard Players. The resignation was presented at a special meeting of the Executive Committee of the association held yesterday and was accepted. Mr. Moon said last night that his resignation was made necessary because of many other duties which have recently come upon him.

He is now taking up studies in military affairs and found that billiards demanded too much of his time. While resigning as an officer of the N. A. A. B. P. and from the Executive Committee as well, Moon will retain his membership in the organization. He expressly stated that his resignation was in no wise connected with the formation of a rival billiard organization.

GIANTS GIVE BATS A SIESTA, YET WIN

Four Hits by McGraw's Men Prove Sufficient to Subdue San Antonio Again.

Special to The New York Times.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, April 3.—The Giants and San Antonio tried a little twilight baseball here today, as they did not start their contest until 5 o'clock. By that time the Giants were pretty well tired out, after morning and afternoon practice in midsummer heat, but they won their game by a score of 3 to 1.

After their heavy cannonading at the military camps the Giants subsided to a four-hit assault today and were outbatted by San Antonio for the second time in the series. Two local southpaws, Townsend and Mullins, gave the New York men quite a bit of trouble.

Demaree and George Smith pitched for the Polo Grounds men, and sharp support enabled both pitchers to weather storms. Demaree was constantly in trouble, and inning after inning the third San Antonio batter was retired with a runner on third base.

The Giants scored their first run in the first inning. Lebeau had trouble in finding Kauff's fly in the sun, and then muffed it. Burns drove against the left field fence for a double, scoring Kauff, but George was out trying to make third on the hit.

San Antonio got this run back in its half. Lebeau walked, and Demaree caught him asleep at first. He made second when Holke threw wildly to Fletcher, and scored on a double by Sicking.

The Giants won in the fifth, when they scored twice. Doyle was safe on Pierse's fumble, and Fletcher singled to left. Both men scored on Holke's long double to right.

The Giants left here shortly after the game for Dallas, Texas, where they will open their ten-game series with the Cleveland Americans tomorrow.

Taberski Defeats Two at Once.

Frank Taberski, world's professional pocket billiard champion, accomplished the unusual feat of defeating two opponents in one game yesterday at John Doyle's Academy. The combined efforts of M. Bache and A. Freeman gave them only 52 points while Taberski was gathering 100. The champion will play a game of the same sort this afternoon against M. Winchell and C. Woods. Tonight he will play two of the women contestants, the Misses Florence and Maud Flower. Taberski will play twenty-five or no count against the women.

HOLY CROSS BEATS NAVY.

Middies Play Well in Their First Game, but Lose by 3 to 1.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., April 3.—The Navy was defeated in its opening baseball game this afternoon by Holy Cross College of Worcester, Mass., by a score of 3 to 1. The game was about as clean and snappily played as one might wish to see on a college diamond at any time.

Neither team was charged with more than one error in the field, although Keating, the visiting backstop, had one passed ball. This, by the way, offered the middies a splendid opportunity to tie the score in the ninth, when they had runners on third and second, but the necessary hit was not forthcoming.

The score by innings:

DODGERS GAIN DECISION.

Win a 2 to 1 Victory Over Red Sox in Exhibition Game.

Special to The New York Times.

WACO, Texas, April 3.—Two newcomers to the Dodgers, one of them only a recruit, rescued the team today, and put them back in the winning column after four straight defeats in the exhibition series. Burleigh Grimes, former Pirate pitcher, and Raymond Schmandt, who has been acting as an understudy to Jake Daubert, were the authors of a 2 to 1 victory over the Red Sox.

Grimes gave by far the best exhibition of pitching that has been seen during the series and played through the game. Manager Hoblitzell had planned to let Dan Griner work part of the contest, but Grimes was having such success that he decided to let him remain in the box.

The Red Sox made only three hits off Grimes, all of them doubles, and drew one pass. Until the ninth, when they scored their only run, not a man had reached third base. Grimes was master of the situation all the way. In the ninth a fumble let in the run.

FORDHAM NINE GOES SOUTH.

Will Play St. Joseph's College at Baltimore This Afternoon.

The Fordham baseball team left yesterday afternoon for Baltimore to play St. Joseph's college this afternoon in the opening game of the Southern trip. On Saturday the Maroon players will face the Navy at Annapolis. Friday is an open date.

Halloran is slated to twirl in today's game, while McQuade will be on the mound at Annapolis. Billy Lush, baseball coach at Fordham in 1915 and 1916, is now directing the Navy team, so this game is bound to be sharply waged.

The players taken on the trip are McQuade, Halloran, and Martin, pitchers; Lefevre and Scanlan, catchers; Lucey, Haulgni, Galligan, and Dwyer, infielders; Captain Shankey, Keough, Colletti, and Abbott, outfielders.

BRICKLEY DONS NAVY BLUE.

Harvard's Famous Drop Kicker Enrolled in Reserve.

BOSTON, April 3.—Charles E. Brickley, Harvard's famous drop kicker, was enrolled in the Naval Reserve today. Brickley had tried to get into active service for some time. Last July he was a Sergeant in the Harvard Reserve Officers' Training Corps and subsequently it was announced that he was to be assigned to a position on the staff of the Department of the Northeast. As the opportunity for active service was slow in coming, however, Brickley applied for naval enlistment.

Of the great football trio of Brickley's time at Harvard, Eddie Mahan is now a Top Sergeant in the marines and Tacks Hardwick is a Lieutenant in one of the first artillery detachments to land in France.

BRAVES' BLUNDERS MEAN YANKEE RUNS

Record Crowd of Augustans Sees Huggins's Clan Win Third in Row from Boston.

Special to The New York Times.

AUGUSTA, Ga., April 3.—Before the biggest crowd that ever witnessed a ball game in Augusta the Yankees defeated the Braves 13 to 9 here at Warren Park today. Besides suffering the disappointment of seeing the Braves defeated for the third straight time, Stallings left for Columbia tonight still without the services of Charley Herzog.

President Percy Haughton of the Boston Club and Herzog conferred at the Albion this morning, but failed to come to an agreement. Haughton, who is ill, remained here tonight, but will go to Columbia tomorrow if he is able. As Herzog was on the train with the ball players he and Haughton may come together for another conference in Columbia tomorrow.

New York hits and Boston errors came together so profusely in the first two innings that the Yankees piled up a six-run lead. Boston crawled up with two runs in the fourth and another in the fifth. Then the New York machine started again, and they got Calvin Crum, who had relieved Canavan at the end of the second, for a run in the sixth and pushed seven runs across the plater in the seventh. In their half of the inning the Braves fell upon McGraw and shelled him off the peak. Thormahlen was rushed to the rescue, but could not spike the rally until six runs had been scored.

The fielding feature of the game was a remarkable running catch by Meyer of Covington's lusty smash in deep centre in the fourth inning.

FAIRLY FINISHES IN FRONT.

Butwell Pilots Winner in Sixth Race at Bowie.

BOWIE, Md., April 3.—C. F. Brant's bay gelding Fairly, scored an impressive victory in the leading race of the third racing day here. Jimmy Butwell had the mount on the Brant entry and accounted for the sixth race after a well-judged ride. W. T. Ryan's Pharaoh, with Jockey Doyle up, opened up a commanding lead early in the race, but Butwell quickly guided his mount to the lead, and as the Ryan horse tired carried off first place in convincing fashion.

Plenty of good racing was furnished in the seven events, but the third day's meeting passed without any untoward experiences in the way of upsets.

The summaries:

FIRST RACE.—Selling; four furlongs; for two-year-olds.—Agnes Cook, 106, (Mergler,) $8.40, $4.10, and $3.90, won; Cain Spring, 106, (J. Red Blood—
The Driving Force of Life

You can make your pale, weak blood rich and red by combining natural methods of living with Gude's Pepto-Mangan, the red blood builder.

What gives the athlete his strength and skill? Red Blood.

What makes the glowing beauty and the society leader? Red Blood.

What makes rosy, bright-eyed children? Red Blood.

Rich, pure blood is the driving force of life. When you are truly red-blooded, you can move mountains. Without red blood, you are defeated before you start the race.

Now one of the most conspicuous facts about Nature is her health-restoring power. Ordinarily she requires your help, not in the form of medicine but in the form of exercise, fresh air, sleep and a well-balanced diet. However, men and women often find it impossible to keep up a diet so perfectly balanced that it provides all the elements necessary for the proper feeding of the body and brain. It is then that they feel the need of a blood-food—such as to supply the missing elements.

Study this picture so you will know how genuine Pepto-Mangan looks.

Gude's Pepto-Mangan

Perhaps you already are taking Gude's Pepto-Mangan—under your physician's orders. For thousands of doctors regularly use and prescribe Gude's Pepto-Mangan in cases where blood poverty is apparent.

Gude's Pepto-Mangan helps to build the body by building the blood. It aids in supplying the red blood cells with just the elements they need, and increases their power to carry nourishment—in the form of oxygen—from the lungs to all the body cells and tissues. Gude's Pepto-Mangan is a splendid general tonic and appetizer. It digests easily, and is exceedingly pleasant to taste either in its normal form or in milk, water, or sherry.

FRIENDLY WARNING: There are many imitations of Pepto-Mangan on the market, but you can be sure of getting the genuine if it bears the name "Gude" and is put up in the bottle and sealed package as pictured here. Ask for it by its full name—"Gude's Pepto-Mangan." For sale at all drug stores.

SWANN SAYS GANGS GET ALIBIS TO ORDER

Compares Rothenberg's Defense in Cohen Murder Case to "Dopey Benny" Planning.

POLICE SEE NO GANG WORK

Believe Murder Resulted from a Quarrel and Had No Bearing on Gambling.

District Attorney Swann said yesterday that the alibi of Morris Rothenberg, the cabaret singer, held for the murder of Harry Cohen, known as "Harry the Yot," who was killed two hours after he had promised to give sensational testimony against gamblers, had been shattered by several witnesses yesterday.

District Attorney Swann further asserted that some of the testimony they had obtained yesterday indicated that several persons had collaborated in building up the original alibi on the day before the murder was committed.

"That is the rule in gang murders, nowadays," said Judge Swann. "They hold a sort of dress rehearsal for the murder. Every man is assigned his lines and he repeats them until he appears to be a perfect alibi witness. We have even had one case in which the 'Dopey' Benny gang drilled a whole stock company for several days in order that all the alibi witnesses should be letter-perfect, and then even went to a lawyer to get his legal opinion on the sufficiency of their preparations. Something of this kind appears to have taken place in this case."

Assistant District Attorney James E. Smith said that the detectives under Police Captain McKenna had found a witness who said that a few hours after the murder Rothenberg had discussed his alibi and said that he was in a position to defy the police. This was before Rothenberg had been accused.

Inspector J. J. Cray in charge of detectives at Police Headquarters, after receiving a long verbal report from Captain McKenna, said yesterday that the murder came as the end of a private quarrel between Cohen and another man, who had been a companion in crime with him. He said that there was no evidence to indicate that Cohen had been killed by a hired gunman in order to prevent the District Attorney from getting testimony against gamblers. District Attorney Swan admitted yesterday that up to date no connection had been shown between Rothenberg, the accused man, and the ring of gamblers who are supposed to have wanted Cohen's life.

Grace Leslie, who was sent to jail after her quarters in Riverside Drive had been raided, and Yvonne Facheteau, who spent a good deal of time with Rothenberg on the night before the murder, were both questioned at the District Attorney's office, but it was stated that they threw no light on the crime.

Rothenberg's alibi was aided yesterday by Anthony Petalis, a waiter in a cafe in Seventh Avenue near Forty-eighth Street, who said that Rothenberg had been in the cafe at 6:40, only a few minutes before Cohen was shot at 7 West Ninety-second Street. Louis Pridiger, counsel for Rothenberg, said he was going to apply today for a writ of habeas corpus in behalf of Rothenberg.

M'ADOO ASKS STATES TO TAX ROADS LIGHTLY

Nation Must Bear Any Unnecessary Levies, He Points Out in Letter to Governors.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—State Governors were asked by Director General McAdoo today "to see that the tax burden on the railroads be made as light as is consistent with the necessities of your State and its subdivisions." In a letter to the Governors Mr. McAdoo also made a plea for economy in State and local public expenditures requiring new capital.

"Heretofore," wrote the Director General, "railroad taxes have been paid entirely by the private owners of the railroads, but now these taxes will be paid by the Government. * * * Manifestly in such circumstances the imposition of unnecessary State and local taxation on the railroads will be a distinct impediment to the carrying on of the war and an added burden upon the Government."

Referring to the conservation of capital, Mr. McAdoo said:

"Because of the war conditions it has become apparent that every unnecessary absorption of money, material, and labor should be avoided. * * * This applies to governmental as well as private activities, and I earnestly hope that the Government will have the full co-operation of your State and of all its subdivisions in avoiding all public expenditures which are not absolutely necessary."

The railroad bill provides that Government operation of the railways shall not affect existing laws or powers of the States in relation to taxation.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., April 3.—Governor Whitman said tonight that he had received Secretary McAdoo's letter requesting that the State forbear to impose heavy taxes on the railroads this year. The Governor declared he was in full accord with the effort to render things as easy for the roads under the Government ownership but that he could see no reason for interference with the existing system of taxation in New York State. It was already fair and equitable to all, he asserted.

WOULD STOP WARDEN'S PAY.

Rikers Island Appointment Attacked in Court Proceedings.

An application for a temporary injunction to restrain the city from paying the salary of Harry Honek, new Warden of the Municipal Farm, Rikers Island, was made yesterday in the Bronx County Supreme Court by Joseph J. O'Reilly, Secretary of the Civil Service Forum and publisher of a civil service journal, through his counsel, Florence J. Sullivan. The defendants named in the action are Burdette G. Lewis, former Commissioner of Corrections; his successor, James A. Hamilton; the City Controller, and the City Chamberlain.

The complaint alleges that when the Wardenship of the farm became vacant in December Commissioner Lewis sent for Julius Bremel, a Deputy Warden in the Tombs, who headed the civil service list and was an applicant for the appointment, and told him that unless he signed a waiver of his claim upon the Rikers Island job the fact that he was an applicant for another job might cause him to lose his place in the Tombs. It is alleged further that Harry Honek, the Warden of the Workhouse on the Island, was advanced to be Warden, although his name was not on the civil service list.

Warden Honek last night denied that Commissioner Lewis had asked Bremel to sign a waiver. The defendants have twenty days to file an answer.

To Form "Prayer Battalions."

The Rev. Eva Ryerson Ludgate, Executive Secretary of the National Women's Prayer Battalion, a branch of the William A. Sunday Evangelistic Association, told the members yesterday at a luncheon at the Martha Washington Hotel of her plans to organize battalions in all States. She quoted the remark of Lord Roberts that "this war will never have been won until England gets down on her knees before God." She said she favored stopping the work of the Red Cross for ten minutes a day to pray for the welfare and success of the soldiers in the field.

SEEK LAW TO SPEED NEW SUBWAY WORK

Public Service Board Sends Bill to Albany to Meet Unusual War Conditions.

WOULD MODIFY CONTRACTS

Commission Asks Power with Estimate Board to Deal with Each Situation on Its Merits.

A bill enabling the Public Service Commission and the Board of Estimate to make arrangements with the contractors on the new subways so that the completion of the work may be assured, was sent to Albany yesterday. The commission has sought by a conference and by letters to procure the aid of the Mayor and the Board of Estimate in the matter, but so far both have remained dumb. Under the provisions of the bill the power to veto it is lodged with the Mayor, and the commission expressed the hope yesterday that the measure would receive his approval. Otherwise the work on the subways, it was said, would be postponed for an indefinite period. It was felt that haste was necessary because the Legislature will adjourn on April 13.

The bill explains its own purpose in this way:

It is for the purpose of enabling the completion of the construction of rapid transit railroad works and utilities in a time of war and meeting emergency conditions as to wages, the cost and supply of labor and materials and other factors arising out of the existence of a state of war and affecting the performance of rapid transit railroad contracts and for the purpose of securing to the city * * * such control over such contracts that the work thereunder may be correlated and carried on in such order, time, and manner or suspended or abandoned as the emergency conditions and the public requirements arising therefrom may in the judgment of the commission make advisable.

The contractors have contended that the increasing cost of labor and materials, and delays in delivery of the materials have brought them to the verge of bankruptcy. They say they have already suffered heavy losses, that their credit is exhausted, and that it is impossible for them to meet the demands of labor for higher pay. A bill prepared by the contractors is now pending in Albany, which permits them to make it mandatory on the public authorities to modify their contracts. This bill the commission is opposing on the ground that the only legislation necessary is that giving the commission broad discretion to deal with the emergency.

Under the commission's bill that body will have the right, with the approval of the Board of Estimate, to stop or suspend work; or to permit the contractor to complete it under a modification of his contract which will allow payment for the actual and necessary costs, or to relieve him entirely of the contract and turn it over to some other contractor, or the work may be finished by labor employed by the commission. If the present contractor completes the work it must be done under an agreement that he will surrender all claims in the future for profits. Full power is lodged with the commission to examine the books of the contractors to ascertain the precise cost.

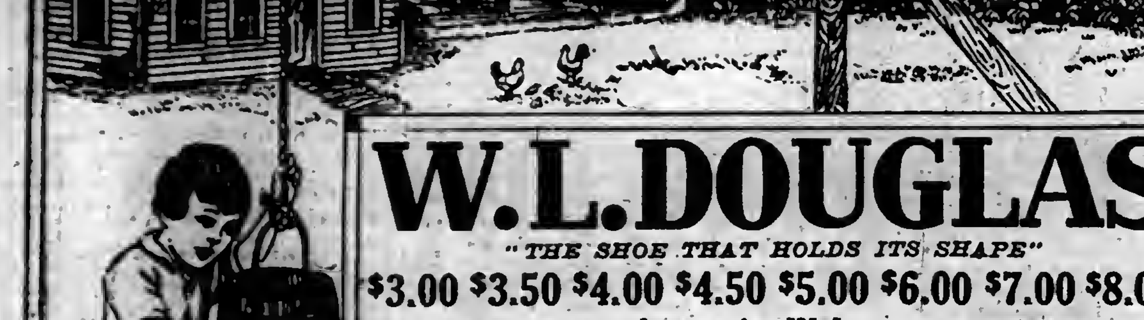
A statement made by the commission reads:

"Although there has been some criticism of the recommendation of the commission that it was attempting to aid the contractors, the commission has repeatedly pointed out that it was not interested primarily merely in legislation which would relieve the contractors, but that it felt that the commission and the Board of Estimate should be given sufficiently broad power to deal with each situation on its merits.

"This means that in some cases the commission might give notices of cancellation of a contract and not proceed with the work involved until the close of the war. In other cases, in order to hurry the completion of what we regarded as essential subway lines, it might make such a new contract as will insure prompt completion. By following such a plan it is felt that the available labor supply can be concentrated on the completion of the really important lines."

Boy Scout Charges Disposed Of.

Word was received at the headquarters of the Boy Scouts of America, 200 Fifth Avenue, yesterday, that the Department of Justice in Washington has disposed of the charges filed on March 24 by John D. Gluck of New York against certain officials of the Boy Scouts of America. The Department of Justice announces that the statements "have been found to contain nothing to warrant any action by the department and have been indefinitely laid aside."



Keeping the house supplied with water from a nearby well was one of the numerous tasks W. L. Douglas was called upon to perform while "bound out" pegging shoes, at the age of seven.

"THE SHOE THAT HOLDS ITS SHAPE"

$3.00 $3.50 $4.00 $4.50 $5.00 $6.00 $7.00 $8.00

You can save money by wearing W. L. Douglas shoes. The best known shoes in the world. The actual value is determined and W. L. Douglas name and the retail price stamped on the bottom before the shoes leave the factory, which guarantees their value and absolutely protects you against high prices and unreasonable profits.

The quality of W. L. Douglas product is guaranteed by more than 40 years experience in making fine shoes. The smart styles are the leaders in the fashion centres of America. They are made in a well-equipped factory at Brockton, Mass., by the highest paid, skilled shoemakers, under the direction and supervision of experienced men, all working with an honest determination to make the best shoes for the price that money can buy.

The retail prices are the same everywhere. They cost no more in San Francisco than they do in New York. They are always worth the price paid for them.

BOYS SHOES Best in the World $3.00 & $2.50

Sold by over 9000 shoe dealers and 105 W. L. Douglas stores. If not convenient to call at W. L. Douglas store, ask your local dealer for them. Take no other make. Write for booklet, showing how to order shoes by mail, postage free.

MAYOR FOR HUDSON TUNNEL

Confers with Gov. Edge and Later Announces His Approval.

Governor Walter E. Edge of New Jersey called on Mayor Hylan yesterday accompanied by two members of the New Jersey Bridge and Terminal Commission, to confer on a plan to tunnel under the North River from Jersey City to Manhattan, and to ask the co-operation of the Mayor in the matter.

Governor Edge and the Mayor had about a half hour's conference, and several hours later Grover A. Whalen, the Mayor's Secretary, when asked about the conference, said that Mayor Hylan was in entire sympathy with the proposal and that the matter of raising funds for the project would be put before the Board of Estimate.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Make Moderate Gains in Another Dull Session—Call Money Down.

With but a slight increase in the volume of sales, securities made a little headway on the Stock Exchange yesterday, and most issues closed higher. The market has settled down to await the outcome of the reorganization of the Kaiser's broken army. If he resumes the attack on a grand scale, traders will look for a sudden movement in prices following the determination of its results; on the other hand, if the fighting settles down into spasmodic attacks and counterattacks, as it did after the first great onslaught at Verdun, it is expected in some quarters that the market will eventually get under way again, with the war as a background for less important factors having a bearing on security values.

Count Czernin's speech, in which he dealt mostly with a situation that has passed into history, awoke none of the responses which even such a roundabout expression of Austria's desire for peace would have brought about in the various markets a few months ago. While the feeling is steadily growing in some financial quarters that Germany must soon acknowledge the futility of the struggle in which she is engaged and prepare to make peace upon terms dictated by the Allies, the remembrance of the harmful effects which resulted from serious attention paid to previous insincere peace overtures is too fresh to permit of a repetition of the mistake. The next really big movement in the stock market, bringing back the public which has been out of trading for many months, is not likely to come until the end of the war is definitely in sight; but in between there may be periods of moderate activity and rapidly changing prices as efforts are made to end the war through another decisive offensive or through half-hearted negotiations.

One of the most encouraging signs in the industrial situation is emphasized in the March statistics of pig iron production collected by The Iron Age. The recovery in output was much better last month than the trade had been led to expect, hampered as it has been by the after effects of the severe Winter and the shortage of coal, coke, and transportation. The March total was at the rate of 103,648 tons a day, as against 82,835 per day in the previous month. There was a net gain of twenty-four furnaces in operation last month. The market for steel is almost entirely dominated by Government orders, with the preponderance the more striking because of the cessation of building operations not required by war needs.

With the slackening in demand for speculative purposes call money has become plentiful again. Most loans negotiated yesterday were made at 3½ per cent., with some money being put out at 3 per cent.

CHEERFUL TONE IN LONDON.

Traders Are Awaiting Further Developments in War Theatre.

LONDON, April 3.—Money was plentiful today and discounts were quiet.

On the Stock Exchange pending further developments in the war theatre business was of small dimensions, but the tone was cheerfully confident. Gilt-edged securities and bonds of the Entente allied countries were firmly maintained. Spanish bonds and Argentine rails were good in spots, while there was a little boom in Cornish tin mine shares. Russian securities were flat.

Trading Dull on Paris Bourse.

PARIS, April 3.—Trading was dull on the Bourse today. Three per cent. rentes, 57 francs 24 centimes for cash. Exchange on London, 27 francs 20 centimes. Five per cent. loan, 88 francs 35 centimes.

PLAN SMELTING BONUSES.

Power Given Finance Committee of American Co. to Take Action.

Stockholders of the American Smelting and Refining Company and the American Smelters Securities Company at the joint annual meeting in Jersey City yesterday adopted an amendment to the by-laws in respect to the payment of bonuses to employes. The action gives the Finance Committee power to "fix for officers and employes such sums as bonuses or additional compensation as the committee may deem fit."

In response to queries, William Loeb, Jr., who presided, said that the American Smelting and Refining management expected to reopen the smelter in Chihuahua, Mexico, soon. It is purposed to construct a copper smelter there as a step in diversifying the operations.

W. E. Merriss, Secretary of the company, and Evander B. Schley were elected Directors of the American Smelting and Refining Company. F. W. Hills was elected a Director of the American Smelters Securities Company.

ATLANTIC REFINING PROFITS.

Net Earnings in 1917, $12,559,499, a Gain of $3,188,241.

The Atlantic Refining Company reports net earnings of $12,559,499 in 1917, an increase of $3,188,241 over the return in the preceding year. This was before Federal war taxes were set aside. The total of these taxes was $3,925,136, compared with about $200,000 in 1916. In terms of the company's stock, the war imposts were equal to more than $78 a share. The management took from income $371,946 to cover appreciation of inventory values, leaving a final net profit of $9,006,209, equal to $180 a share of the $5,000,000 stock, compared with $192.50 earned the year before.

J. W. Van Dyke, President, notes in the annual report that the consumption of the company's products in the conduct of the war since the United States entered the struggle has increased from about 28 per cent. to more than 51 per cent. An additional 16 per cent. is being consumed by railroads, shipyards, munition plants and other vital industries."

The Atlantic Refining Company is a former constituent of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey.

Banner Year for L. & N. Railroad.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 3.—At the annual meeting of the Louisville & Nashville Railroad Company, held here today, retiring Directors were re-elected. The annual report, submitted to the meeting and approved, showed gross operating revenues of $75,907,387 for the calendar year 1917, the largest in the history of the road. Net revenues for the year totaled $23,008,682, an increase over 1916 of $1,022,673.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

The Borrowed Stock Tax.

Brokers affected by the Attorney General's ruling on the taxation on borrowed stocks would like to see a test case started, but so far no one has been moved to take the initiative. The Stock Exchange Governors say the Exchange will make no effort to have the ruling reviewed by the courts and the Association of Partners in Stock Exchange Firms is likewise staying in the background. A factor in the situation which is considered with apprehension is the possibility that the tax on the borrowing and returning of stock will be made retroactive to Dec. 1, 1917, when the war tax law went into effect. Collector of Internal Revenue Edwards said at the Custom House yesterday that he was waiting for a ruling on this point, and hoped to get it from Washington in a short time.

New Enterprises in March.

According to a compilation made by The Journal of Commerce the capitalization of corporations organized in the principal States last month totaled $197,000,000, which compares with $420,000,000 for the same month a year ago. For the month of February the total was $182,000,000.

Economizing in Paper Currency.

Governor Harding of the Federal Reserve Board has sent out a letter to banks and bankers urging them to advise their customers to practice economy in respect to paper money, and not to insist on new bills. "The board is advised by the Division of Issue and Redemption," Mr. Harding says, "that redemption of Federal Reserve notes are running in very large amounts and that, in many instances, notes are sent in which are fit for circulation. The board understands, of course, that there is a strong preference and demand for new bills, but in times like the present, when it is necessary to economize in all directions, it seems to me that the spirit of economy should be extended also to the use of currency. It is suggested, therefore, that the Federal Reserve Banks ask their member banks to continue to pay out Federal Reserve notes as long as they are resonably fit for use, and to refrain from sending notes to Washington for reissue unless they are so worn or soiled as to be actually unfit for circulation. The capacity of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing is strained to the utmost, and the board feels that the banks and the public can render a public service by acting upon this suggestion.

Miami Copper Production.

Other factors than the rate of production presumably moved the Miami Copper Company Directors to reduce the quarterly dividend to $1 a share a few days ago. The mines turned out more metal in March, according to the figures yesterday, than in any month since March of last year. The total was 5,174,365 pounds, against 4,602,005 pounds in February, 4,700,483 in January, and 5,217,008 in March, 1916. Last July the mines were closed down because of the strike, and in August only 250,000 pounds were reported.

Short Sales Light, Stocks Rise.

Yesterday's moderate forward movement of stocks was believed in some trading quarters to have been the result, in part, of the almost complete absence of short selling. Although buying was light, with offerings scant, a little concerted bidding in certain issues, as National Lead, brought some scattered advances of substantial extent. National Lead rose more than 4 points. The company's earnings from the manufacture of cartridges, a business conducted by the United States Cartridge Company, were reported to be substantial, while the buying drew attention to the corporation's activity in other lines. The tone of the market as a whole was strong enough at the close to encourage owners of securities who had become weary of seeing prices display an advanced state of lethargy.

Shipping Share Uncertainties.

Shipping shares were strong yesterday, Atlantic, Gulf & West Indies in particular advancing 2 points on strong buying, and Marine preferred also showing firmness. As a matter of fact, actual shipping men, as distinguished from operators in shipping securities, see no reason for discouragement in the outlook for American mercantile marine companies, despite the fact that in existing circumstances it is almost impossible to obtain definite data regarding their earnings. Nobody expects them to enjoy again such a bonanza as was theirs in 1916, and in the case of the exclusively American companies the first half of 1917. But while their earnings under Government control will not be as high as before, they will make good return on the capital invested, and they will be as safely assured as any earnings can be.

A. G. W. I.'s Report.

The sharp turn-up in Atlantic, Gulf & West Indies stock also calls attention to the fact that this company's annual report is now due. It will not be made, however, until May, and possibly not in full then. The delay in the case of this company is even more annoying than that in the case of the International Mercantile Marine, because it is due, not to accidents of war, but to the Shipping Board's delay in getting into operation the requisitioned steamers on a permanent basis. Since Oct. 15, 1917, this company has been operating considerably more than one-half the big fleet of steamers owned by its subsidiary lines, as requisitioned boats, for Government account. For this it receives, of course, the Government time charter rates. But what fee it is to receive for its additional services as operating agent for the Shipping Board there is no more indication now than there was then. Moreover, it has had turned over to it, to operate in like circumstances, several ships not its own.

CHAMBER 150 YEARS OLD.

Governors Whitman and Edge Will Address Meeting Tomorrow.

Following the regular monthly meeting of the Chamber of Commerce of the State of New York today, a special meeting will be held at noon tomorrow at the Chamber of Commerce building, 55 Liberty Street, to commemorate the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the chamber. Addresses will be made by Governor Whitman of New York, Governor Edge of New Jersey, and Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, President of Columbia University. Eugenius H. Outerbridge, President of the chamber, will preside.

In honor of the occasion a souvenir history of the chamber entitled, "A Chronicle of 150 Years" will be distributed among the members. It tells the story of the founding of the chamber under a Royal Charter from George III. on April 5, 1768, at Fraunces's Tavern, Broad and Pearl Streets, and of its subsequent adventures during the trying days of the Revolution, the Confederation, and the early days of the United States. Much interesting information regarding the various causes with which the chamber has been identified during its long career is incorporated in the book.

Curb Broker Makes Assignment.

Joseph A. Brennan of 30 Broad Street, head of the firm of J. A. Brennan & Co., dealers in Curb securities and members of the New York Curb Market Association, yesterday made an assignment for the benefit of his creditors to Benjamin Bag of 2 Rector Street. Mr. Brennan said that he hoped to be in a position to resume business in a short time.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

Directors of the Western Maryland Railway Company accepted yesterday the resignation of Carl R. Gray, now with the National Railroad Administration, as President and Chairman of the board, and elected Lawrence Grear to succeed him in both positions.

Francis V. Reilly, assistant agent of the New York office of the Philippine National Bank, has left for the Philippine Islands, where he will be engaged for an indefinite period in Government work.

John H. Brennen, credit manager of the Atlantic National Bank, has been made assistant cashier in charge of the credit department, and George M. Bremier has been appointed manager of the foreign exchange department.

The Guaranty Trust Company and Kuhn, Loeb & Co. have each taken $2,500,000 of short-term notes of the State of Massachusetts, issued in anticipation of taxes.

The Clearing House Clerks' Association of New York Stock Exchange Firms will meet at 4:30 P. M. Friday at the New York Commerce Club, Lord's Court Building.

Walter H. Schmidt, formerly of The Wall Street Journal, has been admitted to partnership to Sutton & Co.

The Guaranty Trust Co. is prepared to deliver definitive Detroit United Railway five-year 7 per cent. collateral trust coupon gold notes in exchange for syndicate managers' interim receipts.

The Mechanics' and Metals' National Bank has changed its fiscal year to the calendar year, and declared a dividend of 4 per cent. for the two months' period ending March 31, payable April 15. This is the same as the regular quarterly dividend.

The Irving National Bank has published in pamphlet form an address by its foreign trade representative, G. A. O'Reilly, on "The Relation of Industrial Chemistry to Banking."

Directors of the Fifth Avenue Coach Company and the New York Transportation Company yesterday elected Richard W. Meade, hitherto President, Chairman of the Board of Directors, and elected John A. Ritchie President.

OUTPUT OF PIG IRON SHOWS BIG INCREASE

Total for March Reaches 3,213,091 Tons, an Advance of 893,692 Over February.

AID TO STEEL PRODUCTION

Net Gain of 24 Coke Furnaces for Last Month Reported, with 344 in Blast on April 1.

Encouraging news in respect to the country's steel production in future weeks appeared yesterday in reports from iron centres of a notable increase of pig iron output in March. Without adequate supplies of pig iron the steel works would be handicapped in completing the Government's war and shipbuilding plans, as they were handicapped during the bitter weather of January and February.

"The total was 3,213,091 tons," The Iron Age says, "or 103,648 tons a day, as against 2,319,399 tons in the 28 days of February, or 82,835 tons a day. As the coke supply has increased, more furnaces have wheeled into line, the net gain in the month being 24. The 344 coke iron furnaces in blast April 1 were producing at the rate of about 106,500 tons a day, as compared with the actual average production of coke iron in the year 1917 of 105,000 tons a day.

"Three new modern blast furnaces were put in operation last month, one by the Lackawanna Steel Company at Buffalo, one by the Steel Corporation at Gary, Ind., and one by the Iroquois Furnace Company at South Chicago. These additions emphasize the tendency to give the larger furnaces a full supply of coke, while that of smaller stacks is more or less irregular. Further indication of the same policy is the fact that the steel companies' rate of pig-iron output in March was 30 per cent. greater than in February, while that of merchant furnaces was only 12 per cent. greater."

Government wants figure so largely in the steel market, this trade periodical says, that ordinary consumption has become quite incidental. There is greater pressure from Washington for ship plates, which could have been produced fast enough to meet all needs had not the plate mills been compelled to close in January and February while fuel was sent to nonessential industries. New plate mills have been notified that at least 75 per cent. of their output must go to Government work.

The award of large Government contracts for railroad cars is expected within a few days. It is understood that 100,000 cars will be ordered, as has been predicted for several weeks, requiring 1,000,000 tons of plates and 250,000 tons of shapes. In the trade it is believed that fully 300,000 tons of rails will soon be ordered by the Government.

The Iron Trade Review says:

"Grimmer determination to fill promptly every demand upon it is the answer of the iron and steel industry to the supreme German onslaught on the battlefields of France. The Government continues to display a more vigorous attitude in following up deliveries of steel and in eliminating delays in the supplying of material which may obstruct essential lines of manufacture. The extension of Federal price regulation to include railroad supplies is expected in connection with the Government's large purchases of railroad equipment which are about to be made. Bids have been taken from the builders on 100,000 freight cars of standardized types and on about 3,000 locomotives. Buying of steel by the Government in behalf of the Allies is more in evidence."

C. A. STONE EXPLAINS PROFIT

American International Report Amplified.

At the annual meeting of the American International Corporation, held yesterday, retiring Directors were re-elected. President Charles A. Stone presented a statement explaining and, to some extent, amplifying the information contained in the company's annual report, recently issued. He called particular attention to the fact that in 1917 the corporation had increased the number of its subsidiaries by four—the Allied Machinery Company of France, the American International Steel Corporation, the American International Shipbuilding Corporation, and the Symington Forge Corporation. This, with the Allied Machinery Company of America, previously formed, gives the parent corporation five subsidiaries, all of the stock of which is in each case owned by the American International.

The American International Shipbuilding Corporation was formed to carry out the contract for building Hog Island Shipyard and the 180 ships to be built there for the United States Emergency Fleet Corporation. The Symington Forge Corporation was similarly formed to carry out a contract obtained from the War Department for shell forgings.

During the year, Mr. Stone said, the paid-in capital and consolidated surplus of the American International increased from $10,901,851 to $27,983,130, while consolidated net earnings advanced from $2,483,043 to $3,746,122. Dividends on paid-in capital were paid during the year at the rate of 6 per cent. More than 70 per cent. of the earnings from operations came from merchandising profits.

THE COTTON MARKET

Prices Make Net Gain of 25 to 36 Points—High Figures New Record Here.

There was another lively session on the local cotton market yesterday, with all contracts advancing under spirited bidding. Prices at the close were from 28 to 36 points higher than Tuesday's close, and again the high figures for the day made new records for the history of the Cotton Exchange, although this event has happened so often this season as to become almost a commonplace. The close, moreover, was strong, and apparently found numerous unsatisfied bidders around the ring.

The buying, as on the earlier days this week, came in part from trade representatives who were unable to wait any longer for favorable opportunities to fill their requirements and in part from recent sellers for a reaction, some of whom persisted during the morning in their efforts to break prices, but had to hunt cover when the market stood firm against all pressure. There has been a great deal of this "feeling for the top" in the market lately by bear speculators, but its only effect has been to delay advances temporarily and make them more sharp when they have come.

The export situation is beginning to tighten up again, but not sufficiently to affect the market unfavorably. Liverpool cables estimate the consumption of American cotton in England this year at 2,000,000 bales, about 1,500,000 bales below normal. Crop news continues good. These factors, however, appear to be overborne by the fundamental determination of cotton holders to get their price, and willingness of manufacturers to pay it, so long as they are able to pass the cost along to the consumer.

No exports were reported yesterday. Southern spot markets were unchanged to 25 points higher.

COMMODITIES MARKETS

WHEAT.

The outlook for the new Winter wheat crop continues most promising. Private reports issued yesterday placed the condition of the crop at from 79.3 per cent. to 82.4 per cent., and leading experts ventured the opinion that under favorable conditions the yield should be a large one, estimates ranging from 565,000,000 to 700,000,000 bushels. It is the prevailing belief that the Spring wheat acreage will be a large one, and if the season proves a favorable one this year's total Winter and Spring wheat yield should be close to record figures. Receipts at primary points continue small, and so far the efforts on the part of the Food Administration to induce farmers to sell more freely have not become apparent in the daily movement.

RYE.

The local rye market was again entirely nominal, owing to an absence of business.

CORN.

The corn market was firmer, closing with net gains of ¼c. Offers were small and prices reflected a feeling of anxiety over the movement, which is falling off steadily from the recent large figures. Weather conditions were less favorable for marketing grain, and advices from the West said that country offers were distinctly smaller and that cash prices were firmer, with gains of from 5c to 10c per bushel. The visible supply showed a decrease of 2,930,000 bushels for the last week, and the total is now 19,016,000 bushels, compared with 11,074,000 bushels a year ago. In the local cash market kiln-dried No. 3 yellow was quoted at $1.82½; No. 4 yellow, $1.75½; No. 3 white, $2.20½, cost and freight, New York. Argentina corn, $2.40, free on board cars.

OATS.

Exporters were again in the market for oats both here and in the West, and in consequence prices were firmer, closing with net gains of 1½c to 1⅝c. Shorts were good buyers of contracts, and it was apparent that the market had become oversold early in the week, and sentiment was inclined to lean to the bear side. Private reports on the outlook for the new crop were very favorable, as the season has proved much earlier than usual, and it is estimated that the acreage is one and one-half million in excess of last year. The visible supply increased 1,080,000 bushels for the week, and the total was 18,008,000 bushels, compared with 34,331,000 last year. The local cash market was steady; natural quoted at $1.04½ to $1.05½; clipped white, $1.05 to $1.08, all elevator.

PROVISIONS.

An advance of 15c to 25c in the price of live hogs and firmness in the grain markets brought about a covering movement in provisions, and prices were firm and higher. There were no evidences of improvement in the cash trade, but it was thought that the market had become oversold on the recent bearish statement of stocks. Receipts of hogs at Chicago were 20,000; estimated for Thursday, 33,000. Kansas City received 14,000 and Omaha 15,500 hogs.

COFFEE.

Current gossip on the Exchange that arrangements were being made to import coffee from Brazil at lower freight rates caused further liquidation in the coffee market yesterday, and after opening unchanged to a decline of 8 points, prices worked off until the close, which was net unchanged to 16 points lower. The local spot market was quiet and nominally unchanged, but the decline in futures might have made it possible to secure coffee at slightly below quotations. Range of prices:

SUGAR.

There has been no change in the number of mills now grinding cane in Cuba, 196 working under much improved weather conditions, and the crop is reported to be making rapid progress. There now seems to be some uncertainty as to whether the dozen or more Dutch vessels will be placed in the sugar carrying trade, owing to pressing needs of the Government to send troops abroad. In this event the expected heavy increase in receipts of raw supplies at ports here may be held up. Local refiners are awaiting supplies in order to increase their meltings and to keep their plants running at full capacity. Only a moderate distribution is taking place from day to day, with the demand much greater than the supply.

BUTTER AND EGG MARKET.

BUTTER.—Receipts yesterday, 6,858 packages. Dull trading, pretty liberal supplies, and a generally weaker feeling. Most grades of creamery declined about ½c, and the tone was unsettled at the close. Renovated weaker. Ladles and packing stock unchanged, but outside figures full high. Creamery, higher than extras, a pound, 43@43½c; extras, (92 score,) 42½@42½c; firsts, (88 to 91 score,) 41@42c; seconds, (83 to 87 score,) 38½@40½c; thirds, 36@37½c; creamery, unsalted, higher than extras, 44@44½c; extras, 43@43½c; firsts, 41½@42½c; seconds, 39@41c; creamery, held, as to quality, 35@41c; State dairy, tubs, finest, 42@42½c; good to prime, 39@41½c; common to fair, 35@38c; renovated, extras, 39@40c; firsts, 38@38½c; lower grades, 34@37c; imitation creamery, firsts, 36@37c; ladles, current make, firsts, 35@35½c; seconds, 33½@34c; lower grades, 31@33c; packing stock, current make, No. 1, 34c; No. 2, 33c; lower grades, 28@32c.

EGGS.—Receipts, 48,038 cases. Arrivals continue excessive, but trade is quiet. The Jewish holiday is affecting the demand to a considerable extent. Western advices continue relatively firm, but it is difficult to buy anything at primary points to be sold here at current values with any profit. A good deal of the better grade stock coming in is under limits and cannot be offered at any lower prices, many lots going direct to the storage warehouses for owners' account. On strictly fine qualities it would be difficult to obtain a supply at any lower price than recently quoted, and some trading has been done at sustained quotations. On the ordinary qualities, however, the market is decidedly weak, and prices are being shaded to effect sales. The general tone of the market is weak. Nearby white eggs are still in liberal accumulation, and the regular distributing trade is very dull. The only outlet for the quantity arriving seems to be the storage houses. Fresh gathered extras, a dozen, 38½c; storage packed, firsts, 37@38c; regular packed, extra firsts, 36½@37c; regular packed, firsts, 34½@35c; seconds, 33@31c; fresh gathered dirties, No. 1, 33@33½c; No. 2 and poorer, 31½@32½c; fresh gathered checks, ordinary to choice, dry, 30@32c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby Western, hennery whites, fine to fancy, 39½@40c; ordinary to prime, 38@39c; gathered whites, ordinary to prime, 38@39c; Western and Southern, gathered whites, 37@38½c; State, Pennsylvania, and near by, hennery browns, 38@39c; gathered brown and mixed colors, 36@37½c. Duck eggs, 50@65c. Geese eggs, a dozen, 60@75c.

LEHIGH VALLEY EARNS $7,151,858 IN 1917

Net Income Shows Drop of Only $675,912—Western New York & Pennsylvania Has Deficit.

The report of the Lehigh Valley Railroad Company for the calendar year 1917, just issued, like the report of practically every other important railroad in the United States, shows a combination of great increases in gross revenues and amount of freight moved, with even heavier increases in operating expenses, and a consequent falling off in net income. The loss was not so great for the Lehigh Valley as for some other railroads, as its non-operating income increased almost as much as its operating income decreased. Almost precisely similar conditions are revealed in the annual report of the Western New York & Pennsylvania Railway Company, also issued yesterday.

The Lehigh Valley reports total railway operating revenues of $53,358,445 for 1917, an increase of $4,498,536, but an increase of operating expenses of $7,061,188 to a total of $41,826,165. With minor changes in tax accruals, &c., the operating income fell off by $2,876,453 to a total of $9,403,324. However, non-operating income increased by $2,069,888, so that the net income of the company amounted to $7,151,858, a loss of only $675,912.

In the course of his report President Loomis mentioned that the road's revenue from troop movements during the year amounted to $119,690. As with all other roads, the Lehigh Valley suffered from the loss of men in the draft, by voluntary enlistment, and by the lure of higher wages in war industries. Increased wages and increased prices of materials accounted for most of the rises in expenses.

The income statement of the Western New York & Pennsylvania shows operating revenues of $14,710,397, an increase of $1,627,984, but, owing to an increase of $2,893,880 in operating expenses and heavier taxes, &c., operating income fell off $1,881,989, to a total of only $701,687. As a consequence, with deductions, the road showed a deficit for the year of $1,999,678.

BANKS' SCOPE ENLARGED.

House Passes Two Bills Amending National Banking Laws.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—Two bills passed unanimously today by the House give wider privileges to national banks. The first, introduced by Representative Wingo of Arkansas, allows any two national banks in a community to consolidate under the charter of either. Hitherto it has been necessary for one to liquidate. Under the new plan, any stockholders who dissent from the consolidation plan may have their stock appraised by a committee of arbitration, one member to be appointed by themselves, one by the bank, and the third by these two arbitrators in agreement. An appeal is allowed to the Comptroller of the Currency.

The second bill was asked for by Secretary McAdoo as an aid to the sale of Liberty bonds. It amends the law which prohibits the bank from loaning a sum in excess of 10 per cent. of its unimpaired capital and surplus to any one individual. Under the new legislation the 10 per cent. is not disturbed, but it is ordered that the following shall not be defined as loans: (1) Discount bills of exchange drawn in good faith against actually existing values; (2), discount of commercial or business paper actually owned by the person negotiating it; and (3), bonds of the United States. The latter provision, said Mr. McAdoo, would greatly facilitate the financing by banks of large purchases of Liberty bonds.

ASK RENT OF DENVER ROAD.

Stockholders Seek Advance of $2,500,000 from McAdoo.

It was learned yesterday that representatives of the principal stockholders of the Denver & Rio Grande Railroad Company, which was recently thrown into receivership as a consequence of a judgment obtained against it by the Equitable Trust Company, on behalf of bondholders of the old Western Pacific Railroad Company, for about $38,000,000, have applied to the Director General of Railroads for an advance of $2,500,000 on account of the rental due the railroad from the Government, with which to meet interest payments on bonds of the Denver & Rio Grande and the Rio Grande Western. The semi-annual interest payment on the $16,000,000 of Rio Grande Western bonds was due on Tuesday of this week, but could not be paid, because all the current receipts of the railroad are the property of the Federal Government.

The only reply, so far as could be learned yesterday, received to this plea for assistance from Mr. McAdoo was an assurance in general terms that the problem of the Denver & Rio Grande's troubles will receive early attention.

Southern Pacific Elects Directors.

ANCHORAGE, Ky., April 3.—At the annual meeting of the Southern Pacific Railway Company, held here today, retiring Directors were re-elected. A resolution was adopted by the stockholders empowering the Board of Directors to enter into agreement with the United States Government for government control and operation of the road.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE

The market yesterday on the Consolidated Stock Exchange closed strong, with practically every issue on the list at the high for the session. Trading in the final hour was in good volume. Following the opening there was a general recession, led by pronounced weakness in Canadian Pacific and Miami Copper and considerable profit taking. Subsequently, however, the list became firmer and continued to advance fractionally during the remainder of the session.

SEES NEW DIVISION OF WEALTH BY WAR

Collector Eisner Says Tax Returns Show Biggest Gain from Active Production.

FIXED INVESTMENTS SUFFER

Many Small Industrial Concerns Outstrip Old Established Firms and Corporations.

Mark Eisner, Collector of the Third, or upper Manhattan, Internal Revenue District, said yesterday that a casual inspection of the income and excess profits returns filed in his office would seem to indicate that the war was causing a redistribution of wealth.

"A casual inspection of the returns," Collector Eisner said, "will be of considerable interest to an economist studying the changes wrought by the war. Old established firms, corporations, and individuals, where wealth in the past has been concentrated, showed considerable falling off in income, and the losses sustained by many who have been charged by demagogues and anarchists with having urged the war, not for principle, but for their own pockets, furnish ample refutation of any such charge.

"Many small industrial concerns not engaged in war business showed largely increased profits, and on the surface it would seem that the war is causing a redistribution of wealth, which is now being accumulated, not upon the basis of fixed investments, but upon the basis of actual active production.

"In other words, those who in the past have lived on their incomes derived from investments are suffering, whereas those who are today actively producing goods are accumulating wealth in which the Government participates; which is as it should be, because the war will be won by production and not by money."

Revenue offices in this city yesterday settled down to sorting out and classifying the thousands of returns filed with the Collectors. Many of the returns will have to be corrected and sent back to taxpayers before they can be accepted by the Revenue Bureau.

With the active income tax drive closed, Collector William H. Edwards of the Second, or Wall Street, District announced yesterday that he would speak frequently in behalf of the third Liberty Loan.

WAR CHARITY UNDER FIRE.

Treasurer Tells District Attorney She Doesn't Know About Fund.

District Attorney Swann ordered an inquiry yesterday into the affairs of the American Convalescent Home Association, organized by women to raise $500,000 for the benefit of American soldiers in France. Following the refusal of the State Board of Charities to issue a charter to the association an informal complaint was made to the Prosecutor. Mrs. Dearborn J. Adams of 4,721 Sixth Avenue, Brooklyn, Secretary and Treasurer of the association, called on the District Attorney to be questioned about the organization, a work she had undertaken, she said, after her son had gone to France with the American Expeditionary Forces.

"The object of the association is to establish recreation lines for American soldiers behind the fighting lines in France," Mrs. Adams told Assistant District Attorney Kilroe. However, no steps had been taken to put the project in operation, and Mrs. Adams was unable to say what amount of money has thus far been received. Miss Helen Adams, her daughter, who founded the association and is its President, is at Palm Beach soliciting for the fund.

Public entertainments for the fund, according to the Prosecutor, took place at the Princess Theatre on Feb. 14, at the Château Buckingham, Flatbush; at Healy's and Shanley's restaurants, and a recital at the Plaza. Mrs. Adams didn't know what the returns were from the Princess Theatre, but the Plaza recital was a loss, she said, and not more than $10 in excess of expenses came from the Château Buckingham entertainment. Mr. Kilroe will question the Countess Josephine de Castelvecchio, Miss Amy Grant, and Miss Gertrude Atmore, who took part in the recitals and entertainments.

The quotation is for six months' paper.

Shoe Orders for Fall Placed.

Buying for Fall in the shoe market in this city is said to have become very active. It is reported by a number of manufacturers with offices here that there are quite a few retailers who have already placed very nearly their whole probable requirements for the coming Fall season. The difficulties experienced in getting their Easter supplies by those retailers who waited to order until it was too late, are thought to have been the chief reasons for the unusually early placing of Fall orders.

Shoe Polish Sales Increased.

The many campaigns for economy and the many exhortations from people high and low both in and out of the Government to "save and serve," while they may have hit some industries pretty hard, have had quite the reverse effect on manufacturers of shoe polish. With many people hauling their old shoes out to do service for yet a little while longer, the demand for shoe polishes of practically every description is said to have been enormous. And with this vastly increased demand have come also large orders from the military camps and cantonments for tan and ox blood polishes which manufacturers have been hard pressed to fill.

Less Speculation in Piece Goods.

There is said to have been much less speculation in piece goods during the last few months among local manufacturers of coats and suits for women than there has been for some time past. Aside from the fact that many piece goods wholesalers are selling to manufacturers only on the understanding that the goods will not be resold in the piece, the apparent scarcity of woolen fabrics has been a very decided deterrent to any undue reselling of materials which it might be very difficult to replace.

High-Priced Suits Better Value.

With prices at their present levels, it is thought by a great many buyers that high-priced coats and suits for women are much better value than those garments made to retail at popular prices. "Materials of even the poorest quality are high-priced these days," said one buyer, "and many suits made to retail for about $15 would not be good value at any price. On the other hand, most of the thirty and forty-dollar garments now on the market are exceedingly good value when the price of materials is considered. They will at least give good service, which is more than can be said for some of these cheap coats and suits."

Opium and Wood Alcohol Cheaper.

Drug and Chemical Markets will say today that the price changes in these commodities have been about evenly divided between advances and declines in the last week. Trading, it will say, has been conservative. The chief development in the market for narcotics has been a sharp decline in opium, ranging from $2 to $2.75 a pound. Wood alcohol has been reduced 44½ to 47½ cents a gallon. In both instances the drop in price was attributed to the action of the Government. Importers are complaining of the lack of docking facilities at this port, largely due to Government commandeering of piers.

"Harem" Hats Are Lagging.

There has not been a great deal of snap, as yet, to the demand for "harem" effects in women's hats, according to the bulletin of the Retail Millinery Association of America. "Up to this time," it says, "very few hats with harem veils have been seen, except those worn by ultra-fashionable women in exclusive hotels and restaurants, but they are now making their appearance among the middle classes. In some cases flower or feather turbans have been seen, with a full-shirred veil draped over them, reaching as far down as the mouth; others have a long streamer of maline wound around the neck. The most popular colors in the hats of this kind that have been seen so far are French, Delph, and Copenhagen blues. A few red hats with black veils have been seen."

Bathing Suits Have Done Well.

Reports from local wholesalers of bathing suits for women tell of some of the best advance business that has ever been done, in spite of the scarcity of certain types of suits and the increased prices that have to be asked for practically all of them. In the cloth suits the best business has been done on satins, poplins, alpacas and taffetas, particularly in black, navy, brown and other dark shades. A big business has also been done on knitted one-piece suits for women, most of which are worn under a loose-fitting outer garment of a contrasting material. All-knitted suits have done well. A variety of styles is offered, and the war note is present in many models. In spite of the war's demands for man power, a nice business in men's suits is also reported.

They Will Have to Look Sharp.

Judging from comment heard in the local market, buyers of various kinds of crockery and table wares will have to look sharp if they expect to get anything like a normal quantity of merchandise this year. Not only is the Government understood to be on the lookout for large quantities of goods of one kind or another, but hotels that have watched the dollars more than usual in the last two or three years are said to be replenishing their wares and throwing an extra burden on the manufacturers. This is said to be particularly the case with several of the more prominent Summer hotels. This demand, coming at a time when labor is far from plentiful, is said to presage trouble and disappointment for commercial buyers who do not keep their eyes on the market as closely as they might.

Hard to Get Out Sample Lines.

The chances are that many salesmen carrying manufactured furs for the new season will leave for their respective territories later than usual this year as a result of a combination of the large immediate-delivery business in Summer furs and the scarcity of skilled workers, which makes it hard to get sample lines out. However, it is not expected that any material loss of business will result, though it will have the effect of throwing a larger than normal strain on the manufacturing facilities of the industry later on. This, it is said, may result in delayed deliveries, but otherwise nothing untoward is looked for. The prospect for the next Fall and Winter season is regarded as especially bright, in spite of the sharp rise in prices of all kinds of raw furs and the consequent advances in the manufactured ones.

Gray Goods Sales Were Fair.

A fair volume of business was done in a quiet way in the local gray goods market yesterday. Despite the fact that sales of 39-inch 80 squares have been made for this month's delivery at 23 cents, most buyers are not willing to pay it. The mills, however, are firm in their refusal to take anything less, with the result that this figure now stands as more of an asking than a selling price. April business was done again on 38½-inch 64-60s at 17½ cents, and for similar shipment 38½-inch 60-52s and 60-48s brought 16 and 15¾ cents, respectively. Sheetings were generally without feature. Printcloth prices closed this way:

FOREIGN TRADE TEN BILLION

New York District's Share of Total Exceeds $4,500,000,000.

The New York Chamber of Commerce gave out yesterday a summary of foreign commerce in the District of New York for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1917, showing a total of $4,617,478,454, compared with $3,804,313,452 in the fiscal year 1916, an increase of $2,361,806,210. The figures were based on statistics furnished by the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce and include gold and silver and foreign exports.

The total foreign commerce of the remainder of the country in 1917 was $5,714,305,870, comparing with $3,405,347,690 in 1916, an increase of $2,308,958,180. The total foreign commerce of the United States in the year ending June 30, 1917, was $10,331,784,324, comparing with $7,209,661,142 in 1916, an increase of $3,122,123,182.

New York District's share of the total foreign commerce of the United States in 1917 was 44.68 per cent. In 1916 the corresponding proportion was 52.76 per cent., as compared with 46.59 in 1915, 45.98 in 1914, 47.15 in 1913, 46.99 in 1912, and 46.12 in 1911.

For the entire country the total domestic exports exceeded the imports by $1,914,588,458, compared with $1,660,550,884 in 1916. The foreign imports at the District of New York amounted to $1,338,199,355, comparing with $1,321,155,830 at all other districts, and with $2,659,355,185 in the United States as a whole.

WARN OF CLOTH SHORTAGE.

Some Mills Neglect Nation's Requirements, Trade Leaders Say.

A. M. Patterson, President of the Textile Alliance, Inc., and Herbert E. Peabody, President of the American Association of Woolen and Worsted Manufacturers, said yesterday that recent developments in Washington showed that there was a great shortage of certain grades and weights of cloth for army use and that it was essential that mills which had hitherto not done their part voluntarily should be made to do so in supplying the Government's requirements.

In a statement issued by Mr. Patterson and Mr. Peabody it is asserted that there are mills which have given only a small part of their output to the Government and which have accumulated considerable reserves of wool against contracts of goods for civilian use. It is necessary, the statement says, that these mills shall as rapidly as possible change over their machinery and devote both their supplies and a considerable proportion of their productive capacity to military purposes.

"This is particularly true of the group of German-owned mills in Passaic, but there are some Americans in the same class," the statement continued.

John L. De Saulles left a total estate of $68,380, and had made no will when he was shot and killed by his wife, Mrs. Blanca De Saulles on Aug. 3 last. This was shown yesterday in the Surrogate's Court when the Nassau County Trust Company and Charles A. H. De Saulles, brother of the decedent, applied to be appointed administrators. The personal estate was $53,380 and the realty $15,000. Under the law Mrs. De Saulles is entitled to her dower interest in the realty and the remainder of the estate goes to the infant son.

BUSINESS NOTES.

A meeting of the Directors of the Syndicate Trading Company will be held today at 230 Fifth Avenue.

The J. S. Bailey Company, which operates specialty shops in Brooklyn, Boston, Springfield, and Worcester, has established a local buying office at 432 Fourth Avenue. It is in charge of J. A. R. Husband.

The name of the Maxwell-McClure-Fitts Dry Goods Company of Kansas City has been changed to the Fitts-Smith Dry Goods Company. An office is maintained in this city at 43 Leonard Street.

A course of ten lessons, dealing with silks, ribbons, and pile fabrics, will be given at the Twenty-third Street Y. M. C. A., beginning on Wednesday evening next. Classes will be held on Wednesdays and Fridays from 7:30 to 9:30 P. M., and will be directed by James Chittick. This will be the last course of the 1917-18 season.

A new millinery trade journal, to be known as The American Milliner, will make its first appearance on April 15 and will be issued twice monthly thereafter, on the 1st and 15th. It will be published by Joseph Selomon, who was the first business manager of the Retail Millinery Association of America. The publication office will be located in the Flatiron Building.

WOOL MARKET IS STRONG.

Supply Becoming More Scarce—Production at Its Highest Point.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, April 3.—The American Wool and Cotton Reporter will say tomorrow:

"The wool supply is becoming more scarce and the market stronger. One feature of the last week has been the cleaning up of practically all the 4s and 3s B A wools in the market.

"Short selling on the cotton exchange has been responsible for holding cotton down at least 5 cent a pound below what it should have been.

"The woolen goods market remains steady with production up to the highest point possible under existing conditions. Manufacturers expect a sufficient shortage of goods to make possible at least reasonable profit margins.

"The cotton goods market has been much more inactive during the last week as the result of general conditions. One of the most important developments and one which will tend to create steadiness is the unwillingness of sellers to accept orders which they know are of a speculative character."

ARNHEIM LEFT $500,000.

Sister of Aviator Killed in Accident Gets Bulk of the Estate.

The will of Lieutenant Samuel W. Arnheim, President of Marks Arnheim, Inc., who was killed in an airplane accident at Fort Worth on March 21 last, disposes of an estate of more than $500,000, the bulk of which is in stock of the tailoring corporation.

Lieutenant Arnheim left $10,000 outright and a trust fund of $200,000 to his sister, Mrs. Sophie B. G. Untermyer. After fifteen years the principal of the trust goes to her sister, Mrs. Minnie Z. Arnheim, who gets $25,000 outright and a trust fund of $200,000. William W. Arnheim, husband of the latter, receives $100,000 in capital stock of Marks Arnheim, Inc.

REAL ESTATE FIELD

Investor Buys West Side Apartment House—Important Brooklyn Waterfront Deal.

West side apartment house properties continue to hold the attention of investors. R. W. Dundas bought yesterday from the Directors' Realty Holding Company, I. Randolph Jacobs, President, the nine-story apartment house at 495 West End Avenue, corner of Eighty-fourth Street, on a plot 108 by 100.

The house, which is assessed at $525,000, was acquired by the selling company in February from the estate of Abram Baudouine. It is arranged in nine, ten, and eleven room suites.

In part payment Mr. Dundas gave the four-story residence at 519 West End Avenue, southwest corner of Eighty-fifth Street, covering a plot 30.2 by 84. This property is assessed at $37,500. Slawson & Hobbs were the brokers in the transaction.

Big Waterfront Transaction in Brooklyn.

One of the largest sales of waterfront property in recent years was closed yesterday, and provided further indication of the prevailing demand for New York City real estate of this character. The large tract known as the Havemeyer sugar house property, with a frontage of 900 feet on Newtown Creek, Greenpoint, Brooklyn, was sold through Bryan L. Kennelly to the Greenpoint Improvement Company.

This waterfront property contains an area of more than 400,000 square feet, and is located at the point where Newtown Creek enters the East River. It runs back to Commercial Street, just west of Manhattan Avenue, and is improved with a number of large buildings, docks, &c. The holding price had been $1,500,000. The deal involving this property, which was reported several months ago, was not closed.

New Home for Blue Book.

Frederick W. Dau, publisher of Dau's Blue Book, has purchased from P. H. Walter, the four-story residence at 35 West Fiftieth Street, a Columbia College leasehold, on a lot 19 by 100.5. It is understood that Mr. Dau will occupy the building as a new home for his publications. Alfred E. Schermerhorn and Douglas L. Elliman & Co. were the brokers in the transaction.

West Side-Arverne Exchange.

Jeanette Chanlar has resold through the Lewis H. May Company, 514 West 184th Street, a five-story apartment, size 40 by 100, to Cecelia Goldston, who gave in addition to cash her free and clear country home on a plot 80 by 100 on the west side of Jessica Avenue, near the ocean, at Arverne, L. I. Arthur C. Knox represented the seller as attorney, and Otto A. Samuels represented the purchaser. Negotiations are pending for the resale of the Arverne property.

Trustees Sell Property of Bankrupt Dairy Company.

Arthur J. Baldwin, a manufacturer of beverages, purchased from Thomas J. O'Reilly, George V. S. Williams, and Francis S. Hotchkiss as trustees of the bankrupt Mutual-McDermott Dairy Corporation, the four-story building, 147.5 by 98.9, at 214 to 224 East Twenty-second Street, between Second and Third Avenues. The buyer recently leased the property for $175,000.

Tenement Sales.

The Holly, a six-story apartment house at 55 West 116th Street, on a plot 50 by 100, has been sold by the Hudson Investing Company to the Greenbrook Investing Company. Title passed yesterday, subject to a mortgage of $70,000.

Harry Aronson, Inc., purchased the two five-story tenements at 8 and 10 East 113th Street, on a lot 50 by 100.11, from Walter S. and August C. Gurnee and William M. Cromwell, as trustees of Grace C. Dyer, who acquired the property several years ago in foreclosure.

Fannie Ravnee bought from Elizabeth A. Catlan, 602-604 East 16th Street, a six-story tenement, 50 by 103.3, adjoining the southeast corner of Avenue B.

Jewish Theatre at Auction.

Mrs. Bertha M. Steuer, a party in interest, bought the eight-story New Jewish Theatre, at the southwest corner of East Houston and Chrystie Streets, at auction, yesterday, on a bid of $358,100. Liens against the property aggregated $353,400. Joseph P. Day conducted the sale.

Operator Sells Bronx Apartment.

Frederick Brown has sold the five-story apartment house at 333 Trinity Avenue, southwest corner of 140th Street, on a plot 26 by 100, which has been held at $35,000. The Nehring Company and Phelps & Damiane negotiated the sale.

Bronx Sales.

Mary Lanigan sold to Frederick Brown the four-story apartment house, at the northwest corner of Anthony Avenue and 175th Street, on a plot 45 by 90. The property was held at $50,000. McLernon Brothers were the brokers.

Gruenstein & Mayer sold to the newly incorporated 2,179 Washington Avenue Company, capitalized at $50,000, the five-story apartment house at 2,179 Washington Avenue, on a lot 25 by 145.

$48,275 for Brooklyn Dwellings.

A total of $48,275 was realized at the auction sale conducted on Tuesday night by the Jere Johnson, Jr., Company of eleven dwellings in the Stuyvesant section of Brooklyn.

The house at 284A Stuyvesant Avenue was sold to C. K. Philpard for $4,600; 450 Macon Street was sold for $5,700 to George T. Todd; 180 Decatur Street for $3,750 to C. E. Gremmels; 306 Decatur Street for $4,500 to Blanton Saunders; 312 Decatur Street for $4,225 to Fred Kaiser; 314 Decatur Street for $4,200 to F. I. Dustin; 484 McDonough Street to Albert E. Beck for $4,375; 484A McDonough Street for $4,500 to F. I. Dustin; 375 Decatur Street to C. E. Gremmels for $3,750; 900 Jefferson Avenue for $4,175 to Peter Schlaefer, and 485 McDonough Street for $4,500 to Martha R. Smith.

Brooklyn.

Michele Martoccio has purchased from the March Realty Company the plot 50 by 100 on the south side of Fortieth Street, 225 feet east of Fifth Avenue. Tutino & Cerny were the brokers.

Sidoti Brothers sold the three-story brick building at 8,009 Seventeenth Avenue, Bath Beach, for the Land Estates, Inc., to Emilio Martini, for investment.

I. Salsberg sold for M. E. Wagar to Morris Seld the corner plot, 100 by 100, on the southeasterly side of Fifteenth Avenue and Forty-ninth Street. The buyer will erect a one-family cottage for his own occupancy.

As a site for a one-story brick theatre, a client of J. J. Kramer purchased two plots fronting 53 feet on Church Avenue and 223 feet on Gravesend Avenue, 108 feet north of Church Avenue. The structure will have a seating capacity of 1,800.

Commercial Leases.

Pease & Elliman leased for Mrs. Sarah M. Searing to a client 24 Beaver Street for a long term of years at an aggregate rental of $60,000, and have been appointed agents of the property.

Douglas L. Elliman & Co. leased for Mrs. Jacob Gould Schurman the four-story dwelling, 26 by 100, at 49 West Fifty-eighth Street to John R. Rebarer, who will alter the property into small apartments.

George R. Read & Co. leased a portion of the second floor in 35 Nassau Street to the National Bank of Commerce, with whose space it is to be connected.

Turning Losses Into Profits.

An address will be made at the rooms of the Real Estate Board at 4 o'clock today by Arthur B. Pendleton of the National Terra Cotta Society, in which will be shown the possibilities for increasing earnings of properties now returning little or no income.

Jessie I. Straus Loans $250,000 on Broadway Corner.

The Robert Hoe Estate Company has secured from Jessie I. Straus of R. H. Macy & Co. a loan of $250,000 on the group of buildings at the southeast corner of Broadway and Thirty-seventh Street, fronting 105.3 feet on Broadway and 135 feet on the street. The mortgage is for a term of three years at 5½ per cent. per annum.

Recent Buyers.

Willa W. Hughes is the buyer of 36 West Twelfth Street. Mr. Hughes owns the adjoining house at No. 38, and now controls a plot 41.10 by 103.3.

Mary E. Humison is the buyer of the dwelling 133 West Eighty-fifth Street, sold recently by S. M. Stroock.

William Moller is the buyer of the property on the northeast corner of 180th Street and Park Avenue.

The recently organized Elwood Holding Corporation, J. Lester Wood, I. Josephson, and M. H. Mariash Directors, is the buyer of the Laurington apartments, 208 and 206 West 141st Street, sold Monday by Elizabeth Kanu through A. Kane & Co.

Henry W. Harwood is the buyer of the dwelling 245 West 138th Street.

Realty Notes.

William A. White & Sons were associated as brokers with the Douglas Robinson, Charles S. Brown Company in the sale to the Eagle Pencil Company of the plot, 206 by 188, comprising the block front on the west side of Avenue D, from Thirteenth to Fourteenth Street.

The Orr bill to compel owners of heated apartments to keep them warm, and, if they do not, to permit tenants to deduct from the rent the amount spent for kerosene, gas or other fuel, was killed in the Assembly Tuesday.

Ewing, Bacon & Henry negotiated the sale of 407 to 413 Fourth Avenue to the White Rose Baking and Restaurant Company, M. Strasser, President.

James Speyer, who recently acquired the residence at 261 Madison Avenue from the Dun estate, through William A. White & Sons, will probably place the house at the disposal of some organization engaged in war work. Nos. 257 and 259 Madison Avenue belong to the same owner, and have been occupied by the National League for Woman's Service since the beginning of the war.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—A moderate anticyclone persists over the Missouri Valley, with a deep depression west of the continental divide in Northeastern Arizona and Southern Utah. This pressure distribution continues to cause snow in the middle Rocky Mountain region, with unseasonably low temperature. In the Eastern districts a shallow depression is passing out to sea from the Virginia Coast.

Rain has fallen in the last twenty-four hours in the Middle Atlantic States, Southern New England, the Ohio Valley, and Tennessee, and there has been a considerable fall in temperature from the Middle Atlantic States and New England to the middle Rocky Mountain region. In the last-named district the temperature is now 20 to 30 degrees below the seasonal average.

Occasional thunder showers, with generally unsettled conditions, are indicated for the East Gulf States and the Carolinas during the next forty-eight hours. Elsewhere in the Washington forecast district the weather will be fair, with moderately low temperatures.

Winds for Thursday and Friday along the North Atlantic Coast will be moderate northeast to north, rain; Middle Atlantic Coast, moderate northwest to north, fair; South Atlantic Coast, moderate to fresh southwest, showers.

FORECASTS TODAY AND FRIDAY.

Eastern New York—Fair Thursday and Friday; not much change in temperature.

Southern New England—Fair Thursday and Friday; continued cool.

New Jersey and Eastern Pennsylvania—Clearing in early morning Thursday, followed by fair and continued cool. Friday, fair; not much change in temperature.

Western New York—Fair and continued cool Thursday and Friday.

Northern New England—Fair Thursday and Fri., except for rain Thursday on the Maine coast.

The temperature record for the twenty-four hours ended at 11 P. M., taken from the thermometer at the local office of the United States Weather Bureau, is as follows:

	1917.	1918.		1917.	1918.

The commission announces for May 7 an examination for assistant refinery engineer, for men. Vacancies in the Bureau of Mines, Department of the Interior, for duty at San Francisco, Cal., or elsewhere, at salaries ranging from $1,800 to $2,500 a year, depending upon the qualifications of the appointee, will be filled from this examination. The duties will include investigation of crude oil and natural gas gasoline refining methods, also dehydration of oils and other special refining problems. Competitors will not be required to report for examination at any place, but will be rated on education, 30; experience, 50; thesis, 20. Applicants must have graduated from a college or university of recognized standing in chemical engineering or a course in chemistry which included engineering subjects. In addition they must have had at least two years' practical experience either in experimental and operation work connected with a petroleum refinery, or with natural gas gasoline plants. They must have reached their twenty-first but not their fortieth birthday on the date of the examination. Further information may be obtained from the commission, Washington, D. C.

Education Notes.

There are six vacancies for photographers in the class on theory and practice of camouflage in the New York Evening School of Industrial Art, 204 East Forty-second Street.

There will be a conference at the Board of Education Hall tomorrow afternoon between the teacher members of the Pension Board and the electors of it. There is delay in obtaining the ratification of prior service allowances and the payment of refunds to those teachers who paid deductions in excess of the amount required of them under the law. Refunds, it is said, are due eighty-three teachers, varying from $4 to $14 each. The fact that the Civil Service Commission has not approved the appointment of the medical staff to examine retiring teachers also causes delay in the pension payments. All these matters will be considered at the conference.

The Teachers' Interests Organization is opposed to the granting of bonuses to teachers for mixed and boys' classes.

The Association of Men Teachers of the Graduating Class has urged that an increase of salaries be granted equally to both men and women.

The teachers in Public School 102, Manhattan, have requested the Board of Education not to grant any increases in salary or any bonuses until equal pay has been established.

The Board of Education has decided to appropriate $7,500 for school and home gardens this year.

The Board of Education has consented to the transfer of Marion Meehan, stenographer and typewriter in the office of the Acting Superintendent of Schools, to the City College with an increase of pay.

ARMY MOTOR TRAIN HERE.

Left Buffalo Two Weeks Ago Carrying Supplies for Troops.

The largest train of Government motor trucks ever seen in New York City arrived yesterday. They were in charge of Major G. F. Bailey, the oldest motor truck commander in the army. Major Bailey was with General Pershing in Mexico and had charge there of the transport operations along the United States Army's lines of communications.

The truck train left Buffalo two weeks ago and entered the city from Connecticut by way of the Boston Post Road and the Pelham Parkway to the Fordham Road, thence crossing the 207th Street bridge to Manhattan and down Broadway and Riverside Drive to Fifty-seventh Street and the North River. They carried several hundred tons of supplies. With the convoy was a motor truck tank to supply fuel on the road.

ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE REPUDIATES BRYAN

Superintendent Anderson Says Nebraskan's Conversion Was Based on Hope for 1920.

ATTACKS 'DRY FEDERATION'

Declares Commoner Was Slower Changing Attitude Than Getting Onto American Side of War.

The repudiation of William Jennings Bryan as a "leader" of the prohibition movement in this country is advocated in an article published by William H. Anderson, State Superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, in this week's number of the American Issue, the official organ of the league. Mr. Anderson says he doubts Mr. Bryan's disinterested purpose as a prohibitionist, and declares that the Commoner is using the prohibition movement as a stepping stone from which to further his own political ambitions for 1920.

"We were glad," says Mr. Anderson in his article, "to have Mr. Bryan come out and espouse the cause of prohibition even though he was late in connecting himself up with this great moral movement, as he was in taking the American side of our controversy with Germany. He was even worse than a pacifist on prohibition, for it has been only a little over four years since Mr. Bryan stumped the State of Maryland and threw the entire weight of his influence in behalf of the election as United States Senator of a man who was backed by the unspeakable liquor ring of Baltimore City, in return for services he had rendered that ring in betraying the temperance forces and blocking the passage of a local option law in that State, after we had already won—a man who has since been repudiated by the people of Maryland as soon as they got at him on his merits without interference from Washington."

Mr. Anderson directs his attack simultaneously at Mr. Bryan and the so-called "Dry Federation," of which Mr. Bryan is President. According to Mr. Anderson, the federation was formed for no other purposes than to get a national prohibition organization behind Mr. Bryan and to gratify the spite of some Prohibition party enemies of the Anti-Saloon League. Mr. Anderson points out that although the so-called Dry Federation has been widely heralded as a "colossal combination of all temperance organizations," it does not in fact include either the Anti Saloon League, which has been the great practical working agency for bringing temperance legislation to pass, or the Woman's Christian Temperance Union.

Mr. Anderson says the so-called "Dry Federation" was started by Professor Charles Scanlon, a party Prohibitionist, a "bitter opponent of the Anti-Saloon League." In a supplementary statement on the subject Mr. Anderson said yesterday that the Dry Federation is frankly partisan in its political affiliations, whereas it has been the determined object of prohibition workers heretofore to keep the issue of prohibition out of politics entirely and to make it a purely nonpartisan moral issue.

The part of Mr. Anderson's article that calls for the repudiation of Mr. Bryan says:

"We do not know why Mr. Bryan saw fit to accept the Presidency of this Dry Federation after he had assured the Anti-Saloon League that he would not do so unless the league and the W. C. T. U. were part of it. Whether his action is due to a previous promise made on the assumption that he could personally deliver the Anti-Saloon League into this Federation, and which he had to keep even though he failed to handle the league, or whether it is solely due to the fact that he found that it was impossible even for him to swerve the Anti-Saloon League from its inflexible adherence to nonpartisanship, and impossible to use it to advance his political fortunes in another try for the Presidency on the prohibition issue, we do not presume to say.

"As an eloquent speaker in behalf of the prohibition movement, a man who can bring out a crowd and who can persuade and convince a great many members of that crowd, Mr. Bryan is a most highly desirable addition to the temperance ranks. But as a leader, as a supposed strategist, as a general, as one charged with responsibility for planning, Mr. Bryan is frankly a joke so far as the prohibition movement is concerned.

"In our judgment the purpose behind the new Dry Federation is two-fold: To help Professor Scanlon and a few others like him to strike at the Anti-Saloon League because it has been inconsiderate enough to succeed in spite of them, and to get some kind of a national prohibition organization behind Mr. Bryan in ample time before 1920.

"Mr. Bryan did not have time to come back to help in the dry-city fights, but he found time to come last Sunday to Rochester to mix into a situation with political possibilities and complications. Enough said. It is announced that this new federation is to cover New York, where, by the way, the Republican Party is in danger of ultimately putting over ratification by itself if somebody doesn't hurry and stick an oar in."

RADIO SCHOOL AT COLUMBIA

Will Train Men for Service on Airplanes in War.

A United States Signal Corps radio school has been established at Columbia, and 150 students are expected for the new course. They will be instructed in the care of wireless used on airplanes, and three training planes without motors have been brought to the university for their use. Men will be trained for officers in the radio squadron.

The school is to be under command of the commandant of the Government School of Military Cinematography.

Your duty to the cause

The war cannot be won without your help

YOUR country needs wool to clothe her soldiers and their allies—she needs laborers for war work. Whether she gets them both depends on you

If you waste wool and waste labor you are casting your weight against victory

Adulterated fabrics that wear badly waste wool and use more of it to clothe a man than all wool that wears well and lasts long

Poor tailoring that goes to pieces and has to be renewed is wasteful and uses more labor than fine tailoring that economizes because it endures

Which way are you going to cast your weight?

BRITISH BACK IN BILLETS

Resting Up After Continuous Days and Nights of Rear-guard Actions.

By PHILIP GIBBS.

Copyright, 1918, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WAR CORRESPONDENTS' HEADQUARTERS, April 4.—During the last day or two warfare has gone back to conditions like those before the launching of the enemy's offensive, each side testing his enemy's strength at various points by patrols and minor actions and trying find out his immediate intentions. The British capture of the village of Ayette yesterday with six officers and nearly 200 men was heartening to the troops as a sign that the tide is turning against the enemy.

Those German storm troops who passed, division through division, and in vast numbers surged after the British rearguards on to the Somme battlefields, and across the country of their old retreat beyond Bapaume and Péronne, leaving a wake of dead and wounded behind them all the way, have not come into a land flowing with milk and honey, nor into cities good to sack.

They have behind them now, as the British had behind them, many miles deep of awful desolation. There is no cover there from wind or rain or high explosives, no billets in which weary soldiers may find dry beds and warmth, no roofs to any houses, no houses, only shell-broken walls far beyond the Somme battlefield and to the furthest range of the British guns.

In 1916 the enemy himself laid waste to everything that could be blown up or burned. He made a bonfire of Bapaume and its surrounding hamlets. He wrecked all the beauty of Péronne with its Renaissance houses and public buildings. With torches and axes and explosive charges he had destroyed all the habitations over the long belt of country, so that when the British followed they should have no kind of comfort and be aghast at this desolation.

Now they have come back to that waste of their own making and back across the battlefields of the Somme, where for many miles it is more frightful because every kilometer of this earth is a ghastly reminder to these Germans of things they suffered there, of their blood that flowed there in that old blood bath of the Somme, as they called it, and of agonies and tortures in ditches which still wind through this mangled earth, though filled now with rank grass, hiding the bones of men and half-buried bodies, not a pleasant place for German divisions behind their present battle lines, not more pleasant than a cold, wet hell where the spectres of slaughtered men crowd at night around the German sentries and masses of men are sleeping under rain-soaked blankets.

Rain Handicaps the Foe.

It has been raining hard these two nights past and this morning, and I know what those fields of the Somme and up by Contal Maison and Courcelette and along the valley of the Ancre look like after a rain. I know how sticky is the earth there at Pozières, where one's feet sink into the slime. I know how deep are those rain-filled shellholes, and how those undrained trenches become rivers.

For the German gunners trying to drag up field artillery or long-range guns, there is now bog to come through. It is hard work for the German field companies, pressed furiously, to lay narrow-gauge lines over these deserts according to the orders of the high command, who insist on the lines being run out almost as quickly as their men advance in attack, so that the material of war may be brought up. Their railheads and Criticises Vienna for Moderation, but Berlin Liberals Welcome Speech.

AMSTERDAM, April 4.—At an important conference held today at German headquarters between the Emperor, Field Marshal von Hindenburg, General von Ludendorff, and Dr. Richard F. von Kühlmann, the German Foreign Minister, Count Czernin's speech was discussed, among other matters. It is understood that Dr. von Kühlmann will deliver an important speech at his earliest opportunity.

Count Czernin is expected at Berlin and at headquarters early next week.

Alleged Clemenceau Offer Pleases.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, April 4.—The popular papers in Berlin have much to say in praise of Count Czernin's speech, while the organs of the extreme Right are anything but charmed. The Lokal-Anzeiger says:

"As in the Dual Monarchy, so will Count Czernin's speech make the best impression in all German circles. Among the many oratorical efforts of the Austro-Hungarian Minister of Foreign Affairs that of yesterday distinguished itself explicitly by a cordial tone that will find a hearty echo in the countries of our allies. The effect of his conviction and the courage with which he comments on the further development of the war cannot fail to be noted in either camp.

"In Germany the manner in which he dealt with Clemenceau's famous peace offer gives us cause for especial satisfaction."

In its Stock Exchange report the same paper says that the Czernin speech affected large circles of business men most favorably and did much to strengthen firm confidence in the near future, stimulating business to a remarkable degree.

Alsace Not the Only Obstacle.

The Vossische Zeitung reminds Count Czernin that the Teutonic war aims are not exhausted merely with the maintenance of the status quo in Alsace-Lorraine.

"He should know," urges the paper, "that the present offensive in the west, though it is carried on on French soil and costs much French blood, is really directed against England. The guns of the allied monarchies are not supposed to conquer a world empire for us, but merely to shake off a tyrant.

"Only by taking this problem into consideration may Austria-Hungary be able to judge what hopes Germany may base on the disposition of mind of Wilson. Austria's hopes in that respect seem quite considerable, judging from yesterday's speech. Perhaps Czernin thinks that Wilson's opinion regarding Alsace-Lorraine differs considerably from that of Lloyd George, or perhaps he has an idea that Wilson will sacrifice this demand of France sooner than his English ally, who will certainly do so when the time comes.

"However, our hope in Wilson will not rise until the Anglo-Saxon solidarity of interest in the great questions of world politics has ceased to exist. This is more to our own vital interest than to bleed France to death could ever be. He who wants to be our friend must demonstrate it to our strongest enemy, not to the weakest."

The Tageblatt says:

"Count Czernin emphasizes the fact that he formulated his answers to Clemenceau's plain offer with the full consent of Wilhelmstrasse, from which we conclude that the German Government still sticks to its declaration that all questions except Alsace-Lorraine may be solved in a council of nations, and necessitates no further bloodshed. As to the reduction of armaments,

President Sends Greetings to Our Troops in France

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, April 4. (By The Associated Press.)—This week's issue of The Stars and Stripes, the soldiers' weekly, will contain the following message from President Wilson:

"Please convey to the officers and men of our expeditionary forces my warmest greetings on this, the anniversary of the entrance of the United States into this great war for liberty, and say to them that we all have not only greatly admired and been very proud of the way they have so far accounted for themselves, but also have the utmost confidence that in every sense they will prove to be of the finest metal of free men."

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, April 4, (Associated Press.)—American forces are now occupying a sector on the Meuse heights, south of Verdun.

This announcement was released for publication tonight simultaneously with a statement that the enemy raided one of the American listening posts in this sector following a heavy bombardment.

The raid was made against one of the few positions in this region where it is feasible, because of the terrain, to conduct operations without heavy loss to the attacking forces. The enemy first vigorously bombarded the American first line and the communication trenches, zigzagging up the hillside, and then sent over a raiding party, which swarmed about the listening post.

The further progress of the enemy was halted by a strong fire from the American first and second lines, and, as a consequence, the enemy can hardly claim success.

Because of the topography of the Meuse heights region there has been little severe fighting there for many months, and the opposing forces took advantage of the inactivity to construct fine dugouts, many of them being lighted by electricity. Each side enjoys the advantage of excellent observation posts, and shells echo among the surrounding hills, which are covered with Spring flowers.

The other American sectors were reported quiet today.

The Germans sent in a few shells in the sector northwest of Toul, but the enemy airplanes were fairly active in patrolling.

AMSTERDAM, March 22. (Associated Press Correspondence.)—"America's aid is gaining gradually in importance with respect to the coming decision," writes Karl Rosner, the war correspondent of the Lokal-Anzeiger of Berlin on the western front. He says:

"The value of America's assistance, which formerly was confined to supplies of all kinds of materials and equipment, has grown as the Germans have been getting their hands free in the east. It is of especial importance to Germany's opponents, inasmuch as American divisions are expected to replace the Russians and Rumanians.

PARIS, April 4.—Evidence that America understands the great rôle she is play in the war is received here with immense satisfaction. Today's announcement that additional American troops will do home service in England, thus freeing British reinforcements for the front, is regarded as indicating practical co-operation which will give the quickest and best results.

AMERICAN EXPEDITIONARY FORCE IN FRANCE, April 4.—The saddest men in Northern France today are the boche inmates of a French prison camp back of the American lines and facing a road which for the last four days has been filled with American soldiers being shifted in accordance with the plans for their participation in the big struggle to the west. It is the first time the Americans have used this particular road in force, and the first time the boche prisoners have had a chance to sight the boys in brown who have come to France to help end the Kaiser's reign of terror, and they are impressed and depressed.

By special permission of the officers in charge I talked with the prisoners at length. Some of them had been captured within the last twenty days. They said they had been told not to fear the Americans, because the U-boats would never permit them to get to France. They expressed the greatest concern as they watched the long khaki lines of infantry and field artillery, and pressed me to know how many Americans were in France, and how many more were coming.

In the Prisoners' Camp.

It was the first pleasant day for a week. The prison camp is on a hill overlooking miles of beautiful Northern France, which lay basking in the Spring sun. The boches were mostly lying about in the warm sunshine, talking and reading. As our car drew up all saluted stiffly. I was at once impressed by the diverse appearance of the German privates. Men of evident culture were side by side with wooden-looking blockheads.

A French officer took us through the camp, which held the members of several famous Prussian regiments. The camp proper is inclosed in a stockade of elaborately placed barbed wire.

The barracks, with its long buildings, was clean except for muddy floors. The beds were in two tiers, and appeared comfortable. In one corner of the barracks we found an ingenious marionette theatre.

The French officer, who spoke little German, was trying to converse with one prisoner, when another saluted and addressed me in perfect English, explaining the working of the theatre. Then he told me he was an officer of a Berlin dry goods house having connections with Stern Brothers of New York and Marshall Field of Chicago. Before the war, he said, he had never been out of Germany. He learned English in a Berlin college.

I asked him what he thought about America being in the war. He said:

"I was made a prisoner about five weeks ago. I had heard that America was in the war. This was denied for a long time by the high German officers. When I was captured, the men in the ranks were being told that Americans could not get to France because of the U-boats. I had no idea that there were so many Americans

100,000 MEN ASSAIL FRENCH

Terrific Assaults Near Moreuil Give the Foe Two Villages.

FRENCH HOLD HEIGHTS NEAR

By Counterattacks Petain's Men Retain Their Grip on Grivesnes.

FOE IS VERY DETERMINED

Seems Bent on Making Headway at Any Cost, Says Paris Bulletin.

PARIS, April 4.—German troops, numbering well over 100,000 men, delivered a terrific attack today against the French along a front of nearly nine miles, from Grivesnes to north of the Amiens-Roye road.

They were met with a storm of fire from the French guns, and although the assaults were repeated time after time, they succeeded in gaining only a small section of ground.

The French retained Grivesnes, but the Germans occupied the villages of Morisel (across the Avre River from Moreuil) and Mailly-Raineval, (three miles southwest of Moreuil.)

The announcement by the War Office tonight of this new offensive also says that by a powerful counterattack the French kept their hold on Grivesnes.

The day report of the War Office told of heavy artillery fighting last night on the same front north of Montdidier. In raids in Champagne and on the Verdun front the French took prisoners, and also captured two machine guns.

The night communication is as follows:

The battle was resumed this morning with extreme violence in the region north of Montdidier, and still continues. On a front of about fifteen kilometers, (nine miles,) from Grivesnes as far as north of the road between Amiens and Roye the Germans attacked with enormous forces, showing a firm determination to break through our front at any cost. Up to the present we have identified by prisoners eleven enemy divisions.

Our troops with intrepid courage resisted the shock of the assailant masses, who were mowed down by our artillery fire.

Despite their efforts, ten times repeated, the Germans succeeded, at the cost of sanguinary sacrifices, in gaining only a few hundred meters by terrain and occupying the villages of Mailly-Raineval, and Morisel, the neighboring heights of which we hold.

Grivesnes, which was attacked with particular violence, remained in the hands of our troops, who, after having broken down all the assaults, counterattacked with vigor and realized progress at this point.

Between Montdidier and Lassigny there was great activity by the two artilleries.

The day statement reads:

The artillery fighting became very violent during the night in the region north of Montdidier.

Northwest of Rheims, in the Champagne and on the left bank of the Meuse, (Verdun front,) French troops penetrated German trenches at several points, bringing back thirty prisoners and two machine guns.

German raids east of Rheims, in Avocourt Wood and north of St. Dié, were without success.

There is nothing to report elsewhere.

GERMANY DEPORTS FRENCH TO RUSSIA

PARIS, April 3.—One thousand French civilians from the occupied districts of Northern France have been sent to Russia by the Germans and are being forced to perform hard labor, according to information obtained by Baron Cochin, a former Cabinet member.

These civilians, 400 of whom are women, are among those whom Germany offered to exchange for Alsatians who have escaped to France. They were sent to Russia after the rejection of the proposal, which Germany attempted to place before the French Government through the Holy See and Baron Cochin.

Germans See Signs of an Allied Counteroffensive: Some Think Foch's Mobile Army Is in the Field

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, April 4.—While most of the German military writers and correspondents at the front believe that the Allies are preparing for an open field battle around Amiens, Lieut. Gen. Baron von Ardenne thinks that an Anglo-French-American counteroffensive in which Foch's mobile army will play the principal part has already begun.

Several reports from the front say that nearly all the prisoners taken by General von Hutier's army in the last few days have been Frenchmen, while before that they were almost exclusively Englishmen. These Frenchmen all wore brand new uniforms and had splendid new equipment, indicating that they belonged to formations not recently in action and possibly part of Foch's mobile army.

Wilhelm Hegeler, in a telegram to the Berliner Tageblatt on March 30, says:

"Large bodies of troops are being massed in front of Amiens."

This, with the fierce allied attacks between the Luce and the Avre, which the official German Headquarters report this afternoon says were repulsed by the Germans, causing heavy losses to the Allies, chimes in with General Ardenne's view, who represents the situation as follows:

"Clemenceau's prediction that the first week in April would bring a decisive battle and victory has proved correct in part, for the month began with the first great Anglo-French counterattack, which of course may be decisive. By the capture of Montdidier and Albert the seam of the Anglo-French front has been already seriously loosened. It would break down completely if the Germans succeeded in taking Amiens."

PARIS CONFIDENCE RISING HIGHER

RELIANCE IN FOCH'S SKILL

German Blow Parried, Clemenceau Says—Refugees Bring More Hopeful Feeling.

By CHARLES H. GRASTY.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, April 4.—The French are the last people to indulge themselves in unfounded optimism. Faith without works is repugnant to them. It means something, therefore, to find on all sides increasing confidence in holding the boche. The margin between the present front and the vital lines to the west is too narrow for comfort, but the most careful commentators regard this condition as superficial, and, penetrating more deeply into the inner situation, see Foch's hand on a secret spring which may control the whole German position.

General Delacroix, in the Temps, puts into an expert's terms what everybody is beginning to hope. He says that in marching on Montdidier the Germans have fallen into an error similar to that of von Kluck in passing in front of the intreched camp of Paris before the battle of the Marne. If the consequences of this movement toward the west have not yet developed owing to the Allies having had to utilize all immediately available reserves to meet the German drive, the effect of the German error must appear as soon as the allied strategic reserves are able to come into action.

Hint at Big Allied Stroke.

The Germans have seen this danger coming, says General Delacroix, and have anticipated it by adopting the fundamental principle of attacking in order to defend themselves, but they overlooked the tenacity of the Allies. The British, on the one hand, by their stubborn resistance, have forced the Germans to slow down, while the French have delivered a counterattack on the enemy's left flank and gained ground at Montchel and elsewhere, which now enables them to maintain a threat against the German central lines of communication.

General Delacroix foreshadows in veiled language the possible casting off of the German Army as a result of a French counteroffensive along the side of the new German salient, and hints that this menace may become a reality whenever General Foch feels that the right moment has come.

Parried Blow, Says Premier.

Further evidence of the optimistic feeling here is reflected by Marcel Hutin, who writes in the Echo de Paris:

"I talked last night with Clemenceau, who had just come back from the front. The Premier's countenance was that of great days. He was radiant. I felt that what he had seen or heard up there where he had been

BRITISH ARE FIRM ON AMIENS LINE

London Considers German Success at Hamel a Purely Local Advantage.

SUSPECTS STRATEGIC RUSE

Teutons May Be Covering, It Is Hinted, a Design to Strike Elsewhere.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, April 4.—The War Office communiqué tonight, followed by Field Marshal Haig's report, excited the keenest interest in London. There was at first a disposition to believe that the report marked the resumption of the German offensive on a grand scale, but later consideration made this appear doubtful.

Today's fighting between the Somme and the Avre was the heaviest reported this week. The German attack was aimed directly at Amiens, but the results achieved are not, at the time of writing, considered to be very important. The advance in the neighborhood of Hamel is described as a purely local advantage which does not materially alter the situation in the Amiens sector.

The question most debated is whether the offensive has been resumed with the full support of heavy guns. It is suggested that it is too early for a resumption of the offensive with full support from heavy guns and too late for a successful resumption without them.

The days which have elapsed since the German line was established must have witnessed a great growth of trenches and barbed wire along it, while the wet weather and the state of the old Somme battlefield cannot have been favorable to the bringing up of artillery. It may be that the enemy is aiming rather at fixing allied attention on the possibility of his reaching Amiens, while he is giving his own to the preparation of an offensive somewhere else.

Meanwhile it may be observed that the possibilities of an immediate counterthrust by the Allies have also dwindled away, and a new German salient with its head too near Amiens for that city to remain of much use to the Allies, must be looked upon as one of the established facts of the trench line for the present.

ENGLAND DIDN'T START WAR

Perseus Cites von Jagow's Testimony in Addition to Lichnowsky's.

By GEORGE RENWICK.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

AMSTERDAM, April 4.—There is an interesting little piece of evidence of the effect produced in the comparatively sober circles in Germany by the memoranda of Lichnowsky and von Jagow.

In the Berlin Tageblatt Captain Persius deals again with the U-boat problem, and in between the lines there is a good deal of pessimism to be noticed. He places the available world tonnage at 37,000,000, and the sinkings during the year, he says, amount to 8,000,000 tons.

Each man can draw a conclusion for himself, the Captain says cautiously, regarding the further duration of the struggle at sea.

Then he warns the people against thinking that England can be starved and concludes by advocating a peace by agreement, with the remark that "an understanding ought to be easier, now that we have heard from two opposing sources, from von Jagow and Lichnowsky, that England was not responsible for the war as has been believed hitherto in wide circles in Germany."

"Fresh Successes" Are Won, Is Berlin's Official Report

BERLIN, April 4. (via London.)—"During the continuation of our attack south of the Somme, fresh successes have been won," says the official communication from army headquarters tonight. It goes on:

As reprisals for the French bombardment of our shelters in Laon in the last few days, Rheims has been subjected to our fire.

The day bulletin from Headquarters is as follows:

Fighting activity revived south of the Somme. By means of surprise and after strong artillery preparation the enemy during the early morning and afternoon four times vainly endeavored to recapture heights wrested from him southwest of Moreuil. This attack broke down with heavy losses.

Before Verdun and at Parroy Wood there was at times a more lively firing engagement.

LONDON, April 4. — German forces today renewed their offensive in the crucial area between the Somme and the Avre and southwesterly to Grivesnes, [a battle front of about sixteen miles,] and made some gains there. This is the region nearest to Amiens.

The British and French lines were subjected to heavy attacks early in the morning, and these assaults were still continuing when Field Marshal Haig telegraphed his official report from British Headquarters tonight.

On the right and centre the British forces held fast, but on the left, says Haig, the lines were forced back "a short distance" in the neighborhood of Hamel, (about a mile south of the Somme and twelve miles east of Amiens.) The night bulletin of the War Office adds that the Germans gained at this point also, in the direction of the Vaire Wood, (less than a mile southwest of Hamel.)

The French troops to the immediate right of the British also felt the heavy weight of the German attack, and lost some ground to the enemy between the Luce and Avre Rivers.

Germans Repulsed at Albert.

On the north of the Somme Hindenburg's troops attacked the British line just west of Albert this afternoon and suffered a complete repulse.

Field Marshal Haig's report is as follows:

After heavy artillery preparation the enemy launched a strong attack this morning on the whole front between the Somme and Avre Rivers. On the right and centre of the British lines the attacking German infantry were repulsed, but on the left the weight of the assault succeeded in pressing back our troops for a short distance in the neighborhood of Hamel, on the south bank of the Somme. The fighting is continuing in this area.

Early in the afternoon the enemy also attacked our line west of Albert and was completely repulsed.

During the last few days there has been heavy fighting south of the River Luce. A Canadian cavalry brigade greatly distinguished itself in many successful actions, both mounted and dismounted.

The night bulletin of the War Office reads:

North of the Somme there is no change.

South of the Somme the enemy launched heavy attacks early this morning on the British and French forces, and on the British front made progress in the direction of Hamel and Vaire Wood.

On the remainder of the British front all attacks were beaten back with considerable loss. The fighting still continues.

On the French front, immediately on our right, the enemy gained ground in the angle between the Rivers Luce and Avre.

The day statement of the War Office says:

During the night a German machine-gun post in the neighborhood of Hebuterne was rushed by our troops and the machine gun captured. A few prisoners were brought in on other parts of the battle front.

Beyond hostile artillery activity at different points on the battle front, and also in the Menin road and Passchendaele sectors there is nothing further to report.

Air Fleets in Battle.

The official statement on aviation issued by the War Office tonight reads:

Wednesday was again unfavorable for flying, but this did not prevent our airplanes from making several flights to reconnoitre the battle front and attack ground targets with bombs and machine guns. One fight occurred during a clear interval between two very large formations of our own and enemy machines. Otherwise hostile aircraft were not very active.

Nine German machines were shot down, three were driven down out of control, and one hostile balloon was destroyed. Five of our airplanes are missing.

OUR AGREEMENT FREES RESERVES FOR FOCH

Allies Are Greatly Heartened, but the Anxious Period Is Not Yet Over.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—From an authoritative quarter it was learned today that the Entente Allies felt that with the passing of the first stage of the German offensive the point of supreme peril had passed, but that the situation was still such as to occasion anxiety.

It is felt that the joint action of the British, French, and American Governments will be able to prevent any rupture of the allied lines, but nevertheless further steps are being taken by the London, Washington, and Paris Governments to deal with any possible contingency.

The putting of the allied forces under the supreme command of General Foch and the measures taken to pool the man power of the three leading Entente powers in a common front against the enemy, as well as the measures taken by President Wilson for rushing reinforcements to Europe, have greatly strengthened the morale of the Entente.

The utilization of the American forces in France which are on the march to the battlefront has enabled General Foch to increase his available strategic reserves, and the placing of other Americans on sectors of the old French front, relieving veteran French soldiers, now en route to Picardy, has also been of value. It is understood that British reserves are being sent across from England, this being possible under the assurance that reinforcements would be sent over as quickly as possible from this country.

The shipment of American reinforcements now has priority for the moment over the shipment of everything else, even the foodstuffs. While the food situation abroad will be taken care of, the army and navy will strain every effort to move troops from the United States.

It is learned that when the need of man power was presented by Premier Lloyd George to President Wilson through the British Ambassador, Lord Reading, the President at once set the necessary machinery in motion. The President's decision to place the man power of the nation immediately at the disposal of the Allies enabled them to employ their own reserves with the assurance that their places would be filled. The moral advantage of the decision of the President was declared in an Entente quarter today to be as important as the military advantage.

It was asserted that the realization of the need of a commander in chief on the western front was brought about not by reverses suffered, but by the evident purpose of Germany to try to separate the British and French armies. This showed the danger from such an event.

REPORT AUSTRIA READY FOR DRIVE IN ITALY

Only Favorable Weather Is Awaited, Advices in Washington Indicate.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—Indications that the Austrians are waiting only for favorable weather to launch another attack upon the Italian front were reported today in an official dispatch from Rome.

"Some military critics," says the dispatch, "are of the opinion that Austria intends to await the results of the offensive in France before undertaking to deliver the blow against Italy, but great preparations are carried on by the Austrians without interruption, and all the forces formerly operating in Rumania under Mackensen have now been placed at our front.

"Italian aviators report that the Austrians are transferring large bodies of troops from the Piave line to the mountain zones. Evidently the Austrian commands have realized the impossibility of breaking through the Italian resistance along the Piave and regard the mountain lines as more suited for the invasion of Italy.

"Lately the Austrians have undertaken the construction of new fortifications along the Livenza and the Tagliamento Rivers, adopting a new system consisting of points of support with several bridgeheads, employing in this work Italian prisoners and the civilian population of the invaded Italian provinces."

here as I have seen in the last three days."

"Don't you think the Allies will win now?" I asked.

Instantly his face lost its kindly look. He straightened up and, saluting, said curtly:

"I am a German."

I asked him if he wanted to see the Kaiser lose.

Again he saluted and said:

"I am a German."

One Not Anxious to Go Back.

Not so loyal was another prisoner who said he was glad America was in the war to end it soon, and that he would never go back to Germany to live again.

French officers said the prisoners were much depressed at the presence of thousands of American soldiers and became surly after seeing them. With few exceptions the prisoners appeared to be below par intellectually, although of good physique. The chef of a well-known German hotel is among the prisoners, and is cook both for the boche and French officers. He is made to eat some of every dish prepared. I asked what the prisoners had, and was told that in the morning they had the regular French petit déjeuner of bread and café au lait, for noonday soup, meat, vegetables, and coffee, and for dinner about the same. I was astounded to find that sugar was given to the prisoners when the French people cannot get any. Even at the Café de la Paix and the Ritz in Paris saccharine syrup is served, but no sugar. The prisoners are by no means overworked, and appeared content. I was told that in the last nine months there had been only seven attempts to escape.

Across the smiling valley could be heard the hammer blows of carpenters busy building a camp for prisoners taken by the Americans. It looks as though it will be a big camp, with the whole plain supplying ample room for extension. As I departed on a little road down the hill my car was halted by passing boys in brown. Looking back for a farewell sight of France's unwelcome but well-treated guests, I saw their faces pressed against the wall of cattle wire, watching with pained surprise the sturdy Americans marching by and wondering how many more there were.

Message to American Parents.

On the eve of the departure of the United States forces for the plains of Picardy to take part in the great struggle, Major J. M. T. Finney of Johns Hopkins, commanding the surgical work of the American expeditionary force, asked THE NEW YORK TIMES to say to the mothers and fathers of the American soldiers that those who are wounded will get the best attention the most advanced medical and surgical science of the world can give.

World-famous surgeons will accompany the American fighters. They will have the fullest equipment and the best facilities possible. It is admitted that the armies of the United States forces now in France have the best medical and surgical equipment of all. The medical service of the army is organized fully. The American Red Cross has enormous facilities, and is ready to supply any lack of equipment and materials.

United States Army surgeons served with the other armies, getting an intimate knowledge of the development of war surgery, and an important part of the medical work of the British and French forces in the great battle now on was aided by American physicians and surgeons. The American medical profession is splendidly represented in France, four-fifths of the most famous American surgeons being at the service of the Allies' fighting men.

"It is fitting at this time," said Major Finney, "to let the people in America know that our boys will lack no surgical care that can be given them. They will get as good care as any soldiers, and better than most. The best men of the profession in America are here to give their skill and ability. Our equipment is up to the mark, and our personnel of the best. I know the men with the organization, and know what they can do.

"I have today inspected the medical equipment of the first Americans to go to the French-British front and have found everything in tiptop condition. The experience of our surgeons in other armies and the ability of the best of the American medical profession should give reassurance to any anxious friends and relatives back home.

Nearly All Wounded Recover.

"It is also proper to remind the folks back home that the experience of the British Army shows that 95 per cent. of the men wounded return well to the battle front. Our record will be at least as good."

The experience of the officers has shown that the Americans have an excellent disregard of shellfire, so far as morale goes, but mind this gas more. The men who go have had the most training in gas warfare. On this point Major Finney said:

"It is well to bear in mind that a relatively small percentage of the soldiers in the gassed areas are gas casualties and that of those sent to the hospitals fully 90 per cent. recover. The Americans are in good physical shape, and any wounded should bear up well.

"I shall be very grateful if this message, expressed through THE NEW YORK TIMES, will assure American mothers and fathers that any sacrifice their sons may be called upon to make will be the smallest the best medical and surgical science can effect."

The American forces will make use of the French and British field hospitals while serving with the allied armies, and any wounded will be relayed to our base hospitals in this section and other parts of France. It is generally conceded that the medical section of the War Department at this time is the most completely organized of any section of the American expeditionary force. The Red Cross has enormous medical stores in this section and in Paris which can be called upon if needed.

War Crosses for Americans.

Four Americans have received the Croix de Guerre from the French commander for heroism in the Chemin des Dames sector, when the Germans drove against the Americans and French. One is Automobile Major Harold Estes, who was in the last American vehicle to leave. He stopped under a hot fire to rescue two French officers left alone on the field and took them to a hospital. The cross was also awarded to Lieutenant Ralph Hopkins, Private Jos Johnson, Estes's chauffeur, and Private Dodge, who were in the car.

The French officers speak in the highest terms of the Americans getting away material in the face of the German onslaught. They feared for a time that much material would fall into the hands of the Germans, but the American railhead forces, loading many hundred of cars in a few days, stuck until all the equipment was safely away.

Pershing's Auto Kills a Pig.

General Pershing's automobile, on a return trip from an inspection of the American front, struck a young pig, killing it. The pig was the sole possession of an aged woman impoverished by the war and was being raised for the market next Fall. Weeping profusely, she told the villagers of her misfortune and was comforted by being told "C'est la guerre." Meanwhile the American commander, knowing the condition of many of the good people in this romantic but suffering section of France, sent out an investigator, who reported the seriousness to the old woman of the loss of the pig. Consequently the old woman now has received 100 francs from General Pershing. In addition, she sold the pig to American soldiers at a good price. She doesn't know who killed the pig because General Pershing does not use the road by her house.

The General's action in paying for the pig were specially magnanimous, because it is the generally accepted rule of all armies that pigs and chickens are in the road at the owners' risk during war, which demands fast travel by automobiles.

Germans Hit a Food Cart.

After four days of effort and the expenditure of many hundreds of shells the Germans today blew to the four points of the compass a truckload of doughnuts and pies standing in the road a mile back of the American lines. Last Sunday the truck started for the front line with the Salvation Army's Easter gifts for the boys in the trenches. It broke down in sight of the enemy, who started a shelling which they kept up unsuccessfully Monday and Tuesday.

On Tuesday night a hundred soldiers volunteered and tried to rescue the pies and doughnuts, but retired before the shellfire and gas. This morning the boches got the range and ruined the apple pies completely. It was the only truck the Salvation Army had at that point, so today the Red Cross, Quartermaster and engineers all offered trucks to take another batch of doughnuts and pies to the front lines trench, and all are anxious for the honor.

The plight of the Easter doughnuts and pies was known all over the American sector, and the news of their loss today was received with the keenest regret all along the line.

An American officer stopped at the Salvation Army hut and gave the brave girls 20 francs to buy flour for more doughnuts. He accompanied the gift with a promise to make the boches pay dearly for their unforgivable vandalism.

The German observers were unusually active along the American line yesterday, eight balloons being up. It is believed that in that manner they got the range of the doughnut truck, all the ground around which is spotted with shellholes. Their fire stopped as soon as the doughnuts and pies were smashed.

Heroic British Wounded.

When the German drive against the allied front started, the American Army Medical Service sent a detachment of four surgeons to aid the British.

Today one of them reached the army headquarters. The other three are missing, and it is not known whether they were captured, wounded, or killed.

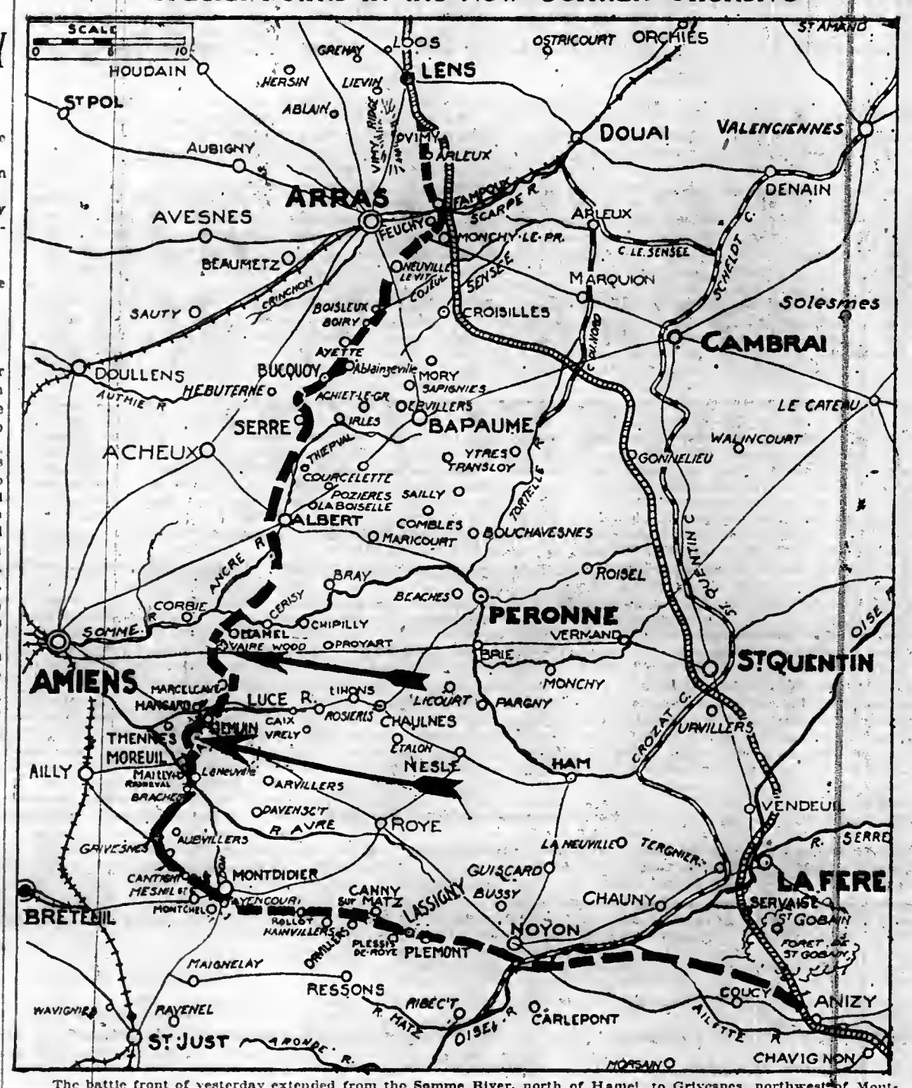
Striking stories of the Spartan spirit of the British wounded are told here. One is that there were 300 wounded in a field hospital, and there were accommodations for taking away only forty.

Surgeons went through to select the fortunate ones. Not one Englishman asked to be favored, but scores of them, when approached, pointed to others, saying, "Take them first."

Two medical officers of high rank came to the American front today to make an inspection of an advanced station. It was necessary for them to leave their automobile at a point two miles back and proceed on foot along a road in sight of the foe, in company with fifteen men.

The Germans got the range of the party, which had traveled not more than 100 yards when shrapnel began to fall about them. A moment later there was a spectacle of two world-famous surgeons spoiling their natty uniforms by lying flat in the muddy road. They soon beat a retreat to their car and speeded away, deciding that the inspection would have to wait.

Crucial Points in the New German Offensive



The battle front of yesterday extended from the Somme River, north of Hamel, to Grivesnes, northwest of Montdidier, a distance of about sixteen miles. Morisel, one of the towns taken by the Germans from the French, is across the River Avre from Moreuil. Mailly-Raineval, the other town, is indicated to the southwest.

The War Situation

BY THE MILITARY EXPERT OF THE NEW YORK TIMES.

The Germans, it appears, are about to launch another attack. After three days of relative idleness, spent both in recuperating from their first effort and in getting up reinforcements of both men and artillery, the battle which is to decide the fate of Europe is about to break out again with all the strength which the German command can put behind it. The heavy losses and the final check suffered by Germany in the last two weeks may have discouraged her leaders. It has not eliminated the necessity of Germany continuing the attack. She has started out with a definite object. She has thrown into the balance all of her reserves, which, however, have not been used up yet by more than half; she has heralded through her advance notices the great battle which she was going to wage and win. She has been checked, by weather if we credit the German press, but she must still go on.

To stop after all of the advertising her offensive has received will be to acknowledge her defeat. Her effort has cost her hundreds of thousands of her best effectives. She cannot explain away this sacrifice or justify it by the gain of the square miles of territory she has made. She must win or go down. World power or downfall is the issue. Out of this battle one or the other must emerge as the final result. Germany is not distracted by the situation in the east. Russia is no longer able to force a division of her forces. All that she has which can add to her fighting strength is concentrated on the western front and has been so concentrated for some weeks. It is Germany's final effort, launched with the full resources of the empire, carefully and thoroughly mobilized for this one attempt to win. If it fails, Germany must wait while the strength of the Allies continues to grow through the augmentation of America and then will come the end.

These are the undeniable facts which Germany must face and is now facing. Therefore she must go on regardless of cost, even though the chances of winning grow less with each passing day.

As the battle stands today it is a German defeat. But what will tomorrow bring? We have reason to believe the same as yesterday. Germany has clearly lost two important advantages; those of surprise and initiative. The Allies, at the time Germany launched her great attack, had not dared to concentrate against it. They were pinned to their positions not only until the attack was launched but until it had developed to the point where it was positively established that it was not a diversion to distract attention from some other quarter of the field. Only then could they begin to collect their reserves to meet the danger. Before this was completed, before Germany was matched, the Somme had been reached. But on the Somme, the British and French, although wearied by incessant fighting against a foe numerically their superior, stood their ground and brought Germany to a halt. But now there can be no surprise; the battleground is fixed. Germany must attack between certain limits which she herself has imposed. While the time of the attack may be somewhat indefinite, it can be fixed within thirty-six hours. There can be no surprise.

As to the initiative, its chief value lies in the ability to select the field of battle. Take this away and the value is lost; but for the reasons stated such selection is not for Germany to make now. It will do her no good to open the fight elsewhere. If she does she only scatters her efforts in such a way that nothing can be gained anywhere. Moreover, this is not the German way. Germany has begun every attack with a fixed objective. She has kept hammering at this objective until she either took it or was defeated. There is no flexibility either in the German military machine or in the German plan. They are both the products of the German mind, which is in itself inflexible. For these reasons Germany has lost the value of the initiative.

The Allies now know where, within relatively narrow limits, the attacks of the future must fall. They have already massed to meet them. Not only have they gathered their men but, with shorter lines of communication and with better transportation facilities, since Germany must bring up her supplies over the ground she herself laid waste, have rushed to the front vast supplies of both guns and ammunition. Germany, then, must rely solely on the brute strength of her men and on their ability man for man to outfight the British, the French, and the Americans. And man for man the German soldier is inferior to that of any of her enemies. The prospect of a German victory, therefore, does not seem to be particularly bright.

This was exemplified in the fighting of yesterday, and from this fighting we may draw a happy augury of the future. After a hurricane of artillery fire the German infantry went forward to the attack on the entire front between the Somme and the Avre, a distance of over ten miles. This front is the vital sector, since in order to press forward the point she has created at Montdidier she must, in order to be safe, widen out the sides. In the south, between the Avre and the Luce, her attack was completely repulsed. It gained nothing, recorded no advance. In the centre, about Marcelcave, the results were exactly the same. In the north, along the Somme, minor gains only resulted in the neighborhood of Hamel. These were of no importance up to the time the reports were filed. This was better than might have been looked for. It was to have been expected that the lines of battle would move slowly westward, a few hundred yards at a time. Thus have all the great battles of the war in the west gone, the attacks gradually dying out until the offensive was ended. But the first attempt at a renewal has made the check positive. Germany is still being outfought.

had impressed him very favorably. I do not know why, but I have an idea that yesterday was a great day for France and for the Allies.

"I asked Clemenceau for his impression of the military situation. He replied, 'An excellent impression—an impression of the very best.'

"'Do you authorize me to repeat that?' I asked. 'I authorize you,' he answered. 'The battle is not finished. It will still be hard, but we have parried the blow.'"

Hopeful Behind the Lines.

A straw blowing in the same general direction is reported in the change of feeling in the territory immediately behind the offensive. For example, Elsie de Wolfe, who was compelled by the German fire to move her hospital from Compiègne, returned yesterday and spent the day. She came back to Paris radiant with optimism over the change visible within a week. Water and gas were both cut off for ten days, but are now being connected, and Compiègne is getting ready for business again. The people there feel that the Germans have done their worst and that the French and British armies under General Foch will either push them back or destroy them.

The daily improving situation indicated above does not mean that danger and sacrifice on a huge scale are ended. Contrarywise, it is expected that the allied armies will be forced to endure other heavy blows, and the final victory is not expected until America gives the Allies the advantage in numbers.

MAY BE GREATEST EFFORT.

Washington Keenly Alive to New Offensive.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—Renewal of the German assaults against the British and French lines in Picardy today indicated to military observers here that the Germans, having gathered strength during the lull of the past few days, might now be ready to launch their greatest effort.

Some officers think that the allied commanders realize that only the first phase of the gigantic battle has passed, and that this probably accounts for the fact that no extensive counter movement has been undertaken as yet.

The previous record of the German high command argues against any possibility that it would be content with the minor strategic advantages already gained by their enterprise, or with the abandonment of its plans to put further attempts to force apart the French and British armies. The battle of Verdun continued for months before the Germans admitted that their object was unattainable. Preparations for the present drive were so much greater and the object sought was of so much more importance that officers here are confident that the German General Staff knew it was entering on a long, bitter struggle when the assault was planned.

RUSSIA'S RESOURCES TO BE DEVELOPED

Capital to Come from Saving on Army and Stoppage of Loan Interest Payments.

TO IMPORT MACHINERY

State Monopoly of Foreign Trade Planned—Petrograd and Moscow to be Electrified.

By ARTHUR RANSOME.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MOSCOW, April 3.—I had a long talk with N. Larin, an economist who was the initiator of the annulment of loans and has been steadily at work from the first preparing for a new industrial future for Russia. He is responsible for the preservation of the War Industry Committees, and it is due to his efforts that the leading organizers and leaders of industry under the old capitalist régime now enter the service of the Socialist Government in the development of Russia's resources.

These resources, as Larin points out, are as great as in the long run to make the German conquests negligible. Larin is a member and the guiding spirit of the Commission for Foreign Trade. He said:

"We do not know how long the Ukraine will remain separate from Russia now. However our relations with her will be, we must reckon with the possibility that, owing to German occupation of the Ukraine, we are deprived for some time of all the resources of the Donets Basin, excepting anthracite deposits in the east, which alone are not in the Ukrainian territory. In the long run this is not serious.

"In the course of the next five years it is hoped to complete works which will make the great industrial centres of Moscow and Petrograd less dependent on long-distance transport. Petrograd factories are to be electrified, using the waterfall between Lakes Ladoga and Onega and the waterfall on the River Volkhov. The work already has been begun. Moscow will be electrified on the basis of peat fuel from the enormous deposits near the neighborhood.

"You ask where we will get the money for these works, many of which were planned under the old Government, but were shelved from lack of funds? We get money for this by the cessation of two kinds of nonproductive expenditures; the milliards which were lent on old army expenses and the payment of interest on foreign loans will now be applied to the improvement of our industrial resources.

"Do you propose, in spite of the annulment of loans, to invite foreign capital?" I asked.

Larin replied:

"Certainly. But we want it not in money or in manufactured goods, and are willing to pay for it on the spot. For example, we don't want rails, but we want machines with which to make rails ourselves. We want tools, not products, from America, England, Germany, or whoever is willing to supply us. We are prepared to pay part in materials and the rest in gold. We propose to deal with foreign countries through a Central Buying Committee, so that there will be a state monopoly of foreign trade."

These are the main facts Larin told me. They are enough to show that Russia has not ceased to exist as a factor in the world.

America, as I have reason to know, has already realized this, and is preparing to deal with Russia on the Russian terms. Germany, of course, will find it advantageous to do the same. If we allow ourselves to be prevented by the Russian annulment of loans, we risk throwing sovereigns after pennies.

RUSSIA TO PAY BILLS HERE.

Delegation Coming to Liquidate War Orders, London Hears.

LONDON, April 4.—The Russian Government is sending a delegation to the United States to liquidate Russia's war orders with American firms and arrange future trade relations, according to an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Moscow today.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—Russia owes the United States $187,709,000 advanced for supplies which went forward while Russia still was in the war. A credit of $325,000,000 was advanced to the Russian Government, but only part of it had been used when payments were stopped.

Supplies in the process of manufacture for Russia were taken over by the American Government when Russia made peace with Germany.

RUSSIA TO FORM ARMY OF 1,500,000 MEN

Bolshevist Troops in Ukraine Face Capture—Jews Killed in Turkestan.

MOSCOW, April 2. (Associated Press.)—Russia will form an army of 1,500,000 men, not inferior in power and equipment to the Germans and Japanese, M. Podvoisky, Assistant Secretary of War, declared today at a conference in Moscow of the various military department heads. This would be the first step in arming the whole Russian nation. He said the army organization was impossible without the old officers, and outlined a measure to enlist the services of all Generals and publish their names, giving to citizens the right to state objections to any one.

M. Podvoisky reported progress in enlistments for the Red Army, which was satisfactory in some places. Since the beginning of the army organization two weeks ago, 11,000 have enlisted in Moscow and been properly equipped. Nizhni-Novgorod, Voronesh, Tula, Kaluga, Kostroma, Tchernigov, Kharkov, and many other cities report considerable numbers of recruits, many of whom are trained. The great handicap, he said, was lack of instructors.

Peace has been proposed to the Bolshevist Government by the Ukrainian Rada of Kiev, the non-Bolshevist organization, according to rumors current here. Although not confirming the report, a member of the Russian Government points out that the chances for peace are greater since Germany's reply regarding territory in the Ukraine offers ground for negotiation and an understanding on the territorial question.

It seems that the Rada is willing to make concessions and to modify its original demands, which included part of the Governments of Kursk and Voronesh.

The peace question is complicated by the existence of a Bolshevist Ukrainian Rada, which at present is at Taganrog, it having fled from Kiev. The Foreign Minister of this Government arrived recently in Moscow in connection with the impending negotiations.

Meanwhile, in order to insure possession of the Kiev-Vorojba Railway, the Germans have occupied Putivel, ten miles north of the railroad, in the Kursk Government. An energetic defense is being organized at Kharkov and Ekaterinoslav, but, owing to the insufficiency of the forces, it is virtually inevitable that the two towns will fall into the hands of the Germans. It is believed the Germans will continue hostilities until they have occupied Cholm, Volhynia, Podolia, and other provinces claimed as belonging to Ukraine.

Anti-Semitic agitation in Kiev, the Russkoje Utro says, is assuming acute form. When that city was captured by the Ukrainians, most of the inhabitants they shot were Jews. The same paper says that anti-Jewish riots have occurred in Turkestan. In Kokand 300 persons were killed and much property destroyed.

Lloyd George Visits Front; Baker Returns to Paris

LONDON, April 4.—Premier Lloyd George returned to London this morning from a visit to the front, says an official announcement tonight. The British Prime Minister accompanied M. Clemenceau, the French Premier. They visited Field Marshal Haig and Generals Pétain, Foch, Pershing, and Bliss.

ARMENIANS RECAPTURE ERZERUM FROM TURKS

Also Are Reported to be Holding Other Territories in the District.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, April 4.—An Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Moscow states that an Armenian corps together with Armenian volunteer detachments has recaptured Erzerum from the Turks and is holding other territories in the district. Opinion here is that, while that news may or may not be correct it seems certain that in that corner of the Russian Empire resistance to the surrender of Brest-Litovsk is taking serious form.

The Georgians in particular appear determined not to give up their border territory to the Turks, and in Moscow itself and in Great Russia the yielding mood is less prevalent than it was. American Ambassador Francis has done good work by remaining at the seat of the Russian Government. A large French military mission is also there, providing the Bolsheviki with the nucleus of military assistance if they care to use it, and the French Ambassador left Finland a week ago and returned to Great Russia.

In English political circles it is being asked why nothing is heard of the similar return of British agencies. The Daily Chronicle says:

"To re-establish any effective cooperation with Russia is admittedly most difficult. The best framed efforts may fail. But that is no reason why we should not make them. One certain road to failure is to make no efforts at all."

After the conclusion of peace with Turkey, Russia evacuated Turkish Armenia, which the Turks reoccupied. They began a fresh series of massacres, and the Armenians undertook the organization of an army to defend themselves.

ALLIED OFFICERS INSULTED BY FINNS

American and Briton Threatened with Violence by Officers of White Army.

BELGIAN ENVOY WOUNDED

German Army of 40,000 Men Landed —Russians at Hango Blow Up Their Own Warships.

STOCKHOLM, April 4.—The American and British army officers who recently visited General Mannerheim, the Finnish White Guard leader, upon orders from their Stockholm Legations, were insulted and threatened with personal violence by Finnish officers in a hotel restaurant in Vaea, according to a report from this war correspondent in Finland of a Swedish newspaper.

The correspondent, who occupied an adjoining table, says that the two visiting officers who figured in the incident, wearing the army uniforms of their rank, entered the restaurant at a time when it was crowded with Finnish officers, mainly from a unit which had served in Germany. The visitors had scarcely had time to order their meal before a Finnish officer approached the table and told them their presence was not desired. He withdrew, however, when a pass from General Mannerheim was shown to him.

Later another Finn asked the orchestra to play "Die Wacht am Rhein." Everybody arose, the American and the Englishman, plainly desiring to avoid threatened violence, also arising. Another Finnish officer, continues the correspondent, swaggered to the table and said:

"It is our principle not to sit in the same room with Englishmen."

The American replied that he was an American, not an Englishman, but the Finn responded:

"It's all the same; you have just two minutes to get out of the house."

The visitors, who had finished their meal, left the room accompanied by insults from the Finnish officers.

M. Sario, the White Government's Foreign Minister and a noted pro-German, sat at a nearby table, the correspondent says, and made no effort to protect the men, although they were traveling on a special diplomatic pass from his own Government.

Americans and Swedes who have recently been in Finland declare the incident given is typical of the existing feeling among the great majority of the Finns with whom they came in contact. German doctrines are being spread among the White Army forces, especially by Finnish soldiers who have returned from Germany and have been appointed commissioned or noncommissioned officers in General Mannerheim's army.

According to a dispatch from Vasa, dated yesterday, the White Guards captured the eastern part of Tammerfors yesterday morning, despite desperate resistance, and captured a thousand prisoners and a quantity of locomotives, wagons, and provisions.

Reports from Swedish correspondents contain stories of terrible atrocities committed by Red Guards. The bodies of scores of White Guards have been found mutilated in indescribable fashion. One American told The Associated Press correspondent that he had seen fourteen bodies which had been treated in a horrible manner. Many of the White Guards, especially officers, carry capsules containing poison for use in the event of their capture.

Red Guards also accuse the White Guards of atrocities. Correspondents with General Mannerheim's army admit that the Red leaders are regarded as murderers and are shot when captured. It, as is frequently the case, they are found in possession of dumdum bullets these are used in executing them.

PETROGRAD, April 3, (Associated Press.)—The Bolshevist Commissary for Finnish Affairs reports that M. d'Estres, the Belgian Minister to Russia, has been wounded by White Guards, or Government troops, while attempting to pass into the rebel lines.

Several Russian warships, including four submarines, in the harbor of Hango were blown up by their commanders, who feared capture by the Germans. The Mayor of Sukhum-Kale reports that the Black Sea fleet torpedo boats are bombarding and looting towns along the coast.

BERLIN, April 4, (via London.)—The War Office today issued the following bulletin:

Eastern Theatre.—In agreement with the Finnish Government German troops have landed on the Finnish mainland.

LONDON, April 4.—The force landed by the Germans at Hango, Finland, as reported in a Berlin official statement, comprises 40,000 men under General Sasnitz, according to the Central News correspondent at Copenhagen, telegraphing Wednesday.

The artillery equipment of the force is 300 guns, with 2,000 machine guns.

PEACE TALK IN VIENNA.

Report That Wilson and Lloyd George Wanted It, but Clemenceau Opposed.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, April 4.—A dispatch to The Daily Express from Amsterdam quotes the Vienna Neue Freie Presse as saying today:

"Before the great western offensive Lloyd George and President Wilson declared that they were in favor of discussing peace terms, but Clemenceau vetoed any such suggestion, and finally caused them to adopt his standpoint of war to the end."

The Government paper prudently adds:

"It is impossible to confirm this report absolutely, but there is considerable truth in it."

Count Czernin stated in his recent speech that Clemenceau had suggested opening peace negotiations. This Clemenceau promptly denied.

KAISER CONSULTS ON CZERNIN SPEECH

which Czernin thinks will become absolutely imperative after the war, we hope that this idea will result in something tangible, but we fear that empty exchequers will not prevent the nations from making new war preparation if the basis of peace does not create a conciliatory spirit among nations."

Reventlow, writing in the Deutsche Tageszeitung, is anxious for details regarding Czernin's assertion in his former speech that at the moment he spoke in Vienna President Wilson knew his sentiments in Washington. He says:

"Wilson soon afterward made a speech, but his reply was not encouraging. He said he had not received any communication and was quite satisfied with the honor of belonging to the general audience of Czernin. Now after three months Czernin explains the incident.

"We cannot help regarding this explanation with some curiosity and believe that it does not really explain anything. Whatever Czernin says about or against Wilson cannot cover his mistake of making any offer to the American President, no matter from which side we view the affair.

"Even Czernin's adhesion to Count Hertling's view as expressed in the speech of Feb. 25, in which the German Chancellor declared that Wilson's four basic principles might serve as a basis for peace negotiations cannot make us alter our opinion.

"Since Feb. 25 many types and conditions have changed fundamentally. Meanwhile Wilson himself has expressed uncompromising hostility against the Central Powers.

"What Hertling said at that time he couldn't say today any more. Thus it is absolutely out of place and time if Czernin attempts to deny, when everything has changed, an attitude toward Wilson's speech which Hertling considered tactically correct more than a month ago.

"We should like to know more about Clemenceau's peace offer. We fear there is some connection between it and Czernin's speech. Perhaps Wilson considered Vienna the better field in which to drop his seed grain of universal peace. This needs further explanation. We should say that Austria-Hungary was not alone concerned as to the qualities which this seed grain should possess. Before it was dropped in the Vienna field her ally should first have been consulted. If we might find this seed grain outgrowing all the cabbage."

ALLIES DISCOUNT CZERNIN THREATS

Speech Is Characterized in London as a Piece of Austrian Bluff.

LONDON, April 4.—Count Czernin, in spite of the marked change toward the bellicose in his latest speech, still speaks in softer accents than have been heard from Berlin, the morning newspapers say in their comment on the Austro-Hungarian Foreign Minister's address to a deputation of the Vienna Municipal Council.

The Daily Mail characterizes the speech as "Austrian bluff," and says that Count Czernin's assertion that the blockade of Germany is broken, the East will not fill the hungry stomachs of Germans and Austrians. It adds that the issue must be decided by blood and iron in the battle that is now being pitched.

The Daily Telegraph thinks that, coming at this moment it does, the speech will command but a small share of the attention which it would have received three weeks ago. It says that some of Count Czernin's statements and professions require and will doubtless soon receive notice from Entente statesmen and the United States.

The speech, The Morning Post says, may be regarded as the customary peace offensive ensuing upon the temporary defeat of the war offensive of the Central Powers. It asserts that the speech is addressed particularly to the President of the United States and seems to be designed to impress President Wilson with the idea that the right attack was forced upon the Central Powers by the refusal of the Allies to discuss terms of peace. The Post concludes:

"Count Czernin apparently is making another attempt to detach the United States from the Allies, possibly with a view of saving Bulgaria and Turkey from a declaration of war by America. Judging by reports received of the Austrian Minister's overtures, we cannot but regard them as rather clumsily conceived."

The Austrian Foreign Minister says The Daily News, discriminated between the pacific character of his own Imperial master and that of another Imperial master, "and in so doing has touched the real root of this devastating struggle." The paper urges Count Czernin to preach in Berlin his gospel in favor of a new world organization based on disarmament. It adds that before the world which President Wilson envisages can be inaugurated there must be a change of heart in Berlin.

BACKS CLEMENCEAU DENIAL.

Terse Reply to Czernin Was Exact Truth, Says Vestnitch.

PARIS, April 4.—Premier Clemenceau told the exact truth in his terse declaration that "Czernin lied" in saying that the French Premier had inquired through an intermediary whether Austria-Hungary was ready to negotiate, Dr. M. R. Vestnitch, Serbian Minister to France, solemnly affirmed in a speech at the American Club luncheon today.

When asked if there were no fire under this extraordinary smoke, Dr. Vestnitch replied:

"Not a spark."

Philip Gibbs's Narrative of the Great Battle

dumps are in mud, through which the British struggled in the Winter of 1916, and their transport is wallowing in ruts and old wrecked trenches.

All that spells delay in their plans and loss of life. For they are not resting quietly in this waste below dripping skies. The British guns are harassing all this open country with heavy shells by day and night. British airplanes are out with tons of bombs keeping the important cross-roads under deadly fire, so that the German transport has had to abandon some main roads and take to wild tracks across Crater Land, bombing bodies of men in the open or in column of march, pouring high explosives down on their ammunition dumps, railheads, aerodromes, and assembly places.

Work of the Airplanes.

There is terror for the enemy over these fields in daylight and darkness, for the British flying men have gone out in squadrons to scatter death and destruction among them. This work has reached fantastic heights of horror for the German troops under the menace of it. There have been times when, I believe, the British have had as many as 300 airplanes up at one time. One squadron alone on one night dropped six tons of bombs over enemy concentrations, and each man went out six times. Another squadron went out four times in one night, and was bombing for eleven hours.

When the enemy was advancing in masses the British flying men flew as low as 100 feet, dropping bombs among them and firing into them with machine guns. They attacked German patrols of cavalry and scattered them and machine-gunned trenches full of men, batteries in action and transport crowding down narrow roads. They fought German scouts and crushed them, and there are several cases in which they fought German airplanes at night, so that it was like a fight between vampire bats up there where the clouds were touched by moonlight.

The enemy retaliates as best he can, and suddenly into the quiet villages behind the British lines comes the noise of bursting shells, like a salvo of heavy guns, as in villages where I was on Tuesday. Peasants driving their carts or children playing in the roadways are killed or wounded by thunderbolts out of the gray sky.

It is not a pleasant kind of war. The cruelty of it all sickens one, and the nightmare of it darkens one's spirit. The enemy is as ruthless of civilian life as of any other, and in addition to his bombing of innocent places, ranges his long guns on remote little towns where old market women are selling their poultry and girls are cleaning their shop windows and war until then had seemed far away.

"The Men Who Have Come Back."

Yesterday I went again among some of the men who have come back, and all the time as I moved among them and saw them marching the last lap and settling into billets in an old French village and greeting comrades whom they had given up as lost and prefacing the story of their own adventures with queer guet of laughter, as men who have seen strange things and had amazing luck, those words kept ringing through my head and heart, "The men who have come back, the men who have come back," like some old song.

Yes, there were some more of them, and one among them whom I desired to see most among these men who have come back from the great peril in ten days of battle. They were men of Sussex and Hampshire and many other counties, and they marched with their transport on that last lap from the battle lines through a country like their own southern shires of England. Sweat poured down their faces after coming down the long trail with the enemy against them, and they walked stiffly with dragging feet, but most of them looked wonderfully hard and fit, and they came whistling down the winding lanes which led to villages with Norman gateways and high gabled houses and little old churches and market places of quaint architecture. They dumped their packs in the market place, tethered their horses next to the church, and searched around for their billets.

It was a good picture for an artist. Around a table in a café gathered a group of engineers who had been making counterattacks as well as trenches, and blowing up Germans as well as bridges, and holding gaps in the line and acting as machine gunners and riflemen, as well as doing their own job of field companies. They had lost their transport by accident on the crowded road. They had lost their commanding officer and other good comrades, but now the men who came back would be able to rest awhile after that long trail back from the chalk quarry, near the old front lines where I saw them last before the battle.

Sleep Between Bites.

With the few francs in their pockets they had bought teacups and a coffee pot, which would do for tea; and they had some margarine in a tin and some ration bread, and now they sat down for the first time to a mess table again, but the billeting officer, a young Scotsman, slept like a tired child between his bites of bread and butter, waking up with a start when a brother officer jerked his elbow, and the Captain drowsed in the middle of a story of how a transport was destroyed, and the Lieutenant of engineers, with a bullet mark down his cheek, did not remember the day of the week on which anything had happened because the nights had merged into the days, and there was no sleep and no reckoning of time in the wild nightmare of rearguard actions.

It was in a village crowded with French and British troops, clumps of khaki and bouquets of blue all mingled in the market square, that I met the man I most wanted to meet. He was a gunner officer lost in the turmoil of battle for twelve days past, and now among the men who have come back. There was a greeting of "Hullo, old man," which is the usual greeting of those who meet after this battle, and then laughing stories of a hot time and field guns fighting eight days a rearguard action, killing Germans at close range with open sights, galloping off to take up new positions, unlimbering again for another action, nearly surrounded a dozen times, but back at last.

I have a colored rag as a souvenir of that battery's action, and I shall keep it in safe custody. It is a French tricolor scarf given to this brigade of artillery by a French regiment as a token of esteem for valor. It is a good bit of color beside me as I write and a reminder of gallant men, those who have come back, and not forgetting those good comrades who will never come back.

DENOUNCES SECRECY IN AIRCRAFT WORK

Aeronautical Society's Committee Assails Methods at Washington.

LIBERTY MOTOR ATTACKED

The Situation, the Committee Asserts, Is Fraught "with the Greatest Danger."

The military airplane program of the United States was assailed last night at a public meeting of the Aeronautical Society of America in the Engineering Societies' Building. A report by the society's Investigating Committee and speeches by members of the committee and officers of the organization were the mediums through which the society's opinions were promulgated.

The Chairman of the Investigating Committee is Leon Cammen, who besides being Vice President of the society is a member of the New York Academy of Sciences and an associate editor for the American Society of Mechanical Engineers. The other members are Thomas A. Hill, a lawyer and a former President of the society; Charles Hewell, Vice President and a manufacturer. While both report and speeches admittedly quoted generously from newspaper articles, discussions in Congress and testimony before committees thereof, much of which has been made public, the full sources of its information were not disclosed nor were the precise scope and character of its investigation revealed.

In a preamble the report told that the committee was appointed in August, 1917, and that soon thereafter it learned that the execution of the aeronautical program was being "diverted into paths where the possibility of success was distinctly imperiled." It went on to say that the committee found the Government was issuing reports which it was compelled to regard as untrue and which it at first supposed were inteoded to mislead the enemy. The document spoke of a growing lack of coordination between the engineering and production departments, deplored a danger of American aviators being sent up in inferior machines, and explained that the report was made public because efforts to bring it before the proper officers of the Government had not been successful.

Conclusions of the Committee.

The report then summarized the committee's conclusions as follows:

"Practically all statements issued by the officers of the Government with respect to the execution of the aircraft program must be absolutely neglected as being untrustworthy, as representing the situation in a misleading and overoptimistic manner, and as sometimes containing matter indicating the technical ignorance of those who compose such statements.

"The very vigorous ceosorship over all matters connected with the exeeution of the aircraft program has been of no military value whatsoever, as it failed to conceal from the enemy that which ought to have been concealed, and at the same time precluded effective co-operation with the Government on behalf of the American engineering profession. In fact, the committee ventures to express its conviction that the only purpose of the rigor of the censorship was to preclude the country from finding out the character of the official statements.

"Accidents in training, while not perhaps excessively numerous, have been of such a nature as to indicate that in part they were preventable, and again in part were due to improper organization of flying and improper handling of machines.

"The recruiting of men for the flying and nonflying services has been such as to create a vast amount of uncertainty in the minds of our young people, and has been lately entirely discontinued with the grave possibility that men who would make first-class fliers are being deflected into other classes of service where they may not be as useful, and are lost to the aircraft service.

"The state of research in the country is such that at the time when the enemy is bending every effort towards producing better, faster, and bigger machines, the American inventive genius is left unutilized, with the result that delays occur through ignorance of conditions, and no improvements are made either in the planes now being produced or in those which may be expected to be produced for the program of 1919. In other words, even the program of the next year is imperiled unless steps are radically taken to combat this evil.

"The production of the fighting planes for the front is lagging through lack of cooperation between the engineering, procurement, and production departments, which is due to their failure to understand how a vast production of airplanes should be organized.

"The entire system of production is such that delays will grow with the rate of production, and the program lacks flexibility to such an extent that no really large production from this country can be expected unless the entire system is basically changed.

"The Liberty motor is doubtless a good design basically, but has been largely discredited by exaggerated claims and untrue reports about its performance, made by high officials of the Government. The production of the motor has been delayed in a useless and unnecessary manner, and the details of its design cannot be considered to be definitely established even now.

"From all information available, it appears further that while the low-compression, low-altitude type may be considered as being developed to such an extent that with proper effort it could be turned over to standardized production in a few weeks, the development of the more important high-altitude type is still in its infancy. It is progressing at a discouragingly slow rate mainly because to conceal the exaggerations made in the early reports, the officials concerned therein do not dare to state the present true situation, and thereby secure the co-operation of men who could be of service.

"On the whole, it appears that less than 5 per cent. of the production facilities of the country are utilized, and those facilities which are utilized have been in many cases neither properly selected nor handled in a manner conducive to the highest efficiency of production.

Through fourteen closely typewritten pages the committee elaborated upon its findings.

It criticised the publicity about the Liberty motor, disputing statements by Secretary of War Baker and others, and insisting that the public had been misled. Turning to the topic of censorship, it maintained that the effect had been to deprive designers of the Liberty motor, for example, of the value of expert criticism through concealing what they were doing, even from engineering experts. "There are even now," the report said, "in the Liberty motor features which would not stand the open criticism of American engineers, but this criticism is stifled (to whose benefit?) by the fact that nobody but those who can be 'politically trusted' are permitted to see the motor."

Discusses Training Accidents.

Under the heading "Accidents in Training," the report said that with the whole State of Texas to fly in and only a few hundred men to take the air "there is absolutely no justification for failing to prepare such a schedule that the men who are up in the air at the same time should be at least twenty miles apart, and hence that there is no excuse for deaths from collisions while in training."

Accidents due to ignition of gas tanks are deplored, the investigators maintaining that such troubles in the tanks of training machines are "crimes." The report charges further that the acceptances and extensive use of defective goggles show that the inspection of apparatus is inefficient.

Research and invention are lagging, the report says because both the Signal Corps and the Advisory Committee for Aeronautics are hampered by inadequate facilities.

Next the committee turned to the question of standardization and production, saying that before the United States entered into the war several small airplane companies had been doing fine work on a small scale.

"When the United States entered the war," the report continues, "these companies offered their facilities to the Government. The Investigating Committee knows of cases where such companies were told that they could work only as sub-contractors to the Curtiss Aeroplane and Motor Corporation, and when they went to the Curtiss Company they were told that they could secure such contracts only by paying the Curtiss Company a commission somewhat in excess of 1 per cent. and further by recognizing the validity of the Curtiss patents, some of which are now under litigation, and some others not considered as valid by American builders.

"Mr. Howard E. Coffin was asked by the directors of the society to explain why a company could make planes as sub-contractor to the Curtiss Company but not as a direct contractor to the United States Government. Mr. Coffin startled the directors of the society by declaring that he was entirely ignorant of the existence of such a situation, and that in fact the Aircraft Board did not even possess a list of such companies. The Investigating Committee believes that this indicates utter ignorance of the manufacturing resources of the country on the part of an institution, of which the only excuse for existence is its ability to advise the Government about such resources."

Sees Danger in the Situation.

In conclusion the report said:

"The investigating committee desires to report most respectfully that it has found a situation fraught with the gravest danger.

"It has found throughout the planning of the aeronautical program an entirely un-American spirit of boastfulness, willingness to tell things as they are not, lack of system, fear of tackling a big subject in a really big way.

"In a country which built the Panama Canal, the tremendous transcontinental system, the greatest subway systems in the world, which found new ways for the transmission of electrical energy, where a fifty or hundred million dollar undertaking in private life finds barely a mention on the inside pages of a newspaper, the execution of the aeronautical program was handled in the way of a wild-cat, stock-selling campaign.

"Real achievement does not need fake advertising, and where there is fake advertising, it is usually idle to look for great achievement.

"The aeronautical program and its execution must be reorganized from top to bottom, especially at the top.

"The tendency of war is to require equipment on an unprecedented scale. It is the belief of your committee that the developmeet of aeronautical affairs is only at the beginning and that this country may be called upon to contribute by this time, 1919, something like 75,000—perhaps 100,000 airplanes."

The speakers at the meeting were President Baker of the club, who presided; Mr. Cammen, Mr. Hill, and Representative John Q. Tilson of Connecticut, a member of the Military Affairs Committee of the House, who deplored failure to produce ordnance and a tendency to seek the best always, rather than "hold fast to that which is good."

HAYS DEFENDS CRITICISM.

Can't Understand Men in High Authority Who Condemn It.

DENVER, Col., April 4.—Although unity at home is essential to winning the war, constructive criticism is necessary, Will Hays, Chairman of the Republican National Committee, declared here tonight in an address at a public reception tendered by State Republican leaders.

"I would want to assume that such criticism is desired in Washington," said Mr. Hays. "I can't begin to understand the mental processes of men in high authority in this awful crisis who wish otherwise, and any refusal or neglect to use every possible efficient instrument that will help win this terrible war would be most reprehensible. There will be an awful accounting demanded for such action. I am sure that those who offer constructive criticism, according to their patriotic judgment will also be fair enough and candid enough to commend when there is ground for commendation.

"The Republican Party will strive with every means in its power to win the war and to win the war now. In this supreme crisis its patriotic, loyal members will strive, fight, give, and die until we have a conclusive peace by victory and not by compromised bargaining."

TEUTON PRESSURE ON DUTCH

Berlin Unwilling to Renew Coal and Iron Agreement.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, April 4.—The Correspondenx Agency announces that Germany is unwilling to renew the economic agreement with Holland for coal, iron, and other commodities. This agreement expired at the end of March, and Holland proposed to renew it.

Germany is doubtless trying to bring pressure to bear on Holland and will probably ask concessions in return for the requisitioning of ships by the Allies.

The Telegraaf asks editorially what cause the Dutch Government can possibly have for risking breadless days by not immediately accepting grain from America and if the Government is acting under pressure from Germany.

WAR HOSPITAL AT MINEOLA.

Fair Grounds Have Been Taken Over by the Government.

MINEOLA, L. I., April 4.—The fair grounds at Mineola will be turned over to the Government for a convalescent hospital, it was announced today. The transfer was agreed to at a conference between members of the Queens-Nassau Agricultural Society and Major C. H. Smith of the Quartermaster's Department at Camp Mills.

The fair grounds have been used as an aviation field. They comprise sixty-three acres, and when the present buildings are remodeled will house 10,000 patients. The convalescent soldiers will come from army cantonments for the present, but later those from over the seas may be placed there.

The turning over of the grounds to the Government will mean that for the first time in seventy-seven years the fall fair will not be held. This usually attracted between forty and fifty thousand persons daily. The regular driving matinées will be held, however, more as a sort of amusement for the convalescent soldiers. No stables will be quartered on the ground, however.

THREE MORE FLIERS KILLED.

Lieut. Carl E. Ekstrand of Brooklyn Meets Death in Texas.

HOUSTON, Tex., April 4.—Lieutenants R. F. Ives of Chicago, Carl E. Ekstrand of Brooklyn, N. Y., and Russell H. Dwiggins of Waynetown, Ind., were killed in aviation accidents at Ellington Field here today.

Second Lieut. Ives was killed this morning when his machine went into a tail spin and fell. Lieutenant Otto Epp, who was in the same machine, was slightly injured.

Lieutenants Ekstrand and Dwiggins were killed this afternoon. They were flying together when their plane fell.

Ellington Field is used exclusively by American fliers.

POINT PLEASANT TRAINS RESTORED.

Effective Monday, April 8, weekday Pennsylvania Railroad trains leaving New York (Pennsylvania Station) 9:04 A. M., (Hudson Terminal) 9:00 A. M., for Point Pleasant, and leaving Point Pleasant 7:48 A. M. for New York, will be restored.—Advt.

MARINES HELD BACK, BRITTEN CHARGES

Illinois Member Criticises War Department for Not Rushing Them to France.

LAYS IT TO JEALOUSY

Sherley Reminds Him That He Once Opposed Sending Any Troops to Europe.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—Representative Fred A. Britten of Illinois, a Republican member of the Naval Affairs Committee, discussing the war situation in the House today, charged that the marines were not sent to Europe because of "some military clique, jealousy, or prejudice." His attack precipitated a brief, but bitter, debate, in which he was denounced for his attitude in the early days of the war.

Mr. Britten charged that 30,000 seasoned and well trained marines were being held in camps in this country and doing police duty while every week the War Department was sending only partly trained men to France. These men, he said, had to be trained in France, whereas the 30,000 marines could be put into the front ranks without an instant's delay. For weeks the attitude of the War Department in refusing to send marines abroad has been the subject of serious discussion in the House Naval Affairs Committee. Secretary Daniels has been questioned on the subject and informed members of the committee that he has offered the services of the marines to the War Department, but had received no explanation for the delay in ordering the marines into active service.

Representative Sherley and others replied to Mr. Britten, insisting that it was not the province of Congress to direct military movements. Mr. Sherley called attention to the resolution offered by Mr. Britten after war was declared, to the effect that no enlisted man or National Guard unit should be sent out of the country without the consent of the individual.

"The gentleman has no warrant in making the statement as to cliques and charging that there are certain men willing to trifle with the honor and safety of our troops," said Mr. Sherley. "Again I congratulate him that his son has carried him so far as to want to have certain of our fighting units sent to France."

Points to German Claims.

"The uncontradicted German claim that 75,000 prisoners, 900 cannon, large quantities of war munitions, and tremendous destruction of life and property has accrued from their stupendous drive in Northern France," said Mr. Britten, "has caused me to wonder just how much material aid America is now giving to her allies, and to ponder over 'what might have been,' had we not been sadly handicapped by the lack of vision which permitted three years to go by before any military preparations were made for the conflict, which must have been inevitable to those who were following international affairs.

"With our allies in such a desperate struggle for life and existence as the world has never before known and France crying to the heavens for more men, more men, and an official announcement from London that many of the partially trained men in the American Army will be immediately assigned to French and British units, I think the time opportune to say to the House that because of some military jealousy, some prejudice, or the action of some military clique, thousands of the most finished human mechaeisms of war, thoroughly prepared for every eventuality, are literally begging with outstretched arms for an opportunity to blaze the way in France for the Stars and Stripes, but whose prayers fall on deaf ears.

"I am referring to the United States Marine Corps, the greatest fighting aggregation for its size in all the world, and on whom the last Congress appropriated more than $53,000,000, and whose appropriation in the navy bill now on the calendar for the next fiscal year is more than $95,000,000.

"The corps whose motto 'First to Fight!' is known around the world, but to which will soon have to be added the word 'mosquitos,' first to fight mosquitoes at Paris Island, Quantico, and other marine training camps where many of these splendid young men have had from six to nine months of the most intensive training known to military minds.

"This is not a War Department war, nor is it a Democratic war, but a conflict in which all of the resources, whether they be physical, financial, political or otherwise, of this country should be utilized to their utmost, and a question whether Congress will idly by while the War Department is keeping our most efficient volueteer fighting men at home, and at the same time drafting into the service thousands of sons, brothers, and fathers whose military value may be far below that of the average marine, who practically fights his way into a service where quick action is promised.

"According to a statement made by Major Gen. George Barnett, commandant of the Marine Corps, when he appeared before the Committee on Naval Affairs recently, there is nothing that will more seriously affect the morals of his corps for many years to come than to prevent them from performing a solemn duty they so sincerely desire."

BRITISH TRADE WAR PLANS.

Overseas Department at Work Under Sir A. D. Steel-Maitland.

LONDON, March 10. (Correspondence of The Associated Press.)—The British Empire's plans for the trade war that most people believe will follow the present armed conflict are gradually taking definite form. A feature of its preparations is the creation of the Overseas Trade Department, under which sixteen trade commissioners will operate in the various countries of the empire, and a number of commercial attachés will work in foreign countries. The House of Commons has just made an appropriation of $10,000 for preliminary expenses of the department.

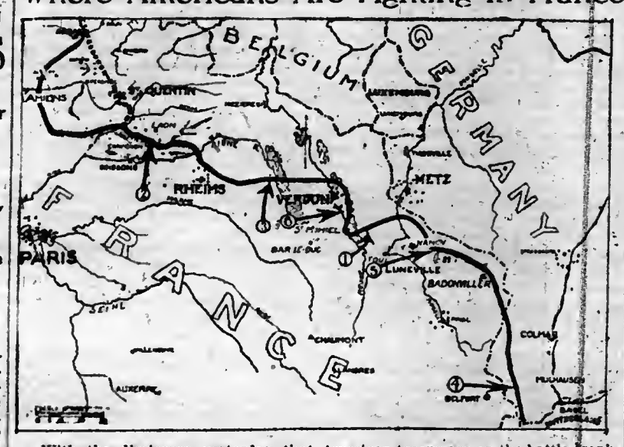
This department, which has been quietly reconstructing the whole Government commercial business throughout the world, is in charge of Sir A. D. Steel-Maitland, a social and constitutional reform advocate of Birmingham.

The new organization is controlled by a joint committee of the Foreign Office, which corresponds to the American State Department, and the Board of Trade, which has much the same functions as the American Department of Commerce. The reason for joint control by these particular departments is that in foreign countries trade questions and political issues are often interwoven.

The commercial attachés will supervise and link up the work of a reformed consular service and supply important reports embodying trade and financial surveys of the countries in which they are situated.

The pay of the Trade Commissioners in the countries of the empire will be as follows: First grade, $5,000 to $6,000 a year; second grade, $3,500 to $4,500 a year; third grade, $2,500 to $3,500 a year.

Where Americans Are Fighting in France



With the disclosure yesterday that American troops are on the battle front just south of Verdun, it is made known that soldiers from the United States are now at six points of the line, held hitherto by the French. This is aside from the sector east of Nancy, where Americans first began training.

The six points are, in the order in which our men entered active service on these fronts: (1) East of St. Mihiel; (2) In the Alsne sector; (3) In the Champagne; (4) In Alsace; (5) On the Lorraine front east of Luneville; (6) On the Meuse heights, south of Verdun.

AMERICANS IN SECTOR SOUTH OF VERDUN

the numbers and degree of efficiency of the American forces on the continent. Adequate measures have been taken, and from the advent of the new enemy no turn of war's fortune, not even any serious obstacle in the way of a definite German victory, is apprehended.

"Intsresting information about the Americans in France has been obtained from French prisoners captured recently near Tshure. They say the American preparations are most extensive and the troops are settling down as if they intended to remain for years. They are laying down their own railroads and building telegraph and telephone lines, possibly with the ultimate view of doing a profitable business after the war.

"French prisoners describe eloquently the solidly built and comfortably equipped American barracks and make a point that the Americans keep pretty much aloof from their French allies. Thus, the Americans remain strangers in the land and the French have no real intercourse with them."

PERSHING RECEIVES BELGIAN GRAND CROSS

King Albert Confers the Order of Leopold Upon Him—Also Honors Colonel Boyd.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—According to news received from Havre by the Belgian Legation here, General Pershing has received the Grand Cross of the Order of Leopold, which is the highest order that the King of the Belgians can bestow.

Colonel Boyd, Military Attaché of the American Embassy in Paris, has received the cross of officer of the same order. The insignia, together with the Belgian war cross, has been presented to the American officers by King Albert in person.

GERMAN IS LYNCHED BY AN ILLINOIS MOB

Had Made Speeches to Miners on Socialism and Uttered Disloyal Sentiments.

POLICE TRIED TO SAVE HIM

Mob Stormed City Hall to Get Him and Then Hanged Him After Wrapping Him in an American Flag.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., April 4.—Robert P. Prager, a German born Socialist, was dragged from the basement of the Collinsville, Ill., City Hall, twelve miles from St. Louis, tonight by leaders of a mob of from three to four hundred men, marched barefooted to a point one-half mile outside of the Collinsville limits and lynched. He was accused of having made disloyal remarks to Maryville, Ill., miners.

His capture by the mob and lynching came after he had been hidden by the Collinsville police among a lot of tiling in the basement of the City Hall while Mayor Siegel made a speech to the mob from the steps of the City Hall, pleading with his hearers to give the prisoner the right of trial. The police previously had rushed the mob and captured Prager while he was being marched through the main street of the city with an American flag tied about him.

Twice before the mob wreaked its vengeance on the man it appeared that he would have escaped from it—once when he fled from Maryville to Collinsville, a distance of four miles, and again when the police, after hiding their prisoner, told the mob he had been spirited out of the city. But the mob leaders each time took up the search for their victim, and stayed with it until they found him.

The lynching took place on the old National Road, leading toward St. Louis. While police were rushing toward the scene in an automobile from East St. Louis, Prager, who was a baker and miner, 32 years old, was strung up to a tree. The lynching took place about 12:30 o'clock Friday morning. The body was found a few minutes later and the Coroner of Edwardsville, Madison County, notified.

The trouble started at Maryville. Prager was employed there in the Bruno Bakery. Recently he made application to join the Miners' Union, and sought work in the coal mines. He said he had worked as a miner in Germany.

While his application for membership in the union was pending Prager is said to have harangued some of the miners on socialism, in the course of his remarks he made statements they interpreted as disloyal and pro-German. When a recent wave of patriotism swept over many Illinois towns the miners and others at Maryville organized a committee to deal with Prager.

The committee was to have taken him in custody yesterday afternoon. Prager heard of it, and fled to Maryville.

The committee followed and searched for him. He was found in a house here in which he formerly resided, and dragged into the street. His shoes were stripped off, and members of the mob began pulling off his clothes when some one produced an American flag. It was wrapped about him and tied.

With the prisoner barehcaded and stumbling every few steps a parade was started up the main street of the city. It had proceeded several blocks when a policemen led a squad of other officers in a dash into the crowd. They captured the prisoner. He was hurried to the police station, members of the mob following. Later he was retaken by the mob.

GIVE CANADIANS $500,000.

Token of Appreciation of Their Fight Voted by Red Cross.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—Announcement was made tonight that, in recognition of "the part Canada has played in the war for human liberty," the War Council of the American Red Cross had appropriated $500,000 as a gift to the Canadian Red Cross. The gift is made without restrictions, but with the expressed hope that it will be found possible to use the contribution for the relief of Canadian soldiers at the front.

MICHAELIS FEARS GREED.

Tells Germans an Indemnity Would Undermine Nation.

AMSTERDAM, April 4.—Dr. George Michaelis, former German Imperial Chancellor, on leaving to assume his post of President of Pomerania made an address at Berlin. He said:

"If I were ever responsible again for the Government, I would decline to ask a war indemnity. Rather than see our people throw itself into the abyss of materialism, which would be the case if our war expenditures were defrayed by our enemies, we must teach our people, to become simple, sober, and economical.

"Our time of trial will not end with the termination of the war. Our misery will continue. We must bear it without murmuring. Poverty will be our cook.

"We must admit that we, too, are guilty for this war, not in a political sense, for the Emperor tried to maintain peace to the last minute, but circumstances have brought us trials which threaten to make money the master of this day. We must save the country from a surrender to materialism."

HONORS TO BROOKLYN BOYS

Hunter and Wetmore, Who Won War Crosses, Both Reside There.

Raymond L. Hunter of the United States Ambulance Service, who has received the French War Cross, is a son of Samuel E. Hunter of 608 Second Street, Brooklyn. He is 20 years old and went to France last July.

Raymond Hunter is an athlete, having been Captain of the football and baseball teams at Lawrenceville School. He is a member of the Crescent Athletic Club.

Harold D. Wetmore of Brooklyn, who was also decorated, was a physical instructor in the Bedford Branch of the Y. M. C. A., 420 Gates Avenue. He came to New York from Canada in 1914 and has been in France since 1916.

Thompson Proclaims Patriotic Holiday.

CHICAGO, April 4.—Next Saturday will be a legal holiday in Chicago, marking not only the first anniversary of the entry of the United States into the war, but also the opening of the Third Liberty Loan drive, according to a proclamation issued by Mayor Thompson today. A monster parade and patriotic demonstration are planned.

VALOR UNDER RED CROSS

Americans Stuck to Villequier Post Until Foe Was Almost On Them.

PARIS, April 4.—As the excitement incident to the first few days of the German offensive dies down, reports come in of the bravery in face of danger of various workers in the American Red Cross.

Women workers of the Red Cross who were aiding civilians in reconstruction and relief work at Villequier, near the River Somme, left their posts just five hours before the Germans arrived in the town. With their automobiles they aided in removing the civilians and picking up many wounded along the roads. The women were the last civilians to leave the town, just preceding the French troops.

Another Red Cross unit, stationed in a hospital just back of the lines, were ordered to evacuate in two hours. They left at 7 o'clock in the morning and were chased for miles by a German aviator before reaching a point of safety. The next day the unit went to a town near the fighting line and established soup kitchens for the troops and first aid stations for sick refugees and wounded stragglers. The town was under continuous shell fire and the unit answered calls at all hours to give first aid to those wounded by the enemy shells.

The unit then took over complete charge of the operation ward in a hospital, the nurses working in twelve-hour shifts in attending to a dozen wounded soldiers who were injured too seriously to be carried further back. The women also acted as stretcher bearers throughout the hospital, and took over a hotel in the town and conducted it for the use of Red Cross workers and British and French officers. They carried tea and coffee to soldiers on transports and wagons as they moved through the town. Some of the men had not had anything to eat for many hours, sleeping on their horses or along the roadside under all kinds of weather conditions, including a heavy rain.

Four American Army medical officers attached to a Red Cross hospital behind the Franco-British front declared their intention of remaining there "until hell froze," despite the removal of the patients to points of safety by automobiles. The drivers of the motor cars returned with a few American Red Cross nurses and the nurses and the doctors work night and day taking care of the seriously wounded French and British troops brought in from the battle line only a few miles away. Heavy artillery near the hospital fired over it and German airmen flew over it at night attempting to locate the battery, and the hospital was in constant danger. Sleep was impossible for three days.

The ambulance drivers picked up wounded stragglers and also aided 300 refugees in reaching a railway station. They also acted as gravsdiggers and pall bearers for soldiers who died of their wounds. The Americans in this hospital saved the lives of scores of soldiers who would have succumbed to their wounds had they not received immediate medical attention.

ASKS ABOUT CASUALTIES.

General March Cables to Baker to Know If He May Issue Lists.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—Major Gen. March, Acting Chief of Staff of the Army, said today that he has cabled to Secretary Baker to ascertain whether the new censorship rule forbidding the War Department to make public any official information relating to the American forces in France was intended to prevent the issuance of casualty lists without addresses.

The order from Secretary Baker said that nothing should be said here about persons connected with our forces in France. The War Department did not know whether it was the purpose to have the modified casualty list discontinued, but to be on the safe side they were discontinued yesterday. However, to ascertain definitely the attitude of Secretary Baker with respect to whether these lists may longer be issued, Major Gen. March has cabled for definite instructions.

GEN. WOOD SEES VICTORY FOR ALLIES

Says War Will Be Long and Hard, and May Take Millions of Our Men.

TELLS OF TRIP TO FRONT

"Of the American Soldier There Can Be No Doubt," He Declares; "He Is Going Over the Top."

Major Gen. Leonard Wood in a midnight speech at the Biltmore last night told in part the story of the frightful sights he viewed during his three months' inspection of the British, French, and American fronts in France. He said that the British and the French were tired but unconquerable, and that the peace that must and will end this war will be of the allied and not the German kind. There was not one word of criticism uttered, and in conclusion General Wood pleaded with those who heard him to back the Government to the absolute limit and "win the war." The occasion was the annual dinner of the Manufacturing Perfumers Association of America.

General Wood made it plain that the end of the war was not yet in sight, and that before it did come into view America's men would probably go forward by the millions to do their part in the winning of a war that the Germans, he said, had made the most inhuman and brutal in all history. The number of men now on the west front be estimated at about 12,000,000, and on one point of the line he added that since the war started three men had been killed for every square yard fought over.

The Germans, General Wood said, are not exhausted, and they are far from being defeated. The man, he added, who tells the American people that the situation is otherwise tells what is not true and does a wicked thing. The Allies, he declared, will win the war, and "we will win it with them." Of the American soldier he said there can be no doubt. He is going over the top, and "there are a lot of them," said the General, "who are not coming back."

"The burden that is to rest upon us," General Wood continued, "the responsibility will be great, but we are equal to it. We must give all that we have, and every man, woman, and child must do his or her part. There are none too old and none too feeble but in some way they can help. And they will."

General Wood told of one allied army corps that in a single month fired 85,000 tons of projectiles, and of great areas of land which had been torn to pieces by shellfire, not once, but a thousand times.

"It is war," he said, "which is going to test all that is in us. But we can stand the test and we can win. We can fight as well as any men un this earth."

General Wood's Speech.

In his speech, General Wood said:

"You have heard something of the war. Some of you have seen something of it, but not many of you can really appreciate how great and how tremendous it is unless you have actually gone along the line for something over 300 miles and seen millions of men engaged in the most deadly, the most dreadful and the most inhuman war of all time. It is a wonderful thing to see great nations struggling for life, while indicating or striving to vindicate and establish a principle, to establish fair dealing, honesty, uprightness among nations; to build up a condition under which the little nations can live, yet that is exactly what is going on in Europe, and going on to an extent that is almost incomprehensible.

"When you think of perhaps 12,000,000 or even more millions of men on a single unbroken battle line, running over 300 miles in length, 20 miles or more in depth, every village full of artillery, every house full of soldiers, every road covered with transports, you begin to realize what this war means. If you go a bit beyond in the country to the rear you find great hospitals full of wounded, and if you go into the cities you find every man of proper age in uniform. If he is not in uniform you look at him critically, to find out why he is not in uniform, for there men have learned that they owe the country service in war.

"Half of these men that you see are cripples, and yet no one is talking of stopping. They are fighting for something vital to humanity. They are waging a war in which you have long been expected to help, and they are very glad that you are now beginning to come. God helps those who help themselves. This is a war against efficiency, a degree of efficiency such as the world has never before witnessed. Do not underestimate the strength of the enemy you are sending your men against. He is skilled in war, trained in arms, wonderfully well led, and also brave and enduring.

"We may damn his methods and condemn his morals and denounce the object of the war, but do not let us make the mistake of underestimating his value as a fighting machine.

"Now, it is against that machine that your men are going up, and I leave it to your own conscience as to whether or not you have given them a fighting chance in the way of getting them ready, and whether they are going into the conflict with the kind of preparation that you would desire them to have.

Sees No Easy Victory.

It is not going to be an easy war. The man who tells you that the enemy is exhausted and there is going to be an easy victory tells you what is not true. It is going to be a hard war, and it is wicked to mislead our people into believing that it is going to be an easy war. It is going to be a war that is going to try your very souls, that will make you realise what war is, as those of our allies who have been preparing for a long time have learned to realize. They know what this war is. If you look at them you see war-weariness in their faces, but no faintness of spirit.

"But they want us, they want us as quickly as we can go to them. It is men, and not words, they want, and guns and the munitions of war. If we are going to be effective we must be efficient. The maintenance of inefficiency in connection with anything connected with the war is treason to our allies and to the cause. And it means that your boys and our boys, our men, are going to lie in the heaps of the unnecessary dead in numbers which could be avoided and will be avoided if we conduct this war with the efficiency of which we are capable.

"This is not a time for anything but the best. It is not a war of parties or a war of classes, it is a war of the American people, a war in which everything we have is engaged, in which everything we have is at stake.

"The best men make the best soldiers—the men of convictions; the kind of men old Cromwell talked of—God-fearing men well thought of by the people; they are the kind who will win this war. This is not the war of the swash buckler, or of the vulgar and profane. You hear very little of profanity along the battle line today. The men who have seen month after month the horrors of war, and have seen brigades and regiments wiped out repeatedly, some of them fifteen times, they are serious men, as they realize the tremendous responsibility of the situation.

Calls for Serious Preparation.

"It is not a war for the smug trifler, or the smug politician, or the smug profiteer. We can do as well as any men on earth, but we must be ready. And the preparation must be serious preparation. And we must bring into that preparation the very best we have in the country and everything we have of efficiency, and eliminate anything that is inefficient—I do not care who it is or where it is. Men who are going to die have the right to the highest degree of efficiency in the way of everything that pertains to their armament, their equipment, and their protection.

"It is not an ordinary war. Do not think of it as any war you ever heard of, but think of it as the death grapple between half of the people on the earth and realize that the determination of the struggle rests now with you, and that you will pay a heavier price for every day of delay, for promptness and efficiency mean the saving of the lives of your men, and you owe it to yourselves, to your children, and to your country to see that everything moves as fast and as well as it is possible to have it move.

"The war is a fine thing in one way, for it has brought out the sublime in man. You cannot see a struggle of this kind without feeling proud of man and realizing how much of the divine there is in him. Our part we will play like men, and we will play it like women, and we will go through with it, and we will come out a better people. It will cement us, making a homogeneous mass of us. It is going to be the melting pot of these numerous and different elements in our national life, and it will solidify us into one great concrete mass. It will make us a people, and it is going to make for good Government, but we must win the war.

"There must be no German peace, with another war following on the heels of this one. It must be a peace based on positive victory, a peace which will last as long as any peace can last, because peace will never last until God changes our natures, but we must make it a lasting peace so far as this kind of war goes. Let us do our level best, back the Government to the limit, and assist on efficiency and win the war."

OUTCRY AGAINST DAIMLERS.

Company's War Profits Placed at 400,000,000 Marks Monthly.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—German editorial comment on the revelations in the Reichstag Main Committee growing out of the investigation of the Daimler Motor Works has reached the Government through official channels, and some interesting extracts from these editorials were made public today by the Committee on Public Information. The investigation showed that the Daimler Company was earning 173 per cent. profit a year, although its sworn statements placed the profits at 11 per cent., and that while the company was earning 400,000,000 marks monthly in excess of its peace-time profits, it had threatened to reduce its output unless higher prices were paid.

Extracts from editorials as made public follow:

Hamburg Correspondent, (Pan German,) March 10.—"This affair has undoubtedly shaken public confidence in the inviolability of responsible Government officers. Yet, little as criminal profits are excusable, the fact remains that without the great accomplishments of German industry Hindenburg's 1916 program would not have been possible. The huge sums extorted from the nation must be repaid."

Deutsche Zeitung, (Pan German,) March 11.—"The sensational exploitation of the Daimler case is prompted by small party politics, but the German people are not sufficiently Gallicized to find pleasure in scandals like those of Paris. The Daimler Works have performed great services for the Fatherland, and if the case is exploited in Socialist fashion the consequences for the nation may be disastrous. It is already reported that private persons have withdrawn their subscriptions on account of the scandal."

Münchener Neueste Nachrichten, (Progressive,) March 11.—"It is natural to allow munition plants to set high prices in order to stimulate production and prepare for the transition from war to peace, but it is necessary to force lower prices when they are too high. The war tax is only a half measure, and the excessive accumulation of profits is not prevented. The possibility of checking excess profits in munition production is shown by England and America. The military authorities and the Imperial Government may rest assured of the people's support in energetically resisting price raising."

Frankfurter Zeitung, (Liberal,) March 10.—"The instigators of strikes were most severely punished, yet the Daimler management, which threatened curtailment of output if its fabulous profits were not swelled, is guilty of a great offense. The Daimler case is, at bottom, typical for the war industries are reaping untold profits. It is absolutely inconsistent that an appeal to duty is considered sufficient for the soldier, but an appeal to greed is necessary to get producers at home."

Berliner Tageblatt, (Liberal,) March 10.—"Energetic action by the authorities and the Reichstag is demanded. Such enterprises as the Daimler firm are not compelled to submit books for inspection, while every little trader selling vegetables must show his profits. We demand Government confiscation of illegal profits, and, if necessary, State control."

Vorwärts, (Government Socialist,) March 10.—"The Daimler revelations will hardly occasion the same surprise in financial circles as among the masses. The Daimler company's purpose was not to deceive the financial world, but the authorities, so that its real profits might be kept from the public's knowledge. The company reckoned upon the commercial ignorance of the Government, and this experience shows that such reliance is usually justified."

WEATHER AIDS WHEAT CROP

Improvement During March May Bring It Near Government's Aim.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—Winter wheat improved in nearly all sections during March under generally favorable weather, the Government's national weather and crop bulletin announced today.

Indications are that the April production forecast, which will be issued next Monday, will be much more than the 540,000,000 bushels forecast in December and may be well toward the $72,000,000-bushel Government aim.

AMERICA'S DANGER AT HAND, SAYS BECK

Declares the Nation's Back Is to the Wall—Must Go On or Go Under.

DEMANDS PLAIN SPEAKING

Criticizes Administration for Failure, While Lulling the People with Boasting.

An urgent appeal to the American people to give up their complacency with respect to winning the war and to the authorities to change their policy of telling the people in exaggerated terms of the greatness of the country's resources and depreciating the strength of the adversaries of the Allies was made last night by James M. Beck, former Attorney General, in an address that roused outbursts of enthusiasm a thousand members of the Economic Club at their dinner at the Hotel Astor.

"If you tell the people that we are bound to win, that it is only a question of time, you won't get results," declared Mr. Beck. "You have got to say to them, 'Men of America, your backs are to the wall. Now is the time to go on or go under.'"

All the speakers, including George Creel, head of the Committee on Public Information; S. K. Ratcliffe, formerly of The Manchester Guardian, and Augustus Thomas, playwright, made pleas for announcing to the people the truth about the war, all the reverses of America, and all the victories of its soldiers.

Mr. Creel said his committee has been pledged through the army and navy to inform the people instantly and honestly of all casualties, all accidents, and disasters. "Bear that in mind," he said, "when the air is filled with rumors about the sinking of a transport, the loss of thousands of soldiers in France, the hospitals in Westchester County filled with wounded. Brand them as lies and publish the liar, for the Government does not suppress such news or seek to minimize it. We do not have to conceal reverses, because we do not have to fear for the courage of America."

No Mention of Pershing's Order.

This paragraph in Mr. Creel's speech he delivered as it appeared in the copy given to reporters in advance, but he made no mention of the recent order sent from France by Secretary of War Baker and interpreted by General March as meaning that no further news of casualties should be given to the public. Mr. Creel has lately not been handling the casualty list because of a disagreement with the War Department, which took the stand that no further identification than the names of the killed and wounded should be given out.

In his address Mr. Beck said that the cause of the Allies is today in more desperate peril than at any time since the days that preceded the Marne.

"The allied armies have sustained the most terrible reverse since the battle of Charleroi," he declared. "The terrible and portentous fact is that in less than a week the German armies have regained all the territory that cost the Allies 300,000 men and four and a half months of time in 1916, and they are as near to the gates of Amiens, a city of immense strategic importance, as the upper part of Broadway is to the Battery.

"It is believed as a fact that the Germans in the West have a minimum superiority of 600,000 men, and the appalling fact is that the excess of German man power equals the aggregate of any army in authenticated history.

"Had America redeemed the least of its promises to its brave allies, Hindenburg's mighty advance would probably have broken down. We had promised them at least 20,000 airplanes. A nation that can turn out 100,000 pleasure cars a year from its factories should not have had any real difficulty in rapidly developing the automobile of the air. Unfortunately we have not been able to ship ten, much less 10,000, airplanes to Europe.

"No one can question the good intentions of our country, but the fact is that upon all our foreign policies and war measures experience has written but one verdict, 'Too late!' Who now questions that we should have begun to prepare after the sinking of the Lusitania?

"We flirted with the Bolsheviki anarchists in Russia until they had filled up the poisoned chalice of their black treachery.

"We have wonderful plans for shipping, but in the meantime the tonnage of our allies is rapidly decreasing and the strangle hold of the submarine becomes more terrible.

"Too late! God grant that when this great ordeal of battle is over and the smoke which now obscures our vision is cleared away that we will not find that the honor of our country has been buried almost beyond resurrection and that history shall not write as its epitaph, 'Too late!'"

After saying that Lloyd George and Clemenceau believe that people can bear the fight with greater fortitude when they know the truth, Mr. Beck said that in this country, however, it is accepted that all disagreeable truths should be suppressed and that the fighting spirit of the people could only be excited by deluding them with optimistic delusions.

Too Long Fed on Delusions.

"For a year past we have been regaled on mighty armadas of ships," he continued, "the very hulls of which have not even been fashioned on the ways. Industrious press agents have held up to our excited imagination flights of airplanes, as thick as the Autumn leaves of Vallombrosa, but they exist only in the perfervent imagination of these agents of publicity.

"We have had enough of illusions. Give us the truth, and if the truth be disagreeable and the sense of mighty obstacles tends to weaken our resolution to overcome them, then America, no matter how great its material resources may be, is not one of the great nations of the world.

"Our people know only as a matter of intellectual concept that a great war is in progress. In an academic spirit they have judged the mighty issues involved, and have determined that our cause is just and that of Germany unjust. But America has not as yet the war consciousness." When this country entered the war, Mr. Beck asserted, he made up his mind not to make any criticism, and only spoke an adverse word a few weeks ago "when peace talk threatened to paralyze the mind and will of the people.

"But having regard to the splendid results that followed the criticism of Theodore Roosevelt in this very hall and the criticism of Senator Lodge in Congress, I want to say, with abasement of spirit, that I was wrong and that Roosevelt and Lodge were right."

Must Go On or Go Under.

The speaker said that in three things could this country have helped the Allies—shipping, airplanes, and artillery.

"Had 17,000 American airplanes been able to fly over the plains of Cambrai when Hindenburg launched his offensive there would have been a different story to tell," he added. "In God's name, do not let us self-complacently think that we have done all that a nation of a hundred millions could have done. Let us realize that a full year after the war we have not acquitted ourselves as we should have done. If we tell the people that we are bound to win; that it is but a question of time, you won't get results. Tell them, 'Men of America, your backs are to the wall. Now is the time to go on or go under.'

"We have been going along on a mistaken psychology. We began the war by deprecating the strength of our adversary and exaggerating our own strength. This is no time for self-complacency, for boasting. This is the time to do or die. This great country will never win its true place until we have taken out of the national consciousness the spirit of bragging and boasting that is encouraged on the baseball field.

"Let us know the truth. Let us not be afraid of it. Let us not drag down him who criticises. If we have fallen down in the war, explain it to us. Let us know all and let us call those who are responsible for our failure to reckoning. If the shipping program is holding us back, let us know it. If labor is holding us back, let us be brave to say so. Let us not camouflage the situation by speaking of the great things we have done in the past.

"If this war is lost, and proves to have been lost because we came in too late, America's place in history will be pitiable. We are playing for something more than our own security or for civilization; it is for our own honor. I say these words out of a stern sense of patriotic duty, for I know the American people are not yet conscious of being in the war. War consciousness is a sense of peril; it is a feeling that throbs through men and arouses them to passionate action.

"Remember, that if Hindenburg had been able to press as far as North Broadway is from the Battery, the British would have been thrown to a Channel port, and by the time we would have arrived the performance would have been over and then—and then—what is to be the position of America in history?

Achievements Exaggerated.

"The difficulty with all our organs of publicity is that they have been pursuing the mistaken policy of seeking to enthuse the people, unintentionally perhaps, to an exaggeration of our own achievements. The terrible battle of ten days ago might not have occurred if we were not a self-complacent people who regarded as done those things that were only planned.

"This is not a time for delusions. This is not a time to fool ourselves. Only realities count. This is a time for blood and iron. We are dealing with an adversary whose argument is blood and whose rule is iron.

"And, so I hope that all organs of public opinion will tell our people that we are on the edge of an abyss; that this is no time for profiteering, no time to kowtow to labor or to waste time in pretentious, impractical plans. Remember that we could have helped the Allies in artillery because we have been given the secret of the famous French 75 and yet we have not even begun to construct the gun.

"If we don't act in the near future, in the next week, the next month, my God, gentlemen, we shall be in a position of such pitiable failure in a man's part in the world that America's prestige will never recover from the blow."

George Creel said that the fight for public opinion is the business of the Committee on Public Information. "We do not call it propaganda," he said, "for that work, in the German hands, has come to be associated with lies, secrecies, and shameful corruptions. Our work is educational and informative, for we have such confidence in our case that we feel that no more than a fair presentation of its facts is needed to win the war."

One thing you have a right to demand of George Creel, and that is that he tell you the truth about the war," said Mr. Ratcliffe. "We have wanted in England the truth from the beginning of our land and submarine war, and in regard to the latter we have been promised a more satisfactory statement. What I should have wanted to see from the Allies is an absolute standard of truth; not telling all, but making statements so that all who read would know that every statement from the Allies was the best truth that could be gotten out at the time."

Augustus Thomas said that this is not the time for interference with the powers that are running the affairs of the country. "If you can't shoot, shut up," he said. "If you can't fish, cut bait, but you must stop rocking the boat."

The diners were asked to sign membership blanks in the Limit Club and agree to purchase $1,000 of War Savings Stamps. In this way $10,000 in war stamps were sold at the dinner.

RECTOR SUSPECTS ARSON.

Dr. Moller Asks for Investigation of Fatal Boarding House Fire.

Special to The New York Times.

The Rev. Dr. C. N. Moller, rector of St. Chrysostom's Chapel, at 550 Seventh Avenue, requested the District Attorney yesterday to make an investigation and determine if arson and murder had been committed as the result of the fire in the theatrical boarding house at 239 West Thirty-eighth Street on March 29, where the landlady, Mrs. Bertha Williams, and three of her boarders lost their lives and two others were injured.

"Suspicious circumstances preceding the fire convince me that it was started by friends of a man now in jail for the purpose of destroying witnesses against him," said the rector.

Dr. Moller told Mr. Swann that Mrs. Williams, who had been a member of his congregation, had sought his advice concerning alleged threats made by persons unknown to her following her refusal to withdraw a complaint. The woman said she had been warned that harm would come to her by persisting in the charge against the man.

"Two previous fires had occurred at the house, the first on the day following Mrs. Williams's visit to me," said Dr. Moller. Mr. Swann assigned Assistant District Attorneys Renaud, Joyce, and Rorko to make an inquiry.

MAY BUY OUT GERMANS.

Government Approves Plan to Oust Teuton Directorates.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—Efforts of American stockholders to buy out German interests in important industries will receive the approval of this Government, it was indicated today when it became known that two Directors of the American Metal Company of New York have received permission to open negotiations in Switzerland with German holders of 40 per cent. of the stock of the company. The Directors are Henry Bruère and Julian B. Beaty.

A. Mitchell Palmer, Custodian of Enemy Property, recently took control of the German interests in the company, which is capitalized at $25,000,000 and has large holdings in mines and smelters in Mexico, South America, Colorado, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, and Kansas.

It is understood that the proposal placed before the State Department was that the American holders buy out the enemy interest, the money involved to be placed in a special trust fund in Switzerland or Holland and its final disposition to be decided after the war.

HISTORIC HOSPITAL BURNS.

Patients Safely Removed from All Souls' at Morristown.

Special to The New York Times.

MORRISTOWN, N. J., April 4.—The Revolutionary building occupied as All Souls' Hospital was destroyed by fire early this morning. The thirty-four patients were carried to safety and taken to Memorial Hospital, a mile away. That there was no loss of life was due to the vigilance of Sister Superior Viola and the nurses. As soon as fire was discovered the Sister Superior organized the quiet moving of the patients, and though the flames spread so rapidly that the firemen had to assist in the removal of some of the sick the task was done with a minimum of excitement.

Cable Service Difficulty Grows.

The Western Union Telegraph Company announces that it is advised by the foreign Government telegraphs that owing to pressure on the cable service beyond London to the Continent there is great difficulty in dealing with service requests, and that the delay in obtaining replies makes it necessary to ignore applications relating to European messages more than four days old.

NITRATE PROJECT ATTACKED

Longworth and Focht Allege Gross Profiteering at Muscle Shoals.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—Representative Nicholas Longworth denounced the Muscle Shoals nitrate project as an example of profiteering in debate in the House today on a proposal to give the Government authority to condemn lands for the operation. He asserted that under the guise of war necessity the long-fought-for Muscle Shoals development had succeeded, and that as soon as the war was over it would be junk to be grabbed up by private interests.

Representative Focht of Pennsylvania characterized the plan as the "worst graft" ever placed before Congress. He said if any "local school board or board of County Commissioners had transferred money around like the men responsible for this deal have, they would have been jailed before this."

SINN FEINER IS DEFEATED.

Nationalist Wins Seat Made Vacant by Capt. Redmond.

LONDON, April 4.—T. J. S. Harrison, Nationalist, has been elected to Parliament for East Tyrone, defeating Milroy, Sinn Feiner. The vote was 1,800 to 1,219.

The election was called to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Captain William A. Redmond to contest the seat that had been held by his father, the late John Redmond, for Waterford.

Captain Redmond won his seat in an election held last month.

Hundred Thousand Small Bonds Ready for Sale for Cash at Start of Drive.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—The legislative foundation for the Third Liberty Loan was laid tonight when Congress completed and President Wilson signed the bill authorizing issuance of additional bonds at 4¼ per cent.

Earlier in the day the Treasury announced that the bonds would mature in ten years, that the loan campaign, opening Saturday, would continue four weeks, until May 4, and that, after the initial payment of 5 per cent. on subscription, instalments of 20, 35, and 40 per cent. would be due respectively on May 28, July 18, and August 15. The amount is $3,000,000,000 and over-subscriptions.

The only remaining details to be determined by the Treasury are the arrangements for conversion of bonds of the first and second loans into Third Liberty bonds.

Within an hour after President Wilson signed the Bond bill, the first completed bond of the Third Liberty Loan came from the press of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing. It was a $50 "Baby Bond" and was laid aside by James L. Wilmeth, Director of the bureau, for special disposition, to be determined later.

Forty thousand more bonds will be ready in the morning, and 100,000 by Saturday, and thereafter they will be turned out at the rate of 500,000 a day to supply demands for cash sales and immediate delivery.

On Tiptoe for Loan Drive.

Reports to the Treasury today told of busy Liberty Loan workers in cities and villages all over the country preparing for enthusiastic demonstrations Saturday on the opening of the loan campaign and the anniversary of the entry of the United States into the war. The keynote for the big popular war credit, to be sounded by President Wilson in a speech at Baltimore and by Secretary McAdoo at Philadelphia, will be echoed by scores of other speakers at local meetings from coast to coast. Returning today from a four-day vacation, Secretary McAdoo made final arrangements for his speaking tour on behalf of the loan to start Saturday.

Final disposition of the Bond bill was hastened in the House late today by agreement to minor Senate amendments. Wide difference of opinion between members prevented inclusion of a provision exempting national and State bank holdings of Liberty bonds from consideration in determining State and local taxation of banks. Chairman Kitchin of the House Ways and Means Committee intimated that the subject would be placed before Congress again in a separate bill.

The present bill gives the Secretary of the Treasury authority to issue $4,500,000,000 bonds, in addition to the $3,000,000,000 already authorized under former legislation, raises the interest rate from 4 to 4¼ per cent., authorizes issuance of as much as $8,000,000,000 certificates of indebtedness at one time and extends to the Treasury the power to loan $1,500,000,000 more to the Allies from time to time.

The Treasury announced that banks would have five days after the close of the campaign in which to tabulate and report subscriptions. Instead of requiring 2 per cent. cash payment with the subscription, as in the second loan, 5 per cent. will be asked. The Treasury expects many subscribers to pay in full on purchase, and these early payments may be sufficient to redeem the $900,000,000 of certificates of indebtedness falling due before May 9. Otherwise, it may be necessary to refund the certificates with other short-time lots. Officials also believe the May 28 payment actually will be much greater than the 20 per cent. required.

No Bond Payments in June.

The payment dates have been arranged so that none will come in June, when the drain on the country's financial resources will be great on account of income and excess profits taxes due June 15. In the second loan 18 per cent. was due two weeks after the campaign closed, 40 per cent. a month later, and 40 per cent. one month after that.

The new bonds will mature on Sept. 15, 1928, and will bear interest from May 9 next, payable semi-annually on Sept. 15 and March 15. The first coupon will be for 129 days' interest.

"Payment in full may be made with the application on or before May 4," the Treasury announced, "but bonds will not be delivered before May 9 on any subscription for an amount exceeding $10,000. Full payment may be completed upon subscription for any amount on May 9 or any subsequent installment date.

"Payment of any installment, including the first installment of 5 per cent., or payment in full, may be made in Treasury certificates of indebtedness, except those maturing April 22 and June 25. Qualified depositary banks and trust companies may make payment by credit upon the subscriptions of themselves and their customers, but only to the extent that they cannot make payment in Treasury certificates of indebtedness.

"Third Liberty Loan bonds which have been owned by a person for six months prior to the date of his death will be acceptable at par and accrued interest in payment of United States inheritance taxes upon his estate. This applies also to 4¼ per cent. bonds issued upon conversion."

The Treasury also explained that the Liberty Loan bill provides for the purchase of one-twentieth of the total issue of the third loan each year and that this provision also applied to bonds of the second loan and converted bonds of the first loan.

The bonds are not convertible and are not subject to call for redemption before maturity. They carry the same exemptions from taxation as those of the Second Liberty Loan. That is, they are exempt from all State, municipal, and local taxation and all Federal taxes except super-income taxes, excess profits taxes, and inheritance taxes.

BANKS PLAN FULL AID FOR LOAN BORROWERS

To Advance Money to Business Men Irrespective of Amount Already Lent for Current Needs.

The banks and trust companies of this city are determined to accord every possible facility and aid to their customers in the purchase of bonds of the third Liberty Loan. Besides soliciting subscriptions, they will undertake to lend money to those who are willing to anticipate their future savings and to devote them for investment in Liberty Loan bonds.

Although no official announcement has yet been made, it is understood that banks will not require more than a ten-point margin on such loans, and in some cases the margin will not have to be more than 5 per cent. As for the rate of interest that will be charged, inquiries made yesterday at the leading downtown institutions showed that some banks would finance Liberty Loan purchases at 4½ per cent., the bond coupon rate, while others would charge their customers 4½ per cent., and perhaps 4¾ per cent., depending on the Federal Reserve Bank's special discount rate for ninety-day paper secured by Liberty bonds.

In the previous Liberty Loan campaign most of the banks made loans at 4 per cent., the coupon rate. When subscriptions to the second loan were being collected and for some time afterward the Reserve Bank special rate was 3½ per cent., the banks having a margin of one-half per cent. to cover the expense of clerical hire and other costs. At present the Reserve Bank rate is 4 per cent., but it would not surprise bankers if the Directors of the Reserve Bank raised it to 4¼ per cent. The policy adopted by some institutions is to charge one-half of 1 per cent. above the discount rate, in which event loans made for financing the purchase of third Liberty bonds would carry a rate of at least 4¼ per cent.

When the Federal Reserve Bank recently raised its special discount rate from 3½ to 4 per cent. many banks advanced the rate they had been charging their customers. Those who had been paying 4 per cent., the coupon rate, were advised that on renewing their note they would have to pay 4¼ per cent. In some instances subscribers to Liberty bonds are paying their banks 5 and 5½ per cent.

Although in the last Liberty Loan campaign the banks agreed to charge their customers 4 per cent., the coupon rate, thus making it possible for a subscriber to finance his bond purchase practically without cost, sentiment among bankers is that the pursuance of that policy was a mistake. They say that a man who is truly patriotic, and is desirous of helping the Government, should be willing to pay for the expense of having banks carry the bonds for him during the period that it takes him to save up sufficient funds to pay for the bonds in full. It is pointed out that if the rate of interest charged by the banks is slightly above the coupon rate borrowers from banks are more likely to pay up their loans promptly and to make every effort gradually to reduce their indebtedness. Experience has shown that in cases where borrowers have been charged more than the coupon rate they have been more systematic in reducing their loans every ninety days than have been those to whom banking accommodations have been accorded at the coupon rate.

The banks in discussing arrangements with their customers are calling their attention to the fact that when they grant accommodation with the view of facilitating the purchase of Liberty bonds they do so with the understanding that the borrower will pay up within a year, that is, after three renewals of the ninety-day note. It is expected that on every maturity date the borrower will reduce his indebtedness.

In regard to business men borrowing money to buy Liberty bonds, bankers said yesterday they would not take into consideration the loans made for business purposes. In other words, Liberty Loan accommodations would be granted absolutely independent of lines of credit given to business men for the purpose of financing their current business requirements. It was pointed out, however, that if 6 per cent. was charged a merchant on his business loan and 4 or 4½ per cent. for his Liberty Loan transaction it was expected that the merchant would use his "savings" to pay off the Liberty Loan indebtedness and not for the reduction of the business loan, which paid a higher rate of interest.

Bankers stated yesterday that they considered it not unpatriotic for would-be subscribers of the third Liberty Loan to buy the outstanding 4 per cent. bonds for the reason that heavy purchases of the 4s at this time would operate to lift the price of the 4s, and that anything that would be effective in bringing the 4s closer to par was highly desirable and helpful in creating a better sentiment, which would no doubt be beneficial in the campaign for subscriptions to the third loan. Bankers said they did not advocate the selling of the 4s for the purpose of investing the proceeds into the new loan.

Caproni Biplane to Fly for Loan.

MINEOLA, April 4.—Captain Resnatti in his big Caproni biplane will carry several passengers with him on Saturday or some day next week when he flies above Manhattan to aid the Liberty Loan drive. He will drop "bombs" containing Liberty Loan campaign circulars in Manhattan and Brooklyn. Captain Resnatti has not made known the names of the passengers who will make the Manhattan trip with him.

CALL TO PATRIOTISM TO OPEN LOAN DRIVE

City Will Start Campaign with Parade, Lavish Display of Flags, and Airplane Show.

"LIBERTY BELLS" FOR ALL

Small Boys to Distribute a Million Duplicates Bearing the Legend "Ring It Again."

The four weeks' campaign for the Third Liberty Loan, consisting of $3,000,000,000 of 4¼ per cent. ten-year bonds, will be opened tomorrow, the first anniversary of America's declaration of war against Germany. The launching of the drive will be celebrated by a parade and by the display of the Stars and Stripes throughout the city. In addition, seven airplanes from Mineola will bombard the town with Liberty Loan literature, and small boys will ring every available house bell to summon the occupants, whose attention will be called to pasteboard duplicates in miniature of the famous Independence Bell of 1776, bearing the inscription, "Ring It Again." The Publicity Department of the Liberty Loan Committee issued a call last night for 10,000 volunteers, who will be asked to hang these paper novelties on door knobs. It is expected that fully 1,000,000 of these bells will be circulated in this city alone.

Patriotic exercises will be held throughout the city. The Liberty Bank, a reproduction of the Sub-Treasury, will be opened in Madison Square Park at 12:20 P. M. under the auspices of the National League for Woman's Service. The hugs "push ball" will start on its journey from Buffalo to New York. Ceremonies and speeches will be delivered in Mount Morris and other parks. The parade is scheduled to start from 120 Broadway at 11:30 o'clock, and it will proceed to City Hall, where it will be received by Mayor Hylan. In the line there will be a squadron of police, the police band, members of the Liberty Loan Committee, the Metropolitan Canvass Committee, and workers attached to the Publicity Department. Brief addresses will be made by Mayor Hylan and others.

Plan Indorsed by Enright.

The distribution of the pasteboard bells will take place tonight, and the work will be in the hands of the old Home Defense League, 10,000 members of which will be joined by a similar number of volunteers. Police Commissioner Enright has indorsed the plan, and has assigned Police Inspector Dwyer to have charge of the work. Members of the Home Defense League will start out from their various precinct headquarters in automobiles and trucks, divided into groups, so as to cover the neighborhoods in sub-districts. The Boy Scouts, high school pupils, inmates of orphan asylums, as well as members of civic organizations, will all lend a hand. Each distributer will work under a leader and will be responsible for the hanging of at least 100 bells. Women and girls will cover the less thickly populated districts of the city. Volunteers are wanted, and they are requested to offer their services at any police station. They should report before 6 o'clock tonight.

The headquarters for the entire distribution in Manhattan will be at the Thirty-ninth Street and Seventh Avenue supply station and the Brooklyn headquarters at 452 Fulton Street. Already there have been received from Washington 1,750,000 of the Liberty Bell hangers, and 300,000 more are on the way. Of this total, 1,050,000 will be distributed in New York City and 1,005,323 throughout the remainder of the district. The bells will be hung on the knobs of front doors, but apartment house dwellers will not be forgotten, for their reminder will be placed on the knob of the door leading to their apartment.

No Interference by Police.

While the bell distribution is scheduled for tonight, the ringing of the door bells will take place tomorrow. The boys are advised that the Publicity Committee of the Liberty Loan Committee has "fixed it" with the police, and that they need not fear being "chased" by the "cops."

Volunteer billposters will start at midnight tonight to paste Liberty Loan posters all over the city, so that the town will be plastered with war loan reminders when the people go down to work tomorrow morning.

In support of the plan for an intensive flag display, Acosta Nichols of Spencer Trask & Co. said last night:

> There is no better way to stimulate patriotism on the opening day of the Third Liberty Loan campaign than to display the American flag in every conceivable manner that it may be properly hung or flown. This is a campaign to sell Liberty Loan bonds, but we must remember that our great task is more than just bond selling. It is a campaign of psychology—the psychology of the patriotic thrill, impulse, and action.
> To make use of an advertising phrase that hits the nail on the head: "We are not selling bonds, we are selling the war." This means the knowledge and application of the psychology of patriotic appeal. And in no way can you appeal more strongly than through the glorious American flag. Its effect on the American eye is immediately potent, and from passing glance to patriotic thought and impulse the transit is instantaneous.
> War sacrifice and war accomplishment by one person or one group cry aloud to every other person and group for similar sacrifice and service. We should make it plain in this campaign that to be fair and square we must do every bit as much as our neighbor for our country in time of crisis. To shirk doing our full share is to make ourselves mendicants of patriotism and drones in a land that we have done nothing to deserve living in.
> I know of no better way to bring home to the dullest citizen the full sense of his obligations in this trying hour than to display before his eyes, everywhere he turns, the very fount and pivot of American inspiration—the Stars and Stripes. Let us have Old Glory—profusely, abundantly, lavishly. Let us not use it in any bizarre fashion. It has too sacred a character and meaning. But let it be displayed with intelligent enthusiasm and it will be apt to reach the heart of even the most sluggish American.

Appeal to Educators.

Dr. John Huston Finley, Commissioner of Education of the State of New York, and C. N. Kendall and Charles D. Hine, who occupy similar positions in New Jersey and Connecticut, respectively, are sending out letters to Superintendents and Principals of schools throughout the Second Federal Reserve District, calling on them to work in the interest of the third Liberty Loan. The schools will be used as centres of information and instruction regarding the war loan, and in some of the larger cities the school children will canvass for subscriptions. The letter of the Commissioners follows:

> Questions and information on the Liberty Loan will be carried into the homes by the children. Taking advantage of the interest thus aroused, Principals and teachers should invite the parents to patriotic meetings in the schoolhouse.
> As the pupils should have for their main service the spread of Liberty Loan propaganda rather than the sale of bonds, so Superintendents, Principals, and teachers have their special opportunity not in selling bonds, but in teaching Liberty bond facts and assisting in bringing together all the homes in the community to further the work of the Government.
> Between the home, which is the proper sphere of activity of the school child, and the large business house, which is not, there are a very large number of smaller stores which were in many cities successfully canvassed by a certain type of high school pupil with innate selling ability, possibly developed by experience in securing advertisements for a high school paper. The service of this type of pupil can be made to tell in a loan campaign. Pupils should, however, be chosen to do this work only on the definite information basis of the work they have done in preceding drives or by other known standards of selection.
> In addition to rendering invaluable service in homes where English is not spoken, pupils of foreign birth or parentage have been successful in selling bonds among people of their own tongue. It is reported that a Polish high school pupil went out the first noon of the last campaign, addressed a crowd of forty or fifty Polish workmen in front of a factory, and sold twenty-three bonds. A Superintendent in California reports conspicuous success in selling bonds on the part of Japanese boys attending public schools there.

First Loan Banners Displayed.

The Wholesale Dry Goods trade has the distinction of displaying the first Liberty Loan banners in this city. Early yesterday morning two banners, twenty by thirty and forty by thirty feet, respectively, were hung across the intersection of Worth Street and Broadway from the offices of M. C. D. Borden & Sons. Bertram H. Borden is Chairman of the Dry Goods Committee working for the Liberty Loan. He said that the dry goods trade had organized committees to canvass 1,300 establishments, employing 30,000 men and women.

The music and allied trades, at a meeting held yesterday at the Piano Club, pledged to subscribe $1,000,000 to the loan, according to an announcement made by Julian T. Meyer of J. & C. Fischer.

The Patriotic Household League, the head of which is Henry Phyfick, a butler employed by J. P. Morgan, held a meeting last night at Dr. Henry Sloane Coffin's Mission, Seventy-third Street and Madison Avenue, to complete the organization of a committee which will canvass the 30,000 men and women who are employed as cooks and servants in private families. The organization has 400 members, and it was started originally with the view of helping Food Administrator Herbert Hoover conserve food in New York homes.

Maturity of Bond Issue Pleases.

Bankers commended the action of Secretary McAdoo in fixing the maturity of the Third Liberty Loan at ten years. Some time ago a number of the leading men of Wall Street advocated the flotation of a short-term note in place of a long-term bond, and many of them spoke of a five or six year term, but in recent weeks reports from Washington indicated that the Secretary did not favor the short-term plan, and consequently the bankers have been looking forward to a twenty or twenty-five year bond. In these circumstances, therefore, yesterday's announcement of a ten-year bond was a pleasant surprise. Bankers pointed out that the shorter maturity gave the new 4¼s a better standing in respect to investment yield when compared with the outstanding 4s, which, even though converted into 4¼s, have a maturity of twenty-five or thirty years. The difference in the respective yields of the outstanding 4s and new 4¼s, when considered from the point of view of the prevailing discount at which the former are now selling, has been lessened by making the term of the new loan ten years instead of a longer maturity, as had been expected.

CLERGY ORGANIZE FOR DRIVE

Theodore Marburg Says League of Nations Awaits German Defeat.

The unofficial announcement from Germany two days ago that her rulers has no faith in a league of nations makes it clear that it is the intention of Germany to continue in the future its plan of aggression, Theodore Marburg, former American Minister to Belgium, said yesterday at the luncheon of the interchurch Clerical Conference at the Hotel Biltmore.

"According to semi-official announcement from Germany, it was stated that she had no faith in the ability of a league of nations to discourage war," Mr. Marburg asserted, "and that such a plan would bring up false hopes, and, in time, nations would come to curse it. It is perfectly clear that no league of nations can be effective unless Germany is overthrown. The great duty before the world is to overcome Germany. One means of accomplishing this is to prevent the Bolshevist Government in Russia from continuing to help Germany. It would seem hopeless to try to organize in Russia opposition to Germany under present conditions. The only hope is for an allied army to step in so that the Constitutional Party in Russia can organize themselves behind this wall of steel.

"Necessarily we must let Japan play a leading part in any such plan, but small allied forces could be joined to them, and the Allies, as a whole, could announce their intention eventually to withdraw from Russia, just as we announced our intention, at the beginning of the Spanish war, to withdraw from Cuba and kept our word."

The conference opened in Aeolian Hall yesterday morning, and was attended by more than 600 clergymen. The object of the conference was to organize the clergymen for the third Liberty Loan campaign, and the meeting was held under the auspices of the National Committee on Churches and the Moral Aims of the War and the Second Federal Reserva District Liberty Loan Committee.

The speakers in the morning were the Rev. Arthur J. Brown, Professor M. I. Pupin, Serbian Consul; Dr. Amaury Mara, a San Francisco surgeon of French birth, who was in Luxemburg at the outbreak of the war, and Countess Laura G. Turczynowicz.

The speakers at the luncheon, besides Mr. Marburg were the Rev. Dr. Nehemiah Boynton, Henry Morgenthau, Sir George Adam Smith, P. Whitwell Wilson, a London journalist, and Brooks Leavitt, connected with the Second Federal Reserve District. The all-day conference closed with a patriotic meeting last night at the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church.

"We in America must wake up," said Mr. Morgenthau in the course of his address. "We have got to dynamite ourselves out of the state of complacency we have been lulled into. Germany has smashed all Biblical laws. She has not kept a single commandment. She has not lived up to international law. Our friends across the seas are doing their best to destroy the common enemy, and you may rest assured that they will hold the lines until we are ready to join their forces.

"Right here let me tell you there is nothing worse in this country than the dissatisfaction and impatience that are being shown with the physical preparation this nation is making. Our President is doing wonders in building up a wonderful fighting organization, but Americans must remember that this cannot be done over night or in six months. He has a big problem to solve, but let us be patient. Everything will surely work out satisfactorily."

UNFURLS NEW SERVICE FLAG

Chairman Hurley Hangs Up the Emblem of the Shipping Board.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—A new service flags appeared in Washington today as the emblem for men engaged in "war service" of the United States Shipping Board. Chairman Hurley received the first of the flags, which, with a single star, was placed on the walls of his office, where the nation's shipbuilding program is directed. Other flags will be distributed to every worker doing his share toward overcoming the effects of submarine warfare and to encourage the spirit of service; the original paper flags will be replaced by permanent cloth emblems for all who remain continuously at work for six months.

The flags are like those for the military, except that they bear the words "U. S. Shipping Board—war service."

Army Health Continues Good.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—The health of the army in the United States continues good, the War Department announced today, although bronchitis and influenza, complicated with pneumonia, in many Northern camps, increased the noneffective and death rate slightly over the preceding week. The total number of deaths reported was 237, of which 90 were among the regulars, 29 in the National Guard, and 118 in the national army.

COLONELS LEAVE SCHOOL.

Six Empire Commanders End the Sam Houston Course.

CAMP WADSWORTH, SPARTANSBURG, S. C., April 4.—Colonels Fisk, Andrews, Jennings, Howland, Norton, and Wingate, commanders of the regimental units in the 27th Division, are expected to return tomorrow from Fort Sam Houston, Texas, where they have been at school for the last three months. Colonel Merritt H. Smith, 146th Field Artillery, who returned a month ago on sick leave, is to have an additional four weeks' leave while he is recuperating at Asheville, N. C.

These promotions were posted today: First Lieutenants, Medical Corps, to be Captains, and assigned as indicated: Charles D. Kayser, 105th Machine Gun Battalion; Lee H. Costigan, Field Hospital, Company 107; George L. Meiler, 108th Infantry; Charles F. Nichols, 106th Infantry; John C. Graham, 106th Field Artillery; George McK. Hall, Field Hospital, Company 105; Charles D. Cromwell, 105th Field Artillery; Henry B. Smith, Field Hospital, Company 108, and Alfred F. Cassebeer, Ambulance Company 108.

Second Lieutenants of the line, raised one rank were: Emil M. Podeyn, 105th Artillery; George C. Donnelly, 106th Machine Gun Battalion; Walter G. Andrews, 105th Machine Gun Battalion, and Frank L. Walton, 106th Machine Gun Battalion.

TWO MORE AIDS FOR BAKER.

Stettinius and Keppel to be Assistant Secretaries Under New Law.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—Congress today took final action on the bill providing for two additional Secretaries of War, and the appointments probably will be announced within a few days. It is understood the men to be selected are Edward R. Stettinius, Surveyor of Army Purchases, and Frederick Keppel, Dean of Columbia University, now acting as confidential assistant to Secretary Baker.

With the appointment of the new Secretaries, the reorganization of the War Department, which has been worked out by Secretary Baker and approved by the President, will be put into full effect. Mr. Stettinius, it is understood, will be in charge of industrial and commercial work, and Dean Keppel in charge of the non-military life of the army.

REED LEADS FIGHT ON OVERMAN BILL

Senator Charges That It Is Intended to Overturn Interstate Commerce Commission.

LIKENS IT TO A 'SHELL GAME'

Rebukes Postmaster General Burleson for Holding Cloakroom Conferences on the Measure.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—Senator Reed of Missouri today sounded the keynote of the opponents of the Overman bill in a long speech to the Senate. He substituted for Senator Smith of Georgia, who was prevented from speaking by an important engagement. Senator Reed characterized the bill as a legislative "shell game," and declared it would permit of giving important governmental powers to men like George Creel.

The Senator started out to give the Senate a statement concerning what happened when the bill was before the Judiciary Committee and a subcommittee of five. After reviewing this, he said:

"The issue over this legislation is whether we shall give general blanket power to the President without intimation or hint of where it is necessary, or whether the departments shall state to Congress the necessity for the power that is sought. Request was made by members of the committee for information on this subject and it was refused. When this bill left the committee not a living member of it could point to a single specific power the President needed that he doesn't already possess by law."

Senator Reed then charged that one of the chief purposes for which the legislation was sought was to turn over the Interstate Commerce Commission to the Director General of Railroads.

"If it is not the purpose to wipe out the Interstate Commerce Commission," said Senator Reed, "the Judiciary Committee would have voted for an amendment I submitted to clear that matter up."

Senator Wolcott, a member of the committee who is supporting the bill, said he wanted to "suggest that the Interstate Commerce Commission does not come under the terms of the bill. If we had excepted the Interstate Commerce Commission the Senator would have suggested excepting something else."

Senator Fletcher declared the bill did not permit a reorganization of the commission or the transfer of its authority to another department of the Government.

"I want to ask the Senator a blunt question," said Senator Reed. "Would he vote for this bill if it did specifically include the commission?"

"I have not the slightest hesitation in answering that," said Senator Fletcher. "I don't believe right now that any change is contemplated, but if in the future a change is necessary, or so seems to the President as a means of winning the war, I am in favor of giving him full authority to meet the situation."

"Oh, I am getting weary," exclaimed Senator Reed, "by reason of the fact that every time a man raises a question about the proper kind of law to pass he is to be silenced by loud-voiced protestations 'I am willing to do anything to win the war.' The louder your voice, the more your eyes in frenzy roll, the more patriotic you are. Bombasticus furioso is not more brave than the silent boy in khaki who kisses his mother good-bye and goes forth to give his life for his country. I heard a Senator say the other day that he would burn New York City if the President told him to. As an afterthought he added, 'If it is necessary to whip Germany.'

"If it is necessary to whip Germany, of course we would burn New York City. The women of the United States would be found standing in death legions, if it is necessary to whip Germany. But the question always is, is it necessary? Senators will not be swept off their feet by the clamor from lips that praise the Administration, or by incense swung by hands that hope to profit thereby.

"This bill is the finest legislative shell game ever staged. Under it the most important governmental powers could be transferred to men like George Creel. Important powers could be given to some intellectual Bolshevik, engaged in writing editorials for the delectation of the anarchists."

While Senator Reed was speaking, Postmaster General Burleson, who took the bill to the Capitol and presented it to Senator Overman for introduction, appeared in Senate corridors and conferred with several Senators. Word of this reached the Missourian and he said:

"I wish Mr. Burleson would come out on the floor. I could answer him so much better here. We asked that he appear before the committee. We were denied that, and now we hear of corridor conferences."

Mr. Burleson was reticent about his mission, but was heard to say to Senators that he would "take it up with the President."

736 MORE ARMY RECRUITS.

Voluntary Enlistments Since April 1, 1917, Now Total 400,929.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—The regular army obtained 736 recruits yesterday, making a total of 400,929 men who enlisted voluntarily since April 1, 1917. The showing for New York and neighboring States follows:

	Obtained April 3, 1918.	Since April 1, 1917.		Obtained April 3, 1918.	Since April 1, 1917.
Conn.	12	4,760	N. Hamp.	1	1,351

Mass.	25	19,256	Vermont	3	645

Manila Camp Named for Funston.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—A second army camp has been named in honor of the late Major Gen. Frederick Funston. The latest Camp Funston is near Manila, in the Philippine Department. The original training post to bear this name is at Fort Riley, Kan., where the 89th and 90d National Army divisions are in training.

FEW STAMPS REDEEMED.

War Savings Purchases Keep Them as an Investment.

The Government has been called on to redeem less than 2 per cent. of the War Savings stamps sold in New York since the beginning of the campaign, it was announced yesterday at the W. S. S. headquarters, 51 Chambers Street. Up to March 31 the Sub-Treasury had redeemed $145,341 worth of the stamps, or a little more than 1 7-10 per cent. out of a total sale of $8,116,594.

The small number of redemptions to date seems to indicate, says a statement issued by the Campaign Committee, that nearly all the stamps have been bought for investment purposes and not with a view to trading them in in the near future. The stamps can be redeemed at any time between now and Jan. 1, 1923, for the amount paid, plus 1 cent for each elapsed month, approximating 3 per cent. interest. The total of sales in New York up to Wednesday amounted to $8,342,415.

More than 5,000 persons yesterday purchased stamps to see the Browning gun exhibit at the Public Library under the auspices of the Mayor's Committee of Women on National Defense. Among the women on duty at the tent were Mrs. Cornelius N. Bliss, Jr., Mrs. Robert Sweeny, Mrs. Paul Dougherty, Mrs. Charles Connell, Miss Constance Bliney, Mrs. Thomas Patten, and Mrs. W. Bourke Cockran.

Frank P. Hynes, Jr., manager of the New Strand Hotel, has posted a notice addressed to the resident patrons of the hotel to the effect that on May 1, Thrift Day, for every 75 cents he will deliver a book with a dollar's worth of thrift stamps as an inducement to push the sale.

WRIT FOR ROTHENBERG.

Alleged Slayer of Cohen to Appear in Court Today.

District Attorney Swann refused yesterday to consider the alibi offered by Morrie Rothenberg, held on the charge of murdering Harry Cohen on Monday morning at 7 West Ninety-second Street, and Rothenberg obtained a writ of habeas corpus from Justice Hotchkiss on the ground that the evidence was insufficient for his further detention. The writ hearing will take place today. It was said at the District Attorney's office that the case would be submitted to a Grand Jury this morning.

It was learned last night that the District Attorney had requested Inspector Cray to withdraw Detective Julius Cohen from the case, because Cohen had opposed the District Attorney's theory that gamblers suspected Cohen of being an informer.

Among witnesses re-examined yesterday were the negro elevator operator, Joseph Edney, who identified Cohen, and Yvonne Pachetcau, a friend of Rothenberg.

Acting Captain McKenna and Detectives Finan, Kerwin, Conkling, and L'Heureux, who have been working on the Cohen murder, reached the Fourth Branch Detective Bureau early this morning, with four men, taken in the vicinity of Broadway and Forty-second Street, as material witnesses. They gave their names as George J. Williams, 27, a salesman, of 200 West Seventieth Street; Daniel Clancy, 57, a saloon keeper, of 556 West Fortieth Street; Jack Van Uim, 34 years old, a piano player, of 721 Seventh Avenue, and James W. Greenwalt, 25, a manufacturer, of the Hotel Albermarle.

The men, according to McKenna, were taken at the direction of District Attorney Swann, who said it was believed that they could throw some light on the gambling situation. It was also heard that an actress is being sought in connection with the case.

AGREE ON SABOTAGE BILL.

Congress Conferees Fix Heavy Penalties for Bomb Plotters.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—Conferees of the Senate and House today agreed on a bill providing severe penalties for destruction of war materiels and for sabotage.

Penalties of thirty years' imprisonment and $10,000 fine are provided in the bill, which was greatly broadened in scope both by the House and the conferees, for acts intended to injure or destroy war material and utilities. The latter include arms, munitions, live stock, clothing, food supplies, railroads, electric lines, canals, engines, machines, vehicles, vessels, dams, reservoirs, aqueducts, water and gas pipes, structures, electric, wireless, telegraph, and telephone plants.

The legislation also penalizes willful manufacture of defective war materials, including their ingredients.

A special clause provides that employes shall not be prohibited from agreeing to stop work when for the bona fide purpose of obtaining better wages or conditions of employment, but otherwise penalizes acts interfering with production of war supplies.

The bill was passed by the Senate a year ago in restricted form and recently was broadened and passed by the House at the request of the Department of Justice.

MAYOR TELLS AIDS TO CUT EXPENSES

Declares Some City Employes Have Little Regard for the People's Money.

Mayor Hylan sent a letter yesterday to Commissioner of Accounts David Hirshfield requesting information regarding the amount of the State budget. The Mayor referred to members of his administration as having little regard "as to what is done with the city's money;" and announcing that this class of official would be got rid of as "rapidly as possible." This is the Mayor's letter:

City of New York.
Office of the Mayor.
April 4, 1918.

David Hirshfield, Esq., Commissioner of Accounts, City of New York:

Dear Sir—I wish you would secure a report from the representative of your office in Albany on the proposed amount of the State budget at the earliest possible date. A report seems to be current that requests for the different State departments will be enormous and that there will be a State tax imposed on the City of New York in the neighborhood of eight or ten millions of dollars.

I do not know what can be done except to ask the legislators from the City of New York to endeavor to keep down the appropriations to the least possible amount, so that the burden on the city will be as light as possible. I do not know where this question of taxation will end unless we can get the public officials all over the State to realize that the people are being taxed to the limit and ask them to curtail the rapid increases in the expense of the State as well as local current expenses.

I think that the members of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment and many of the officials and employes of the city realize the seriousness of the situation and are endeavoring to curtail in so far as is possible the current expenses. There are those in the employ of the city who have little regard as to what is done with the city's money. We shall, as rapidly as possible, endeavor to get rid of this class of official and employe.

When we consider the creation of the Bronx Parkway Commission, which has thus far cost the city about $4,000,000 and will cost at least $10,000,000 more if permitted to continue; a Public Service Commission which has cost the city more than $20,000,000 in ten years and which has spent $200,000,000 for subway construction during that time, which is an excess of $10,000,000 over estimate; a Court House Board which has cost the people $15,000,000 of the city's money for a useless Court House site and, which still continues, though it has no work to do; a Water Board which has spent nearly $200,000,000 of the city's money and which hopes to continue in office in spite of the efforts of the administration to discontinue it, and the bold attempt to have another commission appointed which would cost the city millions of dollars besides the loss of the west side waterfront to the New York Central Railroad under the Ottinger bill—we must arouse the people all over the State to the deliberate attempt on the part of special privilege seekers to exploit not alone the people of the city but of the State by the appointment of special commissions and all sorts of special expenditures of the people's money.

I shall write to the members of the Legislature from this city and ask them to use their best efforts to keep the budget as low as possible, so that the burden will not only be lightened for the taxpayers of this city but for the taxpayers of the entire State. Very truly yours, (Signed) JOHN F. HYLAN, Mayor.

Mr. Hirshfield wrote to Albany at once for the information.

CRITICISES UNIVERSITIES.

Dean Russell Says Standard of Scholarship Is Too German.

Professor James E. Russell, Dean of Teachers College, Columbia University, criticised modern education last night in an address before the University Institute of Arts and Sciences. He said there has been too much schooling "for exhibition purposes" and that educators have been satisfied with handing out knowledge "put up, like breakfast foods, in small packages with attractive labels, but indigestible contents."

He complained that more attention was paid to scholarship and to scientific research than to building up healthy democracy through our schools, especially the universities. Dr. Russell praised the public school teachers for their "wholesome common sense" in keeping education in the lower institutions free from the German standards of scholarship and efficiency which, he said, "have controlled the policy of our universities."

In one part of his address Dean Russell considered the popular conception of the purpose of the public schools. He said:

"The first question is, What are the schools for? The stereotyped answer is, The schools are for all the people. Suppose, however, that when the balance of power in our Government goes over to those who, in Mr. Schwab's words, 'work with their hands,' your new masters say that the schools are not, and never have been, intended to meet the needs of their children, that they were established to train leaders for Church and State, that their chief function today is to equip a favored few for professional work, that they cater to an aristocracy of high-brows and money-getters, that they spend the people's money to make one of a hundred the master of the other ninety-nine, and that, in short, they are not democratic either in aim or method."

To such charges Dean Russell gave this answer:

"The ready retort to such a challenge is that American schools, from the lowest to the highest, are open to all; that no one is denied educational advantages by reason of race, creed, or previous servitude; that public education is free, and that the system provides for instruction in any subject and to any extent that the public is willing to support."

COLLEGE PAPERS AID WAR.

Arrange for Co-operation with Committee on Public Information.

A meeting of the War Council of College Newspapers was held yesterday at the Columbia Club, 4 West Forty-third Street, and plans were discussed as to the manner of co-operation with the Committee on Public Information. The meeting was held under the auspices of the Phi Delta Epsilon, the national college journalism fraternity, at the suggestion of the Committee on Public Information.

Editors of college newspapers as far west as Michigan were represented at the gathering, which closed in the evening with a dinner at which the chief speaker was Arthur Brisbane.

The Committee on Public Information recently asked college newspaper editors to send a representative committee to Washington to co-operate in the work. The committee appointed yesterday consisted of five members, one from a technical college, one from an agricultural college, and three from academic institutions. The committee will be advisory in character, and it will meet for the first time this morning with Carl Boyer of the Committee on Public Information, who was sent here by George Creel to work with the college editors.

Franklin G. Dunham, National President of the Phi Delta Epsilon, presided at the meeting.

UNDER FIRE

HENRI BARBUSSE'S electrifying account of life in the trenches is not a story for the timidly squeamish nor for those who accept war as it is popularly described. "UNDER FIRE" is for those who would know war as it IS—as the common soldier sees it.

...THE FRENCH ARMY ...ANCE, Saturday, March ...y Associated Press).—A ...flood of German infantry ...d against the French lines ...y between Moreuil and Lassigny.

It was purely a battle of foot soldiers. Heavy masses of Germans were hurled against the French time after time, only to be cast back again by counter attacks.

This was especially the case around Lassigny, the town which formed the limit of the German line before their retreat in March of last year. The battle line fluctuated several times in the course of the day, both sides displaying the greatest obstinacy.

...TO-HAND FIGHTING...

Barbusse shows you it all—the sights, the sounds, the smells of war—a series of sacrifices that must go on until the spirit of war is annihilated. "Under Fire" is a story that makes every reader want to take up arms and fight.

Live it for yourself! Think with Bertrand, hate with Volpatte, love with Lamuse, and suffer with fair-haired Eudoxie—they are all in this story, universally acclaimed the masterpiece of the war.

THE long arm of the Transatlantic Cables brings the news of the Great Battle to THE NEW YORK TIMES ahead of all competitors.

It is the greatest event in history, this Battle of Europe, this Battle of the World.

Since it began no other newspaper has received reports from special correspondents at the front on the day they were written, that is, in time for publication next morning.

No other newspaper in America has ever maintained so lavish a cable service. Its cable tolls on a single daily dispatch from the battlefront frequently run close to $1,000.

THE NEW YORK TIMES was the first newspaper in America to announce the appointment of Foch as Generalissimo of the Allied Armies.

It printed Count Czernin's sensational speech a day ahead of all others.

From the beginning it has led all American newspapers in the prompt and comprehensive collection, and the clear presentation, of the news of the war.

Fourteen special correspondents at war centres report for it every new development in the struggle.

AUTO BANDITS GET $1,988 AND ESCAPE

Use One Stolen Car for Holdup and Another to Continue Their Flight.

CROWD WATCHES ROBBERY

Three Arrests Made After Adams Express Company Wagon Is Looted at Jamaica, L. I.

Four men with a stolen automobile held up an Adams Express Company wagon which had just left the Jamaica (L. I.) station yesterday forenoon, and, threatening the two men in charge with their revolvers, obtained $1,988 in cash from a small safe in the wagon and made off with it. The robbery occurred in Rockaway Road, within a few feet of Fulton Street, the principal thoroughfare of Jamaica, and within view of passing trolley cars.

The men in charge of the express company's wagon were Milton Allen of 90 Irving Place, assistant agent of the company at Jamaica, and James P. Fleming of 14 Archer Place, Jamaica. Three of the robbers covered them in true Western style, and the fourth man remained in the automobile ready to start up the machine when his confederates had completed their work, but the car, after they had jumped in and gone a short distance, became stalled.

People were standing on the sidewalk all this time gazing in amazement at what was taking place. They saw the four men jump out of the automobile when it became stalled and board a trolley car going west. The employes of the express company then drove in their wagon to the police station, a quarter of a mile away, and reported the robbery. The police found the automobile where the bandits had left it. It bore the license No. 121,825, New Jersey, and it proved that an alarm had been sent out for it as a stolen machine. As clues to the perpetrators of the robbery they found a loaded revolver, a hat, a cap, and two New York automobile license plates.

The robbers had first taken a Jamaica Avenue trolley car, and from it on reaching Queens Boulevard, changed to a car of the Manhattan and Queens line going toward Manhattan, but on seeing an automobile standing by the curb they left this car and got into the automobile.

Late in the afternoon the police made four arrests. Joseph Krauss of 337 East Twenty-seventh Street, Manhattan, who said he was a laborer; Joseph and Michael Spano of the same address, and Michael Delessandro of 446 East 139th Street, Manhattan, were the prisoners. The police are looking for a man known as "Whitey," said to have been the driver of the stolen car. He is believed to have the cash taken from the express company's safe.

About $3 was found under a mattress at the East Twenty-seventh Street address. The police found a young woman who gave the name of Dorothy Davis, and who said she ran away from her home, in Scranton, Penn., three weeks ago and had been living with Joseph Spano.

TO GET CONTROL OF MINES.

Bruce Goes Abroad to Eliminate German Interests.

Henry Bruce, former City Chamberlain, and now Vice President of the American Metal Company, 61 Broadway, has sailed from New York on his way to Switzerland. The purpose of his journey is said to be to negotiate with stockholders in Switzerland with a view of eliminating German interests in mining properties in Mexico allied with the American Metal Company.

The company has an authorized capital stock of $25,000,000. It was formerly recognized as a German-owned corporation. The property was taken over by the Custodian of Alien Property following the declaration of war by the United States. It is reported that the Mexican companies controlled by the American Metal Company are still in control of the Germans.

Governor Guest of Picture Men.

Governor James B. Goodrich of Indiana was the guest of several men prominent in the moving-picture industry yesterday at luncheon at the Astor. The Governor has come out in favor of the Sunday opening of moving-picture houses. C. C. Pettijohn was the toastmaster, and the speakers included D. W. Griffith and W. W. Irving. Among those present were William L. Sherrill, J. Robert Rubin, Lester Park, Raymond Pawley, and Merritt Crawford.

TO PARK MAYOR'S STREET.

Proposed to Make Bushwick Avenue a Brooklyn Beauty Spot.

A plan to turn Bushwick Avenue, Brooklyn, where Mayor Hylan lives, into a parkway has been received by the Board of Estimate. The bill was introduced into the Legislature as an enabling act by Senator Robert R. Lawson of Brooklyn, and will require the approval of the Estimate Board before it becomes operative. If the bill meets with no opposition the street in which the Mayor lives, between Myrtle and Jamaica Avenues, will be put under "the exclusive care, custody, control, and maintenance of the Department of Parks."

The Park Department under the terms of the bill is empowered to "make and enforce rules and regulations regarding the public use of said avenue." The part of Bushwick Avenue to be benefited is more than half its entire length. If the bill is adopted at the present session of the Legislature and has the approval of the Board of Estimate it is predicted that the Mayor's street will be changed into a parkway within a year.

ABERDEEN LAUDS OUR MEN.

Says Soldiers Show a Determination to Cope with Duty.

Addressing a large crowd at the noonday meeting of the Mayor's Committee on National Defense at City Hall Park yesterday, Lord Aberdeen spoke strongly against peace at this time "except by the sword." He said:

"I am for peace as a general proposition. I opposed the last war before this in which Great Britain was engaged, and I believe it can be stated with absolute frankness that even all who ordinarily are committed to peace must vor continuance of the present conflict until victory is achieved for the allied nations, which are standing steadfastly for human rights, liberty, and justice."

The speaker said that the American troops who paraded down Fifth Avenue a short time ago and those which had gone to England and France were men to be proud of.

"They lacked swagger," he said, "and showed by their features and bearing a determination to cope with duty in its every phase, which portends well for the glory of their country and the success of its cause."

BACK YARD PLAYGROUNDS.

Measure Provides for Voluntary Elimination of Fences.

A bill designed to use back yards for children's playgrounds which had been advocated by Magistrate Frederick B. Rouse in his safety campaign has been introduced in the Legislature by Assemblyman J. Fairfax McLaughlin, officials of the Traffic Court were informed yesterday. The measure, should it become law, would authorize the Mayor to appoint a commission of five members to negotiate with owners of private property for their consent in taking down fences separating yards, and the use of the yards as playgrounds for children. Such a commission could not, however, incur any expense to be a charge against the city.

The plan, it was stated, has been tried in London, where hundreds of houses have common rear yards, which in many instances have been turned into parks where children are safe from the danger of being injured by vehicular street traffic.

SUES VIOLET CONKLIN.

Mrs. McKenzie Wants Mortgages Turned Over to Defendant.

Mrs. Victoria A. McKenzie, a widow, 84 years old, who lives at Bretton Hall, filed suit in the Supreme Court yesterday against Mrs. Violet A. McKenzie Conklin, formerly her daughter-in-law and widow of Robert Conklin, a commission man, to recover $219,000 in mortgages which she alleges Mrs. Conklin obtained from her by fraud. From this fund the defendant was to receive an annuity of $3,000 and $100,000 on the death of Mrs. McKenzie.

The plaintiff alleged that when she was grieving over the death of her son, Clarence, in an automobile accident in 1907, the defendant, her son's widow, induced her to make the trust gift in her favor.

The defendant married Robert Conklin several years after her first husband's death, and his death occurred on Jan. 10, 1916. Mrs. McKenzie is now prosecuting Richard P. Lane, a promoter, on a charge of defrauding her out of securities worth $200,000. Lane is under indictment.

ASKS AUTOS FOR UPTON.

Defense Society Co-operates with Automobile Association.

Maintaining that we must show soldiers at the camps that the people of the United States are back of them to the finish, William Guggenheim, Chairman of the Army and Navy Committee of the American Defense Society, yesterday made public the fact that the committee has called upon the people of New York to donate their cars to the American Automobile Association for the use of the relatives of the men at Camp Upton, and has started a fund to be contributed to by persons who are unable to supply cars and want to help in this work. Mrs. Guggenheim, a member of the committee, heads the list with a contribution of $50. Mr. Guggenheim said:

"The committee is glad to extend to the American Automobile Association their hearty approval of its plan to supply free trips to Upton and to promise their loyal and strong co-operation. While the best of our young manhood is preparing to make the supreme sacrifice to protect the rest of us here at home, we are glad to urge upon the people of New York that they make the sacrifice of pleasure riding on Sundays, which is, after all, a luxury, and that they turn their cars over to the American Automobile Association. If they are unable to turn over their cars, we invite them to contribute to the fund started so that we may supply buses to the people wishing to go to Upton."

Contributions may be sent to William Guggenheim, 44 East Twenty-third Street.

EX-WIFE SUES C. H. SABIN.

Seeks to Enforce Agreement with President of Guaranty Trust Co.

Charles H. Sabin, President of the Guaranty Trust Company, has been sued in the Supreme Court by his former wife, Mrs. Mabel Whitney Blagden, who was married to Dexter Blagden on Monday in Grace Church, to enforce the terms of a trust agreement executed by Mr. Sabin at the time she divorced him. The New York Trust Company, appointed Trustee in the agreement, is also named as a defendant. The suit is based on the alleged refusal of the parties to comply with the agreement.

No papers in the case have been filed, except an agreement between the attorneys for the parties that the action is to be decided by Walter C. Noyes, former Federal Judge. The attorneys declined to say yesterday whether the remarriage of Mrs. Sabin on Monday was the cause of the suit. Mr. Sabin was married in December to Mrs. Pauline Morton Smith, daughter of the late Paul Morton.

Why the Easy Rolling Franklin is Outselling all Other Fine Cars

It has been said that "A striking picture is better than a thousand words."

Here is a picture that is better than a whole dictionary in enabling you to get at a glance the fact that the Franklin Car is easy to move—and hence, requires less fuel to move it.

This is an actual picture of the little daughter of W. J. Doughty of Detroit, pulling a Franklin Touring Car several blocks on a level stretch with her skipping rope, to show why the Franklin goes farthest on a gallon of gasoline.

The whole secret is in Franklin Easy-Rolling—one, big, fundamental reason behind the fact that sales of Franklin Scientific Light Weight Cars increased last year 135%, against the 12% increase of all other fine cars.

Easy-Rolling means minimized friction—and where there is little friction, less power is required to move a car. The Franklin is scientifically free from excess friction, drag and weight; it converts into sheer driving energy every ounce of power that the heavy car wastes in dragging 1500 pounds unnecessary weight.

It is a fact that the Franklin, on the same amount of initial power will coast farther than any car in the country—a direct result of its Scientific Light Weight, its Flexible Construction, its Balance and Resiliency.

That is why Franklin Cars deliver
20 miles to the gallon of Gasoline, instead of 10.
10,000 miles to the set of tires instead of 5,000.

This easy-rolling, light weight construction explains the Franklin qualities of easy handling—of instant responsiveness. It answers to the throttle quickly, speeds up easily and takes brake-application just as quickly.

Easy Rolling Means Easy Control

Light weight naturally means easy steering. Moreover, the caster-action front wheels and reversible steering gear allow the Franklin to keep in the course without tugging and to right itself without effort in taking corners.

This quick-response, easy handling quality indicates why the Franklin can travel long distances, frequently necessary in these times, without strain on its passengers and with minimum wear on itself and its tires.

Cold Weather Starting Easy!
Electric Primer makes tow grade gasoline act like old time high-test grade. Spark plugs stay clean. Raw gasoline in cylinders prevented.

Positive Ignition.
"Feeble" Battery trouble obviated. In starting, the Franklin owner cuts in the buzzer on his Master Vibrator and gets a fat, hot spark that fires the mixture.

Quick Response to Starter.
Starting device has vigorous action; battery has big reserve. No hesitation in the Franklin when you switch on the starter.

Tire Mileage!
Franklin Light Weight and Flexibility always produced remarkable tire-mileage. 33 x 4½ inch cord tires now on all types assures even greater tire-reliability.

Proof Within Your Reach

There is one thing that sticks out all over the motor car situation today. That is, a car must either be economically in tune with the times, or else pretend to be, by talking about it.

The difference is only discernible when you know the facts.

Franklin Facts are actual, tangible things, open to your inspection—short, straight and to the point. Drop in the Franklin Sales Room and get those facts. Examine carefully the and the latest Features which indicate the "Ahead-of-the Times" Franklin policy. Features that appeal to the thinking motorist—for every one of them is a positive step toward the goal of motoring perfection.

Takes up Cylinder-Wear.
Latest construction automatically takes up cylinder wear, which in average engine, usually means leaks in compression. Franklin retains responsiveness of a well-worked in car, even after considerable running.

Intake Yoke Heater.
Quick warming up of mixture assured by using exhaust gases. Original with the Franklin; perfected in today's car.

Lessens Repair Bills!
Air Intake Strainer keeps road dust, grit, etc. out of engine internals. A new device that cuts down wear in cylinders, valves, pistons, etc. and lessens your repair bills.

No More Grease Troubles!
No more bothering with messy Grease Cups! New Oil Reservoir and Wick System on today's Franklin prevents this trouble.

All These Latest Features Now on Exhibition in our Salesrooms. The Franklin Car is designed to meet the big preponderance of motoring requirements — eight types

WATCHMAN SLAIN NEAR WHITE HOUSE

James W. King, Employe of Creel Bureau, Shot by Negro Fireman After a Quarrel.

TRAGEDY STARTS SPY SCARE

German Agents Suspected Until William Clements Surrenders and Confesses Shooting.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—James William King, 58 years old, who had been employed as night watchman in the once famous old mansion now occupied by the Creel Committee on Public Information, fronting Lafayette Square from 10 Jackson Place, opposite the White House, was shot and killed in the hallway of the building at 5:45 o'clock this morning.

The shooting occurred near the front door within plain view almost of the White House, and for twelve hours presented a mystery to the police, even leading to the suggestion that King had been killed by German agents seeking some of the secret information.

These theories, however, all vanished late this afternoon when William Clements, 40 years old, a negro, who had been employed several days only as a fireman by the Creel committee, walked into Police Headquarters, accompanied by his brother, surrendered himself to the police, and confessed that he had shot King. Clements was questioned an hour and a half and told a story that hung together. Before his arrest the police had been scouring the city for Clements when it developed that he had not been seen around the building after the shooting, and that his wife had told the police he had spoken of a quarrel with King.

Clements told the police, in his confession tonight, that he had quarreled with King. He said the watchman had questioned his right as fireman to go to parts of the building occupied by the Creel Bureau. The negro said that King drew a revolver and leveled it upon him but that the weapon failed to fire. Then, the negro said, he himself drew a revolver and shot and killed King.

When King's body was found his revolver and a cobblestone lay near by. The cartridges indicated that the weapon had been snapped and had missed fire. It is suspected that the negro first tried to use the cobblestone in the quarrel with King and that this prompted the watchman to try to shoot. King was shot under the right arm, in a position which appeared to indicate that he was killed while his arm was extended.

King was a native of Georgetown, Ky. He was a carpenter and had served as foreman in Panama for a period of about fifteen months prior to 1914, when he and his wife returned here and visited a son in Wilmington, Del. They had resided in this city since that time. King was appointed to the post of watchman in the Jackson Place building three months ago.

BRINGS IN $6,000,000 CARGO.

Cotton Shipped from Egypt Is Valued at $1 a Pound.

BOSTON, April 4.—Nine thousand bales of long-staple Egyptian cotton, valued at $4,500,000, or nearly $1 a pound, is being unloaded here today for delivery to New England importers. It is the second large shipment to reach this port since July. The ship also brought 220 tons of gum, which put the total value of the cargo well above $6,000,000.

Dealers said the cotton cost considerably more than the last previous shipment because of the steadily advancing prices and higher rates for ship space and insurance.

MUST WEAR AMERICAN FLAG

Illinois Loyalists Also Require Pro-German to Lead Loan Parade.

ATHENS, Ill., April 4.—John W. Rynders, a grocer, accused of uttering pro-German sentiments, today wore about his neck an American flag, tied there last night by loyalists, who forced him to kiss the emblem and to swear allegiance to the American cause. He was told that to remove the flag from his neck would cause serious consequences.

Rynders was informed that he would be expected to lead a Liberty Day parade Saturday. He promised to do so.

CIRCUS TO GIVE A PARADE.

Resumption of Old Institution Will Be in Interest of Liberty Loan.

New York is to have a circus parade. That small-town delight which the average metropolis-born youngster knows only as a legend is to take place on next Wednesday morning, rain or shine, in order to stimulate interest in the Liberty Loan. Fifth Avenue promises a glimpse of many of the wonders ordinarily safely housed inside the Madison Square Garden arena.

There are to be a mounted police escort and an aggregation of massed military bands. The parade will start promptly from Madison Square Garden at 10 o'clock, proceeding through Twenty-seventh Street to Fifth Avenue, north to Fifty-seventh Street, to Madison Avenue, and back to the Garden in plenty of time to give the participants time to rest up before the afternoon performance.

Besides helping the Liberty Loan, the circus is doing its share in aiding the War Savings Stamp campaign, and is even letting some of its most attractive little freaks use the off hours when the children are watching the main show to sell stamps to those who stray in to look at the freaks and the animals.

CELEBRATE YEAR OF WAR.

French Institute Also to Open Exhibition of Colored Prints.

On April 6 the anniversary of our entrance into the war, the French Institute in the United States will give a diplomatic luncheon for André Tardieu, the French High Commissioner at the Ritz Carlton.

The Hon. Sir Henry Babington Smith, representing Lord Reading; Governor Whitman, Myron T. Herrick, and Charles B. Alexander, representing the Board of Regents of the State of New York, will be the speakers.

Following the luncheon the guests of honor will be escorted to the temporary rooms of the French Institute in the United States at 599 Fifth Avenue. There Mr. Tardieu will open the special loan collection of eighteenth century colored prints from the private collections of life members and officers of the Museum of French Art, the arts section of the institute.

GOVERNMENT TO SEND ANTI-VICE AGENT HERE

Capt. Timothy Pfeifer to Protect Soldiers and Sailors from Pitfalls of New York.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—Chairman Fosdick of the Committee on Training Camp Activities, which brought about the establishment of prohibition zones around army camps and naval training stations and has been investigating the vice situation near naval stations, intends to turn its attention immediately to conditions in New York City and the ports of embarkation in its vicinity.

Mr. Fosdick said tonight that General Pershing had sent a cabled request that special attention be devoted to the protection of American soldiers at points of embarkation, and that it was the purpose of the committee in the very near future to place a representative in New York City to guard the men against liquor and other vices. The agent to be sent there, Mr. Fosdick said, would be Captain Timothy Pfeifer, who is an attorney. He will place himself in touch with the municipal authorities and seek their co-operation in protecting the soldiers and sailors.

Because thousands of soldiers will pass through the embarkation camps en route to France during the next few months the work to be intrusted to Captain Pfeifer is considered the most important that has yet been undertaken by the committee. Mr. Fosdick said that the proper enforcement of the laws for the protection of young soldiers would not only lessen the vast work that must be done by the Medical Corps of the army, but that it was important in the present situation that the reinforcements going to Europe be in as good physical condition as possible.

875,000 Pounds of Picric for France.

Judge Mayer of the Federal District Court signed an order yesterday authorizing the receivers of the Aetna Explosives Company to complete an agreement dated Feb. 22 for the delivery to France of 875,000 pounds of picric acid. In exchange for this acid the company will receive a large quantity of phenol acid, which it greatly needs. The order also authorizes the receivers to pay the Indiana Coke and Gas Company $35,000 in settlement of all claims to date.

FIRST EAGLEBOAT IN JUNE.

Can Turn Out Three Submarine Killers a Day, Says Ford.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—With the first of the Eagleboats, the new type of submarine chaser for the navy, scheduled for launching in June, Henry Ford, the builder, has assured Secretary Daniels it would be possible under great stress to turn the craft out three a day. Next Monday Mr. Daniels will inspect the Ford plant near Detroit, where construction is in progress. A pattern boat virtually has been completed there, and will be ready for a shore trial of the engines within ten days.

Under present plans, Mr. Ford contemplates launching a boat a day after the building process is in full swing. The materials for the vessels have been provided for, and officials hope that it will be only a short time before the regular cycle of one boat a day is attained.

WAR ORGANIZATION CLOSES.

American Convalescent Home Will Cease Operating.

The war charity known as the American Convelescent Home Association, which proposes to raise $500,000 for the benefit of American soldiers in France, will cease collecting for the fund because of criticism of its purpose that had reached the District Attorney's office.

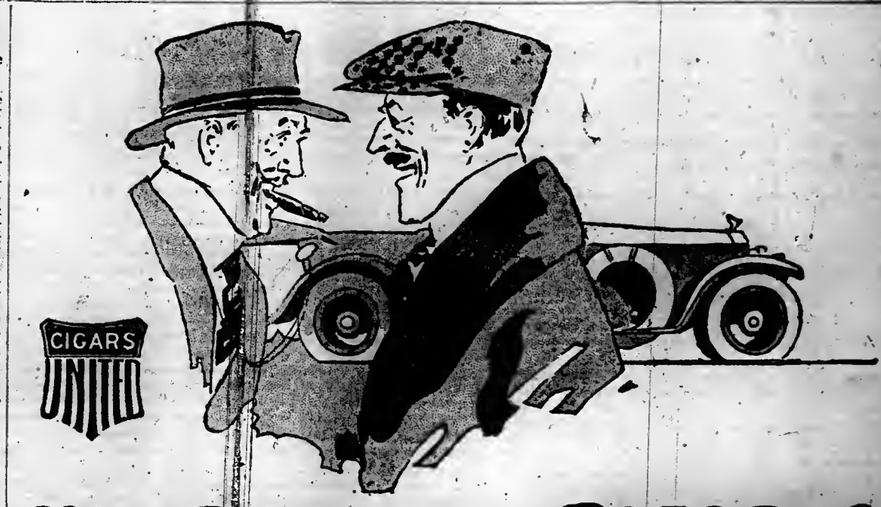
There were no formal complaints or charges against the organization, but Mrs. Dearborn J. Adams, Secretary and Treasurer, went voluntarily to Assistant District Attorney Owen W. Bohan yesterday and announced that she would turn over to him the rest of the funds she held, to be given to the Red Cross. Not more than $1,000 had been collected and expenses had used up most of it, Mrs. Adams said.

LABOR MEETING PUT OFF.

Situation in France Causes English Leaders to Go Slow.

LONDON, April 4.—In view of the uncertainty of the situation on the Western front, it is announced, the National Executive of the Labor Party and the Parliamentary Committee of the Trades Union Congress have decided to postpone the joint meeting for inaugurating a national campaign in support of labor's war aims and policy of social reconstruction.

The meeting was to be held next Tuesday.



Who Discovered RICORO?

"My chauffeur discovered Ricoro," said the man in the Packard. "We were passing through Buffalo, going west on an auto trip.

"I ran out of cigars and when we happily came to a United Cigar Store, I gave him a dollar bill to get some smokes.

"He came out with a handful of big, fine-looking cigars, and held out some change.

"I looked at the change and told him the clerk must have made a mistake. He just grinned and held a lighted match for me.

"I took a puff—another—and a couple more, and sent him in for a box. They were Ricoro Coronas—8c each.

"That discovery was the most enjoyable event of my trip."

Let me point out in the driving compartment the ample leg-room, trim instrument board, adjustable pedals, long cane type gear shift lever—the thoroughly convenient and comfortable arrangement throughout.

Chas. E. Riess

WOMEN drivers have always given the Hupmobile more than a measure of approval. We predict that the Series "R" will excel in their favor all former Hupmobile models.

Its beautiful appearance—long, low body with graceful, sweeping lines—will instantly attract them.

On the score of ease of operation the new Hupmobile takes front rank.

A tap of the foot operates the starter. Foot levers for clutch and brakes are especially soft operating and easily adjustable to suit all drivers. The hand brake lever can be pulled to the last notch with one finger.

Steering is easy: gear shifting is easy.

Women, whether they drive or not, cannot fail to appreciate the unusual comfort of the Series "R." Its deep, soft cushions, its roomy tonneau and driving compartment, its long, flexible springs, make riding the pleasure it should be.

Tris Plays Star Role in Cleveland's Victory—Anderson Is Hit Hard and Often.

Special to The New York Times.

DALLAS, Texas, April 4.—After their experience in whaling soft minor league and soldier teams the Giants ran up against some real big league baseball here today and were badly worsted. The Cleveland Indians displayed dashing baseball against New York and won the first game of the exhibition series by a score of 4 to 1.

The great Speaker was much in evidence in Cleveland's victory. He drove out two doubles, which knocked in three of the four runs scored by Fohl's tribesmen. The Giants, however, had the satisfaction of stopping Tris on the bases. Rariden caught him napping off first base in the opening inning, and in the fifth Kauff threw him out at the plate when he tried to score from second base on a single.

Anderson started for the Giants and got a thorough drubbing. In six innings the Indians pierced his delivery for ten clean hits, four of them doubles. Only the sharpest support prevented Anderson from taking a worse beating. Two men were nipped at the plate and Speaker was caught off third at important moments.

Sallee relieved Anderson in the seventh and no one reached base on him. Both Coveleski and Lambeth pitched well for Cleveland, though the former permitted all of New York's six hits.

Cleveland scored in the first inning when Graney doubled to centre, hitting the first pitch, reached third on Chapman's sacrifice, and scored when Speaker bounced a hot double off Holke's chest.

New York tied in the fourth when Doyle, Fletcher, and Rariden bunched singles. Cleveland won with three in the fifth. O'Neill singled, stole second, and took third on Coveleski's hit. Burns made a sensational catch on Graney and Chapman doubled to centre, scoring O'Neill. Speaker sent his second double to right, driving in Coveleski and Chapman.

SOX STILL SLAYING ROBINS.

Boston Team Takes Dodgers Into Camp This Time by 10 to 4.

Special to The New York Times.

AUSTIN, Texas, April 4.—In a free hitting game, in which both clubs hit the opposing pitchers hard, the Boston Red Sox today defeated Brooklyn by a score of 10 to 4. Boston made nineteen hits and Brooklyn fourteen. With the aid of short fences four solo runs were made in the game. Hooper, McInnis, Wyckoff, and Daubert knocking the ball out of the park. The contest was witnessed by 1,600 cadets of the senior military aviators' school conducted by the Government here.

The game became listless after the fourth inning when Boston hit Dan Griner for six safe blows, including a home run, a triple and a double, and scored four runs. Griner gave way to Larry Cheney in the next inning, but Brooklyn could not get the runs back. Bush and Wyckoff did the pitching for Boston.

Dave Shean, recently obtained from Cincinnati by Boston, had a remarkable day at bat. He made five hits in five times up.

The teams will play tomorrow at Houston, where friends of Jack Coombs have planned a celebration for the veteran of the Brooklyn pitching staff. Coombs now makes his home at Palestine, Texas.

MINOR LEAGUE REORGANIZED

Eight Eastern Cities Decide to Revive International Circuit.

A new International Baseball League, still with a Class AA rating, was organized last night at a meeting held at the Biltmore Hotel, when representatives of eight Eastern cities unanimously decided to revive the game in the big minor circuit. Of the old International League circuit, Toronto, Buffalo, Rochester, Baltimore, and Newark were admitted to the new organization. Jersey City, a former franchise holder in the old International, also is in the new circuit, and the other two cities to be represented are Binghamton and Syracuse of the New York State League.

John H. Farrell, Secretary of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues, and last season President of the New York State League, was in charge of the meeting and is said to be the choice for the presidency of the new league. After a long conference the league was finally organized when Joseph J. Lannin assured those present that he would operate at Buffalo.

Lannin owned the Buffalo franchise in the old International, but this franchise was forfeited. At a recent sale of the Buffalo ball park Lannin bought the property at auction. George S. Johnson of Binghamton and Frank T. Miller of Syracuse completed the roster of the clubs when both assured the men at the meeting that they were able to guarantee the carrying through of the project. Newark was not represented at the meeting, but a franchise went to that city under the name of James T. Price, since it was known that Price was favorable. Price is on his way from Chicago now. He went to Chicago to see some of his backers in the Newark project.

The Board of Directors of the new league is composed of J. J. Lannin, Buffalo, Chairman; J. J. McCaffery, Toronto; C. P. Chapin, Rochester; Dave Driscoll, Jersey City; Jack Dunn, Baltimore; James T. Price, Newark; Frank T. Miller, Syracuse, and George S. Johnson, Binghamton.

It was decided to begin operations on May 8 and close the season on Sept. 15. Just how many games will be played is to be decided at a meeting to be held this morning. Sunday games will be played in all cities excepting Toronto. A double umpire system will be in vogue and the player limit will be fixed at fourteen men and a manager. Each club guarantees $100 a day to the visiting club, rain or shine, which gives the league Class AA rating.

YANKS WIN IN ELEVENTH.

Come from Behind and Topple Braves Again, 3 to 2.

Special to The New York Times.

ORANGEBURG, S. C., April 4.—This afternoon the Yankees and Braves furnished a thrilling eleven-inning battle of big League baseball to a goodly crowd of South Carolina fans, the former winning, 3 to 2, and making the series stand four straight in their favor. The occasion was the opening day of the Liberty Loan campaign here, and there were 3,500 at the game, although the population of the town is only 2,500.

It looked as though Boston would win early in the contest. The Braves put over two runs in the fourth and Ragan held the Yanks helpless to the seventh. Then, however, with the bases full, Ragan was taken out for a pinch hitter, and the tying runs were scored off Hughes in the eighth and the winning one in the last frame.

In the fourth the Braves got their tallies. Powell beat out an infield bounder to Baker, and then Wickland hit in front of the plate and Hannah threw past Pipp, Powell scoring and Wickland going to second. He advanced to third on Wilson's out and scored on Rawling's fly to Bodie.

In the eighth Hannah singled to start the inning and Ruel ran for him. High batted for Russell and walked, Gilhooley sacrificed, and then Miller walked, filling the bases. Pratt popped out, but Pipp's single scored Ruel and High. Miller was caught trying to make third.

The eleventh was a hot frame for both sides. Wickland bit far over Bodie's head into the spectators in left field for a ground-rule double. Wilson's bunt sent him to third in a close play and Wilson was safe at first. Smith popped to Peck. Rawlings was purposely passed, filling the bags. Then Mogridge got Conway on strikes, and Henry, who had made three hits, forced Rawlings.

In the Yankee's half Baker singled to centre. Bodie, after trying to bunt, hit to Hughes, who threw to Rawlings at second. Conway interfered with the throw and Baker was safe. Peck's bunt rolled safe and the bases were full. Ruel hit to Wilson, who threw Baker out at the plate. Then Vick, hitting for Mogridge, singled and it was all over.

Bill James and Dick Covington collided while the Braves were at infield practice and both were knocked unconscious, James suffering the loss of two teeth and was bruised about the face, and Covington's knee is badly hurt. This necessitated the playing of Wilson at first base. The score:

Taberski Wins Exhibitions.

Frank Taberski, the world's professional pocket billiard champion, played two handicap matches at Doyle's Academy yesterday. In the afternoon he defeated W. Winchell and C. Woods, the score being 125 to 116. In the evening Taberski defeated a team of women, Miss Florence Flower, the New York State champion and Miss Maud Flower. The title holder played them on the basis of 15 or no count and won by 75 to 39. Taberski will again play against the women tonight.

ATTAIN SEMI-FINAL BRACKETS AT NET

Cragin-Cunningham and Smith-Shafer Teams Advance in Tennis Doubles.

Play in the national indoor tennis championships at the Seventh Regiment Armory yesterday was of a decidedly limited character. Only two matches were contested, and both of those came in the doubles. Arthur S. Cragin and W. Dixon Cunningham came through to the semi-final round of the event by defeating C. A. Anderson and C. Chambers at 6—3, 6—1, and King Smith and G. Carleton Shafer advanced when they triumphed over S. R. MacAllister and H. L. Bowman at 6—2, 6—1.

Both of these victorious teams are in the upper half of the draw and will meet in the semi-final round today. In the lower half the teams are W. T. Tilden, 2d, and Cecil Donaldson and the national indoor champions, Frederick B. Alexander and Dr. William Rosenbaum.

The semi-final round matches in singles are also set for this afternoon. In the upper half of the draw Tilden will play Alexander and in the lower half Voshell will pit his skill against that of King Smith.

The team of Cunningham and Cragin played excellent tennis in earning its victory, which advanced the pair to the semi-final round. This combination is well balanced, and, with fine co-ordination of play, is expected to prove a hard one to beat. Cragin showed that he is a master of the indoor game, his driving against Anderson and Chambers being a formidable factor in the contest. He was particularly adept with his back-hand cross-courting shots, which sizzled from his racquet for frequent placements.

Cragin had an unerring eye for picking the openings, and once they had been established he slashed his shots through sharply. Cunningham did his best work from the deep court, but in every department he provided able support to Cragin's efforts and made some brilliant strokes.

Smith and Shafer also showed a nicely rounded bit of doubles play. Both are masters of the game on boards, and they carried the contest through to their credit against MacAllister and Bowman without experiencing any discomforting opposition.

READY FOR TENNIS PLAY.

West Side Club Will Open Its Courts Tomorrow.

The West Side Tennis Club of Forest Hills, L. I., opens for the season tomorrow, and if the weather then is as favorable for tennis as it has been the last two week-ends, many tennis players will take advantage of this chance to get on the courts. Charles S. Landers, the President, in announcing the opening said that about twenty-five courts would be in commission. These are in better condition than ever before, as considerable work has been done on them.

Various improvements are under way, one of the most important being the erection of a five-foot wire fence between groups of three or four courts. This will prevent balls from rolling a great distance from the courts where they are in play.

TWO WIN TITLES ON MAT.

Hochberg and Disch Gain Amateur Wrestling Championships.

T. Hochberg of the Boys' Club and Charles L. Disch, Norwegian-American A. C., were crowned Metropolitan Association A. A. U. wrestling champions in their respective classes last night in the ring of the Crescent A. C. of Brooklyn. Hochberg gained the 108-pound title by receiving the referee's decision over Abe Stewman, a clubmate, in their final fifteen-minute tussle. Disch, showing exceptional ability, scored a fall over Anthony Glass, Hungarian-American A. C., in 7:39 in the final bout for the heavyweight title and gained the championship. Disch tumbled his more rotund rival with a head scissors and arm lock hold after an interesting bout.

The unusually heavy entry, with the subsequent increase in the number of bouts, caused the New Moon organization officials to abandon their original program. It had been planned to end the tournament last night, but the great number of bouts made it necessary to continue the tournament tomorrow night when semi-final and final matches in all but the 108-pound, and heavyweight divisions will be held. Eighteen bouts will be held.

The summaries:

Heavyweight Class, Semi-finals.—C. L. Disch, Norwegian-American A. C., defeated P. Knuppinew, Kalava A. C., referee's decision, 10:00; A. Glass, Hungarian-American A. C., threw Dr. J. N. West, unattached, with a reverse arm lock and body hold, in 4:58.

Final Bout—Disch threw Glass with a head scissors and arm lock, in 7:39.

158-Pound Class.—W. Sjaholm, Swedish-American A. C., threw J. Collins, Greek-American A. C., with a head lock, in 8:02; S. Reynedal, Norwegian-American A. C., defeated H. Hauson, Atlas A. C., referee's decision, 10:00; J. Touminen, Finnish-American A. C., threw J. Abrahamson, Central Y. M. C. A., with a body hold, in 4:06; T. Frank, Greek-American A. C., defeated J. Leahy, Eastern District Y. M. C. A., referee's decision, in 10:00.

Second Trials—Sjaholm threw Collins with a head lock, in 3:02; Reynedal defeated M. Yanowkis, National Turn Verein, Newark, N. J., referee's decision, in 10:00; Touminen defeated W. Amerikos, Greek-American A. C., referee's decision, in 10:00; J. Molnar, Hungarian-American A. C., defeated Frank, referee's decision, in 10:00.

C., with a body hold, in 8:28; A. J. Pascarella, Hungarian-American A. C.; defeated S. Gluck, Hungarian-American A. C.; referee's decision, in 10:00.

108-Pound Class, Semi-final Bouts—T. Hochberg, Boys' Club, threw M. E. Krassner, High School of Commerce, with a half-Nelson, in 0:57; A. Stewman, Boys' Club, threw A. Werner, Boys' Club, with an arm hold, in 5:23.

Final Bout—Hochberg defeated Stewman, referee's decision, in 10:00.

145-Pound Class—J. Skogland, Norwegian-American A. C., defeated T. Barish, unattached; referee's decision, in 10:00. W. Tikka, Finnish-American A. C., defeated O. Grimstad, Norwegian-American A. C.; referee's decision, in 10:00. Carl Carlson, unattached, defeated A. L. Schussler, Hungarian-American A. C.; referee's decision, in 10:00. C. Johnson, unattached, defeated L. Gaigle, Greek-American A. C.; referee's decision, in 10:00.

JUDGE WINGFIELD IN VAN.

Sets Fast Pace in Fourth Race at Bowie Track.

BOWIE, Md., April 4.—W. L. Oliver's four-year-old gelding, Judge Wingfield, set a dizzy pace in the fourth race, at one mile, here today, and not only outfooted its field, but outgamed All Smiles and Eagle, the two contenders, which tried desperately to overhaul the Oliver entrant. Judge Wingfield raced well all the way, and easily proved the best in the event, notwithstanding the race was marred by a bad start which practically left Lazy Lou at the post and sent the others away in a straggly line.

In the last race of the day Tootsie finished second, but was disqualified for crossing in front of Boxer. The interference may have cost Boxer the race, as Boxer was coming strong at the stretch turn and running over the rest of the field. James Arthur's Margery was the winner of the race.

The summaries:

FIRST RACE.—For maiden two-year-old colts and geldings; purse $600; four furlongs. Sid C. Keener, 115 pounds, (Butwell,) $6.20, $3.20, $2.20, won; John Powers, 115, (J. McTaggart,) $9.20, $3, second; Jack Leary, 115, (Parrington,) $3.50, third. Time—40 4-5. Taffy, Poultney, and Belivaal also ran.

SECOND RACE.—For three-year-olds and upward; claiming; six and one-half furlongs. Indian Chant, 113 pounds, (Stirling,) $6.40, $3.10, $2.70, won, Ina Kay, 103, (Rodrigues,) $2.70, $2.30, second; Carbide, 108, (Ensor,) $2.70, third. Time—1:21 4-5. Scarpia, second; Mico Girl, Anxiety, Veldt, and Frenchy also ran.

THIRD RACE.—For three-year-olds and upward; claiming; purse $600; six and one-half furlongs. Preston Lynn, 108 pounds, (Rodriguez,) $11, $4.10, $3.90, won; Ornery, 95, (Mergler,) $3.20, $3.10, second; Peep Again, 106, (Pickens,) $7.70, third. Time—1:22. Charles Cannell, Dengro, Dominion Park, Lady London, True as Steel, and Little Sweeper also ran.

FOURTH RACE.—For three-year-olds and upward; selling, one mile. Judge Wingfield, 104 pounds, (Enzer,) $8.70, $5.30, $3.30, won; All Smiles, 114, (Rice,) $3.80, $2.90, second; Eagle, 109, (Rodriguez,) $3.40, third. Time—1:42 3-5. Gohlin, Fair Mac, and Lazy Lou also ran.

FIFTH RACE.—For three-year-olds; claiming; purse $600; one mile. Senator Broderick, 103 pounds, (Rodriguez,) $7.90, $4.80, $2.80, won; Lord Herbert, 106, (McAtee,) $4, $3, second; Treadlightly, 2d, 106, (Caldwell,) $3.90, third. Time—1:45 1-5. Odalisque, Miss Filloy, Beautiful Kathryn, and Thamar also ran.

SIXTH RACE.—For four-year-olds and up; claiming; purse $600; one mile and seventy yards. The Busybody, 107 pounds, (Stirling,) $7.90, $3.20, $2.60, won; Hudas Brother, 110, (Rodriguez,) $3, $2.20, second; Freda Johnson, 105, (McAtee,) $2.60, third. Time—1:49 1-5. Marie G., Flora Finch, Inquiota, and Jerry, Jr., also ran.

SEVENTH RACE.—For four-year-olds and upward; purse $600; claiming; mile and seventy yards. Margery, 102 pounds, (Rodriguez,) $5, $4, $2.70, won; Boxer, 110, (Casey,) $5.50, $3.60, second; Disturber, 105, (Stalker,) $2.90, third. Time—1:49 4-5. Mickross, Beautiful Morn, Blackford, and Tootsie also ran. Tootsie finished second, but was disqualified for fouling.

SHERIDAN FUND LAUNCHED.

Meeting Held to Arrange for Memorial and $1,100 is Realized.

More than 500 followers of athletics and friends and admirers of the late Martin J. Sheridan, Olympic and National A. A. U. champion athlete, attended a meeting at the Irish-American A. C. last night for the purpose of organizing a committee to attend to the details of the proposed memorial fund which is being raised to honor the memory of the dead athlete. Supreme Court Justice Daniel F. Cohalan was selected as Chairman of the committee, and his associates will be Dock Commissioner Murray Hulbert, Thomas Rourke, John J. McHugh, and Patrick J. Conway, President of the Irish-American A. C.

Police Commissioner Enright and Inspectors Morris and Tunney were among those who sent their regrets at not being able to attend the meeting, as was also Fire Chief Kenlon. All, however, expressed their hearty approval of the plan.

While the principal purpose of the meeting was formally to appoint a committee, $1,100 was unexpectedly realized before the meeting closed. Some of those who contributed to this amount were the Mayo Men's Association, $250; Clare Men's Association, $100; Patrick V. Kyne, $100; Tierney O'Rourke, $100; Dock Commissioner Hulbert, $50, and A. J. Barrett, $50. Patrick Kyne also announced that he had donated a cup for The Evening Mail Modified Marathon scheduled for May 4 as a memorial to Sheridan, to be awarded to the first soldier or sailor finishing the race. Several thousand dollars more was also pledged to the fund.

Greenleaf Leads Concannon.

Ralph Greenleaf slightly increased his lead over Joseph Concannon in their pocket billiard match at Maurice Daly's Academy yesterday. In the afternoon he won by 100 to 79, and in the evening scored at 100 to 82. Greenleaf now has a total score of 800 as compared with 752 for Concannon.

Hub Team Scores 697 to 691 in Intercity Match Held at Lakewood.

Special to The New York Times.

LAKEWOOD, N. J., April 4.—Boston Athletic Association shooters led a team of New York Athletic Club nimrods today in the first day's shooting of the clay bird tournament which is on here for three days at the traps of the Laurel House Gun Club. The "Hub" shooters broke 697 targets out of 750, while the New York team accounted for 691. D. F. McMahon of New York was way off his usual form. Had he performed as well as his teammates the first day's shoot would have been New York's. The New York A. C. team members and their scores are: Dr. G. H. Martin, 141; D. F. McMahon, 128; W. H. Yule, 140; W. S. Silkworth, 140, and R. L. Spotts, 142. On the Boston A. A. team: G. L. Osborn, 139; L. F. Curtis, 146; J. L. Snow, 131; L. H. Davis, 142, and Jay Clark, Jr., 139. Spotts broke his first seventy-five without a miss, but dropped eight in the second half.

In the first day's session Clarence B. Platt of Bridgeton, N. J., doubles champion of the United States, broke 146 out of 150 targets and tied for first place with L. F. Curtis of the Boston A. A. C. H. Newcomb, Fred Plum, Allen Heiland, and Billy Ford scored well in the morning, but in the afternoon they all fell back. Twenty shooters broke 140 or better of the 147 who faced the traps.

Eugene Dupont of Wilmington, Del., presented a trophy which will be shot for on Saturday in the 16-yard event and in the handicap match.

The trophies in Class B were won by M. McVoy, W. B. Short, and L. W. Thompson, all of New York. Class C trophies were taken by F. A. Baker, New York; W. C. Pritchard, Lancaster; H. K. Curtis, Chappaqua, and F. E. Wooten, Philadelphia, tied for third. Class D trophies went to W. C. Bowers, New York; G. H. Hunt, Roxbury, Mass., and W. S. Mathews, Lakewood.

POGGENBURG CUP TO SPEAR.

Victories Over Klinger and Lewis Decide Billiard Tourney.

Standing of the Players.

	Won.	Lost.	H. R.	H. Av.
Spear	4	0	21	4 15-25
Servatius	2	1	18	3 7-18
Lewis	1	2	19	3 22-31
Klinger	0	4	54	7 20-30

By winning both of the games in which he competed yesterday, George Spear triumphed in the Poggenburg Memorial handicap billiard tournament at the Brooklyn Billiard Academy, which came to an end last night. In the afternoon Spear won over Jacob Klinger and in the evening vanquished Claude R. Lewis. The victory over Klinger was recorded by a score of 115 to 235, the latter being called upon to reach 250 as against 115 by his rival. Spear defeated Lewis by 115 to 37. His best average of the final round-robin was made in this game, when he attained the mark of 4 15-25.

The veteran player, Louis A. Servatius, captured second place, closing out his string of matches with a brilliant victory over Klinger. The score in this match was 115 to 118, Servatius of the Class C ranks almost outplaying his Class A rival without having to make heavy demands on his handicap allowance. The third place in the tournament went of Claude R. Lewis, and Klinger finished fourth. The scores:

GOLF SEMI-FINALS REACHED.

Scofield Advances in North and South Amateur Title Play.

Special to The New York Times.

PINEHURST, N. C., April 4.—The North and South amateur championship tournament was brought down to the semi-finals at Pinehurst today by the playing of the second match round in all nine divisions. Comparatively little interest was manifested in today's contests so far as the championship sixteen was concerned, as it was taken more or less for granted that E. L. Scofield, the medalist, would come through to the semi-finals in the upper bracket, and that Arthur Yates of Rochester and R. A. Stranahan would win the lower bracket.

All four of the favorites won their matches easily enough, each leading his opponent at the turn, and none of the contests going beyond the sixteenth green. Interest now centres in tomorrow's semi-final contest between Scofield and Robeson, the winner of which has been generally nominated in advance as Norman Maxwell's probable successor. Arthur Yates is a favorite over R. A. Stranahan in the lower bracket, but neither is regarded at the present moment as likely to carry off the thirty-six-hole final on Saturday against either Scofield or Robeson.

FORDHAM NINE IS VICTOR.

Noses Out Mount St. Joseph College by Score of 10 to 9.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., April 4.—A shaky defense behind Kenisch, who pitched for Mount St. Joseph College, enabled Fordham University to win at Irvington this afternoon 10 to 9. The St. Joseph team outbatted the Fordhamites, but the latter in turn outplayed the former in the support they gave their batteries.

The St. Josephs pounded two pitchers out of the box, but McQuade finally put a stop to the slugging, while his teammates steadily overcame the lead of the local team, which piled up four markers in the first two innings. Lefevre led the attack for Fordham with three safeties in four times up, while Atherton led in the attack for the losing team.

The score by innings:

										R.	H.	E.
Fordham	0	0	0	4	0	8	0	2	1	10	[illegible]	1
Mt. St. Joseph	3	1	0	0	2	8	0	0	0	9	13	2

Batteries—Martin, Hallerin, McQuade and Lefevre; Kenisch and Houck.

ROSS SETS FOUR RECORDS.

San Francisco Swimmer Performs Feat at A. A. U. Meet.

CHICAGO, April 4.—Norman Ross of the Olympic Club, San Francisco established four indoor world's swimming records at the National A. A. U. meet tonight.

Ross won the 330-yard race in 3 minutes 16 3-5 seconds, breaking the old record of 3 minutes 26 1-5 seconds, held by Percy McGillivray of the Great Lakes Naval Training Station. Ross finished first in the 200-yard event in 2 minutes 6 4-5 seconds, beating the former record by 1 second. In the 220-yard swim he made the distance in 2 minutes 20 2-5 seconds, which is three-fifths of a second better than the previous mark. A few moments later he came in ahead in the 250-yard event in 2 minutes 41 1-5 seconds. The best previous time is 2 minutes 48 4-5 seconds.

SENATE FOR SUNDAY GAMES

Passes Bill Permitting Baseball by Vote of 26 to 20.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 4.—The Lawson bill permitting Sunday ball was passed by the Senate today by a vote of 26 to 20. Under the provisions of the measure local governing bodies will have practical control of the sport on the Sabbath, with the requirement, however, that no games shall start before 2 o'clock in the afternoon. The bill provides that baseball games may be played on Sunday whether or not admission is charged so long as local ordinances do not prohibit.

Democrats voted solidly for the measure together with New York City and a few up-State Republicans. Senators Burlingame and Lockwood of Kings were the only two men south of the Harlem River who voted in the negative on the measure. The bill now goes to the Assembly, where it is expected to pass, although there will be a hard fight.

Jordan Quality

JORDAN started by selecting the best chassis units made by the one leading manufacturer in each line.

The real merit of these wonderful units registered at once. The lines, the finish, the general appearance of the whole car are in keeping.

Jordan cars have received an endorsement rarely, if ever before, given to any automobile.

We have a remarkable list of Jordan owners—many of whom have given us permission to refer to them.

Look into the Jordan and see what values we offer in body styles and equipment,—and see too what has made Continental, Timken, Willard, Parish and Bingham, Fedders and Jordan famous.

Big reputations and fortunes have been built on these names. And that fact is significant to you as a car buyer.

WAR VIVIDLY SEEN IN GRIFFITH FILM

"Hearts of the World" Also Tells a Story That Quickly Stirs the Emotions.

IT BEGINS BEFORE CONFLICT

Germans Advance with Fury Upon a French Village Harboring a Romance of Boy and Girl.

Invited spectators who filled the Forty-fourth Street Theatre last night were stirred as few audiences at war plays and photoplays have been by the private showing of D. W. Griffith's "Hearts of the World," which will have its first public presentation at the theatre tonight. Mr. Griffith's film seeks to make the war a big reality, to bring as much of it as possible within the four walls of a comfortable Broadway theatre; and, if the demonstrations by which those who saw the picture manifested their succession of emotions can be accepted as faithful indications, the motion picture succeeds in its ambitious aim.

But the picture is not just a series of photographs of fighting. Mr. Griffith does not plunge his spectators straight into action that would be only confusing and spectacular. His story begins some years before the war, the scene in a quiet French village where the homely people have no thought of war and death and disaster. There is a young girl living with her old grandparents. And there is a young man living with his parents and three little brothers, Monsieur Cuckoo, The Little Disturber, The Village Carpenter, A Deaf and Blind Musician, and many others are village characters with their happiness and little difficulties that do not matter.

The Girl and the Boy love each other. The Little Disturber, delightful little devil of a flirt, loves the Boy, but he loves the other Girl and angrily spurns her. The Disturber at last turns to Monsieur Cuckoo, who has been pursuing her from the first. The Littlest Brother of the Boy, as fascinating a little fellow as has been seen on any stage, idolizes his big brother and gives the spectators much amusement with his merry exhibitions of affection. The scenes of this French village suggest all that had been known by travel and books of provincial France before the war. Many times those in the theatre broke into applause just at some particularly beautiful landscape of rural vista.

Into such an atmosphere and environment the war bursts. First a German spy inspecting possible fortifications appears with sinister suggestion. Then, just before the set wedding day of the Boy and the Girl, the town crier startles the village with the mobilization order. The whole peaceful arrangement of life is violently shattered. The men rush off to war and the women stay behind to worry and wonder.

With the beginning of the war, the film introduces the first of the scenes of actual fighting made by Mr. Griffith at the front with the co-operation of the British and French Governments. These scenes are skillfully worked into others specially made for the play, so that, were it not for the appearance of characters peculiar to the plot of the play, one would scarcely know where the actual ends and the made-to-order begins. Sometimes one does not know whether what he is seeing is a real war or screen make-believe. The pictures of hand to hand fighting in the trenches, the bursting of shells from big guns, the demolition of buildings, the scouting trips and raids into enemy trenches are impressively realistic.

Continuing the story, the Germans advance against the village; many of the inhabitants flee in confusion, while shells do their destruction around them; others remain behind and seek shelter in cellars and crypts and vaults. Certain characters in the play are killed; others survive to face the fearful future. After furious fighting the Germans take possession of the town and Prussian brutality reveals itself in a number of vivid scenes.

The horrors of German occupation are shown, chiefly as they affect the persons in the play, the Girl and the Disturber, who become companions in misery. There is a great deal of detail, both of actual fighting and of play plot, and finally the Boy, whom the girl had left for dead on a battlefield, enters the village disguised in the uniform of a Prussian officer and finds his sweetheart, who escapes with him from the clutches of a Prussian officer to a garret room, where a struggle that has all of the thrill of melodrama takes place. But this little clash of individuals is not long continued. Soon the French troops retake the town and more of the action of real war is seen.

The conclusion shows the characters of the play, lovers reunited, on a furlough, and as they are dining, American troops pass outside. The Stars and Stripes enter, and at the very end ultimate victory for the Allies is symbolically forecast.

All of the actors in the play were frequently applauded. Lillian Gish, as the Girl, moved the people in her biggest moments, and Dorothy Gish, as the Little Disturber, with her bewitching ways, was applauded many times after stepping beyond the range of the camera just as if she had been on the stage in person, retreating into the wings after an affective scene. Ben Alexander as the Littlest Brother was a child wonderful, and Robert Harron as the Boy, Robert Anderson as Monsieur Cuckoo, George Fawcett as the Village Carpenter, and Eugene Pouyet as a Poilu were especially good.

Descriptive music, in which the leading characters had motifs that accompanied their appearances, added greatly to the performance.

After "The End" had been flashed upon the screen the spectators stood and shouted for Mr. Griffith until he appeared on the stage. He said that he had no speech to make, but only wanted to thank those present. When he attempted to ask the spectators to pray for and support the men fighting in the war, which, he said, the flickering shadows on the screen represented in a small way, his voice broke and he never finished his sentence.

Historic meetings of the British Parliament and French Chamber of Deputies, as well as the leading figures in France and England were shown and received ovations. A representation of the Kaiser was eagerly hissed.

The scenario of the play was written by M. Maston de Tolignac and translated by Captain Victor Marier. The film is presented under the management of William Elliott, F. Ray Comstock, and Morris Gest.

Many officers of the allied armies and navies, public officials, and friends of the producers were present by invitation.

Dance Pantomimes at Matinee.

Ruth Cramer and Janet Jackson resumed their matinée dance pantomimes at the Princess Theatre yesterday, an entertainment of much playful fancy and graceful charm. The two young women yesterday introduced the new "Tableaux Enfantins" of Rebikow, a "Dancing School" of old tunes, and "The Fairy Boat," after MacDowell.

TICKET BROKERS HIT BY WAR TAX RULING

Law Taxes Speculator on His Profits and Provides for Additional Tax on Cut-Rate Tickets.

A new interpretation of the law governing war taxes on amusements, the principal provision of which will be to include ticket brokers and speculators in the class of those who must pay a tax, was made known yesterday by Ligon Johnson, counsel for the United Managers' Protective Association. These new rulings of the Internal Revenue Department, in addition to taxing the speculator on his profits, provide for an additional tax on cut-rate tickets and make minor changes in the laws as affecting cabarets, dance halls, and other places of amusement. It is also announced that a theatre proprietor will not be permitted hereafter to pay the tax for the patron.

The new ruling, it was learned last night, has been anticipated for some weeks by the ticket brokers. As the tax measure was originally drafted the brokers were liable to heavy taxes on their profits, but before its passage this provision was stricken from the bill. Under the new ruling the broker probably will be taxed 10 per cent. on the sum for which he sells a ticket in excess of the box-office price. All brokers and speculators are required to register immediately with the Internal Revenue Collector, or be subject to arrest. They are then required to enter all purchases and sales on their books, and to make a regular return to the Collector.

Ticket men pointed out last night that the ruling was certain to result in confusion, due to the various complications, unknown to the layman, which surround the ticket trade, such as exchanges, returns, and resales to other brokers. The great number of irresponsible sidewalk speculators was also cited as one of the things which will make the task of the Collector difficult.

In the case of cut-rate tickets it is provided that such tickets, when sold to an agent who intends to hold them for resale, will be taxed on the face value instead of on the actual price, as has been the custom. Thus, a two-dollar ticket, sold to a broker for 75 cents, will be taxed 20 cents instead of the former 8. The theory on which this change is made is that the reduction from $2 to 75 cents is equivalent to a pass for that amount, and that under the law passes are taxable.

All theatres are required to exhibit in their lobbies signs showing the admission charge and the war tax, listed separately, and theatres which have been in the habit of combining the two will be required to differentiate.

COMMUNITY CHORUS SINGS.

Gives the Messiah to a Great Audience at City College.

The Community Chorus gave a free public performance of parts of "The Messiah" last evening to the utmost capacity of the Great Hall of the College of the City of New York, the first of a series of four such events in various boroughs, of which the next will be held at the Brooklyn Academy next Wednesday. Harry Barnhart, before beginning the oratorio, led a half hour of patriotic "community singing," in which the audience joined. The soloists in Handel's airs were Gertrude Auld Thomas, Margaret Barrell, and George Hamlin, while the orchestra was that of young children from the Music School Settlement, prepared by Arthur Farwell, and the assisting organist was Samuel Baldwin.

The performance was unusual in the forces enlisted, and equally so in the earnest manner in which it was received. Half the audience sang in the "Hallelujah Chorus," a demonstration both on the stage and in the auditorium of impressive popular interest at this time in a world classic sung "by the people, for the people," as it has rarely been in years before.

Leader Barnhart, who came from Camp Upton in khaki uniform, asked the 3,000 present, "as a prayer for our men in battle," to sing two closing hymns, "Abide With Me," and "Nearer, My God, to Thee." The series of free concerts, including the others later in Brooklyn, the Bronx, and lower Manhattan, was sponsored by the Citizens' "Messiah" Committee, of which the Chairman is Dr. George F. Kunz.

'AIDA' AND 'TOSCA' IN A DAY.

Boxholders, After Assessment, to Get Their Opera at Less Rate.

Signor Caruso sang a special matinée of "Aida" to a great audience at the Metropolitan yesterday, with Muzio, Matzenauer, Amato, Segurola, and Ruysdael in familiar rôles, and Papi at the baton. Miss Farrar appeared last evening in a repetition of "Tosca," with Scotti, Lazaro, and others, led by Morazoni. It was a gala day for voices, and there was much enthusiasm.

The Metropolitan Opera Company yesterday made its first announcement as to opera next season, the eleventh year under Mr. Gatti-Casazza, for which renewals of subscription must be made within the present month. After May 15, new subscribers will be received at present prices for the twenty-three weeks of opera to begin next November.

The Golden Horseshoe boxholders will get their opera at a new rate next year, it is said, by a recent decision of the Metropolitan Opera and Real Estate Company, the "parent" organization that owns the house, to pay off a $1,000,000 mortgage on May 1. An assessment of $30,000 has been made on each of the thirty-five boxes to this end. As a result, each box hereafter will pay but $3,000 instead of $4,500 for a season's opera.

Mrs. Fiske in 'Service' at the Cohan.

Mrs. Fiske, it was anounced yesterday, will make her second appearance of the season in New York on Monday night, April 15, when she will be seen at the Cohan Theatre in "Service," a drama by Henri Lavedan. The piece will be preceded by the Dunsany short play, "A Night at an Inn." In Mrs. Fiske's company will be Lee Baker, Georges Flateau, Roger Lytton, Harry Lambert, Robert Vivian, Gerald Pring, Owen Meech, and others. "Toot-Toot," now at the Cohan, will go on the road.

Ames to Stage Sequel to 'Blue Bird.'

A sequel to "The Blue Bird," written by Maurice Maeterlinck, is announced for production next season by Winthrop Ames, who obtained the rights to the piece during his recent trip abroad. The play is known in French as "Les Fiançailles," and deals with the love affairs of Tyltyl, the hero of "The Blue Bird," at the age of 17. The original production of "The Blue Bird" in America was made by Mr. Ames at the New Theatre.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Chauncey Olcott will begin an engagement at the Fulton Theatre a week from Monday night in "Once Upon a Time," an Irish comedy by Rachel Crothers, which he has been playing on the road. His engagement will be for three weeks only.

The first performance of "Nancy Lee," announced for next Monday night at the Hudson Theatre, has been postponed until Tuesday. The piece is a drama by Eugene Walter and H. Cronin Wilson.

"Fancy Free," originally scheduled for production at the Astor next Monday, will have its premiere on Thursday instead. Clifton Crawford is at the head of the cast.

Flora Zabelle, seen here recently in "Toot-Toot!" has gone to Chicago to join "Hitchy-Koo."

ASSERTS SERBIANS FACE EXTINCTION

Their Plight in Occupied Districts Worse Than Belgians,' Says Labor Envoy.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—Conditions in Serbia are worse than those in either Belgium or Rumania, and immediate help, moral and material, is urgently needed, according to a statement prepared by D. Popovitch, Secretary of the Serbian Labor Party and representative of that party at the meeting of the International Socialist Committee, made public here today by Professor Voyslav M. Voyanovitch, a representative of the Serbian Government.

"The condition of the Serbian population," says the statement, "is wholly desperate and speedy help from the civilized world is urgently needed. Moral help is needed in order that it may stop the further barbarities of the Bulgarian and Austro-Hungarian authorities; material help is needed in food, clothing, and money, in order that it may prevent the death of interned civilians, also those who are war prisoners in prisoners' camps, as well as those who are still alive in Serbia and who represent the only surviving creatures there, women, children, and old men.

"The conditions in Serbia are worse than in Belgium, worse than in occupied Polish provinces, and more terrible than in occupied Rumania. In Belgium the new masters did not venture to do what they might do, because they were under the close scrutiny of the civilized world, under the control of European public opinion. In Poland and Rumania the occupying powers have a policy aiming at getting the sympathy of the population for the sake of the future policy of the occupying powers.

"Those who are left at home live in most terrible misery. There is no working or producing power. The possibility of earning money does not exist; there is no money to buy anything, no articles to be bought. The occupying powers, in a manner which is being more and more refined every year that passes, are taking literally from the mouths of the population the whole yearly harvest and sucking up the last drops of the national richness. Occupied Serbia needs help from her friends more urgently than any other occupied country.

"Meanwhile the remaining population of Serbia receives no help from abroad. In the course of the first year of occupation the Serbian Government did not send a single farthing to Serbia. Only with the beginning of 1917 about 40,000,000 francs were sent by the Government, and this sum is highly insufficient with respect to the prevailing misery.

"This preventive measure, if it was really decided upon, must be abolished. Food, clothing and money must be sent immediately to those in Serbia as well as those interned or war prisoners in Austria-Hungary and Bulgaria. If the Serbian authorities fail to do this, the fate of the Serbian population will be sealed and Serbia, which has made already over a million sacrifices, will represent a great graveyard.

CAPTAIN HELD AS A SPY.

German Gained a Commission While Detectives Trailed Him.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, April 4.—Trailed as a spy suspect for two years by agents of the Department of Justice, George von Rottweiler, Vice President and Manager of a local motor cycle manufacturing plant, was put in jail at Rochester, N. Y., soon after he had been commissioned a Captain in the United States Army, it was learned authoritatively here today. His companion and employe, Frank H. Newbert, a skilled mechanic, was arrested and locked up at the same time.

Both men are held on a technical charge of investigation of their citizenship. Both are said to be subjects of Germany and have failed to register under provisions of the Alien Enemy act. Rottweiler first came under the surveillance of the Department of Justice two years ago, when a Chicago woman unguardedly remarked to her employer that "Rotty was a paid agent of the German Government." In a spirit of boastfulness the woman added that "he had mapped the St. Lawrence River for Germany, and that he had concealed explosives in the bank of the river for use by the Germans upon their projected arrival in this country."

The woman's employer reported the incident to the Department of Justice, which immediately placed him under surveillance. He was arrested at his plant here a week ago by a United States Marshal from New York and was taken East. The arrest came only a short time before he was to have started for Washington to become a Captain in the Ordnance Department. His exceptional ability as a mechanical mathematician is said to have won the commission for him.

HER DEBUT IN SHAKESPEARE

Laurette Taylor Acts in Scenes from Plays in Vanderlip Playhouse.

Laurette Taylor's first appearance in Shakespeare was made yesterday afternoon in Frank A. Vanderlip's Beechwood Playhouse, on his estate at Scarborough, the performance being given in aid of the Red Cross branches in Scarborough, Ossining, Tarrytown, and Briarcliff. Those who attended the performance included Mr. Vanderlip, Mrs. Walter B. Mahoney, Mrs. Peter Duryea, and Mrs. J. C. Proctor of Scarborough, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Walker Harden, Mrs. Alfred McEwen, and Mrs. C. L. Brace of Tarrytown, Mrs. Kenneth Ives of Dobbs Ferry, and Mrs. Merritt W. Bond and Mrs. Andrew Secor of Ossining.

Miss Taylor appeared with her company in scenes from "Romeo and Juliet," "The Taming of the Shrew," and "The Merchant of Venice." Her first metropolitan appearances in the rôles will take place this afternoon at the Criterion Theatre.

INCREASE FOR OIL WORKERS

Tidewater Company Adds 10 Per Cent. to Pay of 2,200.

The Tide Water Oil Company of Bayonne, the largest concern of the kind in that city excepting the Standard Oil Company, it was announced yesterday had granted a 10 per cent. increase in salary to about 2,200 employes, including those of the East Jersey Railroad and Terminal Company, which the company controls. The increase will take effect from April 2 and was voluntarily given. It closely follows a similar action by the Standard Oil Company to about 9,000 workmen employed at the plants in Bayonne, Jersey City, and Bayway.

In Bayonne yesterday it was reported that the historic La Tourette House on First Street is to be taken over by the Government and used to house workmen employed at the shipbuilding plants in Staten and Shooters Islands and one to be located in Bayonne for the construction of many barges. The hotel is over a century old, and in its prime was patronized by the Vanderbilts and other New Yorkers who traveled between New York and Bayonne on a steamboat.

BIG KANSAS CITY BLAZE.

Property Worth $2,500,000 Destroyed in the Wholesale District.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., April 4.—Twenty-six buildings, occupied for the most part by wholesale firms and manufacturing concerns, and occupying an area approximating three city blocks in the district known as the "West Bottoms," were destroyed tonight by fire of undetermined origin, which did damage estimated at between two and three million dollars.

Companies whose buildings were either destroyed or badly damaged follow: American Steel and Wire Company, Ridenour-Baker Grocery Company, Hamm Brewing Company branch, Lowell Paint Company, Brite Mawnin' Grocery Company, Robbins Chemical Company, Abernathy Furniture Company, Illinois Glass Company, Harvey Brace Clothing Company, Murdock Mustard Company, Union Avenue Bank of Commerce, Fischer Grocery Company, Webb Bros. Manufacturing Company, Hossler Iron Company, Great Western Manufacturing Company, Myer Furniture and Supply Company, Brokers' Office and Warehouse Company, and Robertson Transfer Company.

KING LAUDS OUR RED CROSS

Expresses Gratification for Assistance Rendered in Italy.

ROME, April 4.—H. P. Davison, Chairman of the American Red Cross War Council, and Ivy Lee of the American Red Cross have arrived in Rome. They will take part in the celebration here on Sunday of the anniversary of America's entrance into the war.

King Victor Emmanuel, in receiving Mr. Davison today, expressed deep appreciation and admiration for "the manner in which the American Red Cross has shown to Italy the support and sympathy of the American people."

Disqualified Army Man a Suicide.

WESTERLY, R. I., April 4.—Angelo Cozzolino, recently discharged from the National Army for physical disabilities, committed suicide here today. He was sent from Westerly to Camp Devens with the first quota and later was transferred to Camp Gordon, Georgia, but was ordered home. Cozzolino's wife and children are in Italy.

FEDERAL TREATMENT OF BORROWED CAPITAL.

There is a curious discrimination in the Federal tax laws against borrowers of capital for use in business. A man who uses his own capital is entitled to a deduction equal to a 9 per cent. return upon it. A man who borrows capital is entitled to deduct only the rate of interest he pays, say 6 per cent. There are many businesses in which 3 per cent. is a handicap which cannot be carried. The Federal tax laws are thought discriminatory against the rich, but in this case they are discriminatory against the smaller men in business. The reason is that the borrowed money is not regarded as capital. So far as it is capital it is the capital of the lender, not of the borrower, in the theory of the law, although in an economic sense such borrowed funds are the capital of the business in which they are used for productive purposes. If the borrower loses it in trade he still owes it, and he is without either economic or borrowed or invested capital. The law allows the deduction of interest paid as an expense of business, but in the case of corporations the limitation on the deduction prevents credit for the full amount paid. That is an injustice, and a policy open to criticism. Clearly it discourages trade on borrowed capital, while greater liberality would stimulate business.

There are more conspicuous cases when comparison is made of a corporation with small capital stock and large bonded indebtedness with a corporation having a large capital stock and small bonded indebtedness. Thus the New York Central Railway is not permitted to deduct all the interest it pays, but the Pennsylvania Company is. There results double taxation, for the corporation is taxed on its income, and the interest paid to the lender is taxed again to him. Dividends are exempt from normal tax to the individual on the theory that the corporation pays the tax. On the same reasoning when the corporation pays the tax on the interest it should be untaxed to the lender. Dividends and interest alike find their way ultimately to the individual, so that if the individuals are taxable the penalty on the corporations borrowing their capital is unjust and impolitic. The writers on this feature of the law have termed it "indefensible" in this respect.

AMERICANIZATION.

Dead is the illusion long sincerely held by many, perhaps by most Americans, that some mysterious alligation or alchemy blended into unity a heterogeneous population; that Americanism was miraculously bestowed on those who lived in America. The war has shown us great foreign islands in the country, centres and branches of hates and loves brought across the water, deliberate, long fomented, and persistent submission and allegiance to the interests of a foreign country.

For nearly three years it seemed as if the United States was to many of its citizens a province of the German Empire, and small provinces, cities, villages of Prussia or Germany still subsist in the United States. We can count too many of them in the Wisconsin election. In many States these German dependencies, these Little Germanies, are found, in language, education, thought, utterly German.

Former Senator LAFAYETTE YOUNG of Iowa told the Americanization Conference at Washington of schools, thousands of schools in the Northwest, where every day's session ends with the singing of "Deutschland Ueber Alles," where "Die Wacht am Rhein" is better known than "The Star-Spangled Banner;" schools where German text-books impress lies upon the children at that uncritical age when the utterance of the book is gospel truth and the fresh, unincumbered memory and mind are likely to retain for life ideas then thrown into them. The German Emperor, the swaggering, mediaeval, divine-right figure we know too well, is set forth in these corrupting, dishonest German school books as a great and noble ruler and man. Germany, the feudal military State, the oligarchy of the drill stick, is represented as another America.

Another speaker at the conference, Mr. RICHARD LEE METCALFE of Nebraska, sometime Civil Governor of the Panama Canal Zone, described a similar Germanization in schools of his State. Incidentally, as an illustration of Deutschthum in Nebraska, he said that a Nebraska German paper commemorated the Fourth of July by enriching its subscribers with "souvenir spoons" radiant with the counterfeit presentments of WILHELM II. and HINDENBURG, that savior of the empire, whom Herr BALLIN is said blasphemously to have called "that Wooden Ass with the nails in him."

These instances from Iowa and Nebraska may make more concrete and definite in our minds thoughts now becoming general, destined to bring changes indispensable in our system of education if America is to be a nation of Americans. "There are several things," said Secretary LANE at the conference, "which we have come upon recently which seem to those of us who have not been wise to be discoveries. The first is that we have a great body of our own people, five and a half millions, who cannot read or write the language of this country. That language is English. A million and a half are native-born." These native illiterates and the foreign-born ignorant of English must be instructed in it. It must be made the language of the country. It is not so at present, with all regard for Mr. LANE. The eighteen Governors and other delegates at the conference adopted a set of resolutions recommending Congress to pass certain legislation in the interest of Americanization. This is the vital one:

> In all schools where elementary subjects are taught they should be taught in the English language.

Substitute for "should" "must." There is the beginning of Americanization.
